Herald mini-survey reveals:

Many Lake County voters unaware of fire referendum

by JOHN MAES

While officials prepare for Buffalo Grove fire service referendum in late November, many residents in the Lake County section of the village are not aware a referendum is in the works.

A Herald mini-survey shows that 44 per cent, or 22 of 50 residents interviewed from Lake County, know nothing of the efforts to switch into the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District. The district employs the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., Inc. to service the Cook County section of the village.

The Long Grove Fire Protection District currently provides the 4,000 to 5,000 residents in Lake County with fire and emergency services.

OF THE RESIDENTS contacted, 28, or 56 per cent, said they are aware of the referendum and plan to vote. Nineteen of these residents, or 67 per cent, said they were undecided or had no comment as to how they would cast their ballots. Some said they could not take a position on the matter because they are unfamiliar with the fire transfer issue and wanted more time to analyze it.

Several said they plan to attend one of four meetings scheduled over the next four weeks where the referendum will be discussed and explained by officials of the village and the two fire districts.

The first of those sessions will be at 7:30 tonight at Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr. Other meetings have been scheduled for Oct. 10, 17 and 24.

Late November vote likely

Village Atty. Richard Raysa said Wednesday the fire-service referendum for Buffalo Grove probably will be delayed until late November.

Raysa said an Oct. 25 hearing has been set in Circuit Court on the petitions that have been circulating for permission to conduct the election and a period of 20 days must follow before the court announces a referendum date.

The period will allow objectors to the fire transfer to file notices with the court. Raysa said if the court sets a referendum date it will probably be near the end of November.

Eight residents who indicated they would vote, or 27 per cent, said they favor the switch. Some gave as a reason the belief that the Buffalo Grove department has a better paramedic program than Long Grove.

"I would just feel safer," said Mrs. Michael J. Burke, 7 Amherst Ct.

ANOTHER RESIDENT, Mrs. Robert Large, 1065 Parker Ln., said she would like to see the transfer for "the paramedics and the facilities."

The sentiment was echoed by Arthur

Buffalo Grove fire officials and members of a select village committee promoting the election had been considering Oct. 26 as a possible date for the vote.

The referendum affects 4,000 to 5,000 residents in the northern area of Buffalo Grove in Lake County that receive fire protection from the Long Grove Fire Protection District.

The referendum will decide whether the area will be transferred to the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District, which serves the rest of Buffalo Grove.

Henning, 680 Wyngate Ln., who said, "I'd just rather have them. They have better equipment."

The Long Grove department currently has four certified paramedics and officials of the district say their program will be in operation by early November.

Three of the residents surveyed said they would prefer to remain in the Long Grove fire district, saying the station is closer and emergency crews can respond to calls quicker.

One resident, Mrs. Donald Scott, 900 Twisted Oak Ln., cited an accident several months ago in which her son was injured. The Long Grove ambulance, she said, arrived "in a matter of minutes."

BUFFALO GROVE Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he is not surprised at the number of residents unaware of the referendum, or undecided as to how they will vote.

"It surprises me that so few people are undecided at this point," he said. Officials from both departments agreed that residents' unawareness is "one of the biggest problems we've got."

Winter said flyers explaining the issue will be sent to all the residents in the Lake County area the week preceding the vote. "They're purely informational so that everybody who doesn't make it to the open houses can be somewhat conversant when the referendum comes up," Winter said.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Haddon, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

Village manager won't act on cop's grievance

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt has upheld the decision of the police chief and has refused to act on a grievance filed by Patrolman Larry Parks.

Parks filed the grievance after Patrolman Armando Pizzi was chosen by Police Chief Peter Guttilla to attend a course in accident investigation at Northwestern Traffic Institute. The grievance charges Pizzi was "wrongfully chosen" because he has less seniority than Parks.

Passolt could not be reached Wednesday to confirm his action. For several days he has refused to comment on the grievance, saying it is an internal matter and should not be aired publicly. letter from Passolt Wednesday concerning the grievance, but refused to divulge its contents. He did say, however, that he had not decided whether he would demand a public hearing before the village board, indicating that Passolt's response was unfavorable.

Parks has been a member of the police department about a year longer than Pizzi. The course in traffic investigation is scheduled to begin Monday.

Parks told The Herald he received a

Three school districts to meet on boundaries

Officials of three Lake County school districts will get together Monday night to consider boundary changes.

The 8 p.m. meeting at Kildeer Country-side School, Long Grove, was called after two Long Grove families asked to be switched from Dist. 95 to Dist. 96 and High School Dist. 125. The families live on a block where other residents are in Dist. 96.

The Dist. 96 Board of Education agreed to the switch if Dist. 95 and 125 concurred. However, Dist. 95 turned down the families' request, preferring to look at the entire boundary situation.

Dist. 95 is a unit district with a single administration and school board for both elementary and high schools.

Officials react to actions of Meyer's sales practices

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuersch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuersch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Fredrick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He

Reaction's vary to mayor's dual role

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company. "Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd. Another alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a mole hill." Ald. Frederick E. Jacobson, 5th, said "It certainly isn't illegal, but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to sell refuse disposal equipment. "The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," he said.

High school teachers OK pact

High School Dist. 211 teachers accepted a salary contract providing 7.8 per cent raises Wednesday by a vote of 283 to 192. Acceptance of the contract, which probably will be approved Monday by the board of education, ends more than seven months of salary negotiations. "Our biggest goal is to work toward revamping the school board," teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien said after the vote, reflecting dissatisfaction of many teachers with the agreement. "It's the first time since I've been in the district that people have said it's time to do something about the school board."

Young franking charge dropped

A charge by Abner J. Mikva that his Congressional opponent, U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, has misused his franking privileges was thrown out Wednesday by federal officials. A spokesman for the Commission on Congressional Mailings Standards said the 10-count complaint, which had been filed last July and amended several times, was dismissed after being reviewed in Washington. The decision was unanimous by the six-member bipartisan panel. "We found all of the mailings cited in the complaint to conform to the guidelines that have been approved by Congress," the spokesman said.

Hospital branch can't wait

Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital will have to begin construction of its Wheeling-Buttala Grove branch without the planning approval needed to obtain important Blue Cross-Blue Shield funds, a hospital spokesman said Wednesday. Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said approval by Comprehensive Health Planning, Inc., a prerequisite to receiving a Blue Cross-Blue Shield contract, probably would take six months. To delay start of construction that long, Davis said, would mean a sharp rise in construction costs. "If we don't get started this year, I doubt if we'll ever do it," he said. "We simply can't wait for Comprehensive Health Planning to review it."

Mount Prospect to buy system?

Mount Prospect has taken the first step toward purchasing Citizens Utilities Co.'s water and sewer system in the New Town section of the village. The village board hired an engineering firm to appraise the value of the system and determine if purchase and operation by the village would be feasible.

3 choices to end money woes

Three possible courses of action are emerging in the effort to bail out the financially troubled Arlington Heights Park District. They are: construction of a major revenue-producing facility such as an ice rink; merger with village government, which would assume taxing and financial management responsibilities; and keeping the park district autonomous but making use of village bonding powers.

$500,000 school warrants lost

A total of $500,000 worth of negotiable tax-anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 69 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said. The disappearance of the warrants does not affect the school district because the two institutions, a bank and a brokerage house, are responsible for any financial losses.

Chicago

Schools receive word to eliminate

Public school principals began receiving word that teachers and courses would have to be eliminated to pay for the new $35.3 million contract with the Chicago Teachers Union. Acting Schools Superintendent James Redmond has told the Chicago Board of Education members that 1,200 positions must be cut to pay for the 4 to 10.3 per cent wage increases.

Early cattle slaughter holds prices down

The rapid rise in livestock feedgrain prices in recent weeks has forced many cattle producers to take their animals to market prematurely, an official of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said in Chicago yesterday. He said the premature marketing is holding beef prices down slightly, but prices could shoot higher as the number of cattle available for slaughter decreases. In Texas, meanwhile, two hundred ranchers and dairymen agreed to postpone for two weeks the slaughter of 1,000 calves to protest low prices cattlemen are getting for beef at the market.

File $152 million suit in boy's death

The family of Jeffrey Kalserman, 9, killed by a taxicab as he got off a school bus in Skokie on Oct. 30, 1972, has filed a $152 million damage suit against 11 defendants, including the bus operator and an Illinois safety expert. Attorney Darryl Fohrman said the suit was believed to be the largest "wrongful death action" involving a single victim filed in Cook County Circuit Court.

The nation

Foreign aid bill back to committee

The Senate unexpectedly voted Wednesday to send a controversial $2.5 billion foreign aid authorization bill back to committee, forestalling any action on the measure at least until after the November elections. By a vote of 41-39 the Senate approved a motion to recommit the bill to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The bill was loaded with amendments that would cut off military aid to five nations and ban secret U.S. intelligence activities abroad except under strict conditions.

Army argues: Calley release order wrong

The Army argued Wednesday in New Orleans that a federal judge was wrong last week in ordering former Lt. William Calley released from military prison. "The novelty of the issues raised by the lower court's opinion is doubtful," the Army said. Calley was convicted of killing at least 22 civilians at the South Vietnamese village of My Lai in 1968.

House votes $200,000 for Nixon

The House late Wednesday voted to provide former President Nixon $200,000 for his transition to private life, less than a quarter of what was sought, but rejected a move to strip him of his pension. The bill, which included $4.4 billion for education programs — some half-billion dollars more than the administration wanted — was approved 317-72 and sent to the Senate.

Greyhound pleads guilty on campaign issue

The Greyhound Corp. pleaded guilty yesterday to illegally contributing $10,040 to the 1972 presidential campaigns of Richard Nixon and George McGovern. Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski charged Greyhound with a one-count misdemeanor. The single count carries a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine.

Kissinger: U. S. has open mind toward Cuba

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, at a luncheon for Latin American Foreign Ministers in New York, affirmed that the United States has "an open mind" toward the question of reintegrating Cuba in the interrelationships of the Western Hemisphere. Kissinger also said the United States will pay "careful heed to the predominant views of its friends in the Organization of American States."

Racial clash at S. Boston High School

Seven students and three school officials were injured yesterday in a fist-swinging, tray-throwing racial clash among 150 students in the South Boston High School cafeteria on the 15th day of a court-ordered busing plan to integrate Boston public schools.

Israel warns against missile attack

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin warned Egypt and Syria yesterday "the only answer" to any attack with their Soviet-made ground-to-ground missiles against Israeli population centers was counter-strikes on Arab cities. In London, meanwhile, it was reported the Soviet Union has promised new military supplies to Syria above the $2 billion spent since last year's October war.

Killings in Argentina continue

In Buenos Aires yesterday gunmen killed an army captain at a downtown bus stop, bringing the number of military men killed or wounded to seven since a Marxist guerrilla group vowed to assassinate Argentine army officers for revenge. The killing came as President Maria Estela Peron decided to call a meeting of Argentine leaders to try to do something about the rising wave of political murders which cost the lives of at least 129 persons this year.

Dow down; prices close mixed

Registering its ninth consecutive loss, the Dow Jones Industrial average reached a 12-year low Wednesday as prices closed mixed in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow lost 3.39 to 601.53 — the lowest close since it finished at 597.13 on Nov. 1, 1962. Standard & Poor's fell 0.01 to 63.38. The average price of an NYSE common share increased three cents. Advances led declines, 628 to 511, among the 1,741 issues crossing the tape.

Plan suggested by John Sawhill

IRS would refund 30 cent gas tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal energy chief John Sawhill disclosed Wednesday he had proposed to the White House that gasoline consumption be reduced by imposing a tax that would later be refunded by the Internal Revenue Service.

And Treasury Secretary William E. Simon at the same time denied he had anything to do with a federal rule — drafted while Simon was the nation's energy chief — which allowed oil companies to make $40 million in windfall profits this year.

Sawhill said he suggested to President Ford's advisers that the "refundable fee" be set at 20 to 30 cents a gallon with the motorist filing for a refund through his income tax returns.

"The refund would have to come through the withholding system although other mechanisms would have to be found to refund to people who are not part of the tax system; that is those who don't pay income tax," said the head of the Federal Energy Administration.

"In order to really be effective a fee would have to be somewhere in the 20 to 30 cents a gallon range."

As an example, Sawhill said that if a motorist drove 10,000 miles a year in a car that got 20 miles per gallon, he would pay a refundable fee of $100 if the rate was 20 cents a gallon.

He said he was opposed to a straight, non-refundable tax on gasoline because it would have to be quite large to reduce consumption and it would work a hardship on poor people.

Sawhill said the United States must "take some tough steps to cut back on our usage of energy" to prove to the rest of the world that the nation is "serious about energy conservation."

Meanwhile, Simon answered what he called "severely derogatory comments" by members of a House subcommittee.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the Subcommittee on Regulatory Agencies, said either the government knowingly assisted the oil companies or Simon had shown "the most serious form of lack of leadership" when he headed the Federal Energy Office.

Dingell told Simon that even some oil companies themselves had warned the government that the federal rule might lead to excessive profits. The so-called "double dip" provision in federal oil allocation rules, which allowed big oil companies to claim costs twice, existed for four months early this year before it died with the petroleum crisis.

"There appears in the record severely derogatory comments by members of this committee seeking to assign blame for the chaotic situation under which we were all laboring at the FEO," said Simon. Such statements reveal little understanding of the magnitude of the task imposed upon us."

In Caracas, U.S. and other foreign oil companies said that Venezuela's new $440 million oil "excess profits" tax "pretty well wipes us out for this year." Venezuela claimed the tax would not be passed on to consumers.

Ford considering speech to nation on economic plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is considering an address before a joint session of Congress next Tuesday to unveil his new inflation-fighting economic program, White House sources said Wednesday.

They said they expected the speech, if given, would be televised on all major networks.

Ford promised in his concluding remarks at the economic summit last weekend to offer the American people and Congress "a program of action which will bring balance and vitality to our economy."

His top economic advisers have been meeting daily since Saturday afternoon to develop an action program. Ford has presided at the session that is headed by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon to oversee, coordinate and implement all the administration's economic policies, national and international.

Ford was studying scores of proposals, including taxes which would lift some of the financial burden from the poor who are suffering most from inflation. Another tax under consideration is a surtax on income for the high-salaried.

The President has definitely ruled out wage and price controls and no surprises were expected along that line.

Ford said inflation "strikes society unevenly" and government must concern itself with those on whom this burden falls excessively. He said the government must provide productive work for those without jobs.

"We must adjust our tax system to encourage savings, stimulate productivity, discourage excessive debt, and correct inflation-caused inequities," he said.

Also in the address he is considering, Ford will present a plan of action to keep the federal budget for the current fiscal year under $300 billion.

He also is exploring proposals for a national energy conservation program.

The President requested that the public send in recommendations on how to fight inflation and save energy, and an aide said that they are beginning to pour in.

Meanwhile, the President will appear before a congressional subcommittee Oct. 10 to answer questions on how and why he pardoned Richard M. Nixon, it was announced.

Ehrlichman claims double jeopardy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman claimed Wednesday he cannot be prosecuted on Watergate cover-up charges, saying the principle of double jeopardy invalidates two of the five charges against him in the two-day old cover-up trial.

With jury selection proceeding slowly in the courtroom, Ehrlichman's lawyers filed an "affirmative defense of double jeopardy" with trial judge John J. Sirica claiming their client can't be prosecuted for the cover-up conspiracy because of his earlier conviction in the Ellsberg burglary case.

Sirica, meantime, warned prospective jurors they could be jailed for contempt of court if they fail to declare their true feelings about the case during the jury selection process expected to last several more days.

After eight hours of preliminary screening Wednesday, Sirica excused 80 persons from jury duty on personal hardship grounds and ordered another 80 to return Friday for further individual questioning. On Thursday, Sirica will question another 64 prospects who survived Tuesday's first round of preliminary screening, making a total of 144 held over for more screening.

Ehrlichman, a former presidential advisor and one of five defendants in the trial, was convicted in July of conspiracy and perjury in the 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office by White House "plumbers."

His lawyers did not say why that conviction would bar prosecution for the cover-up, but it appeared they would argue that the Ellsberg break-in and the Watergate cover-up were all part of the same conspiracy. The constitutional principle of double jeopardy means a person cannot be punished twice for the same crime.

Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, meanwhile, filed another legal brief saying the government "may prove at trial" there were others involved in the conspiracy beyond those indicted or named co-conspirators by the grand jury. Former President Richard M. Nixon is one of nearly two dozen persons named unindicted co-conspirators in the plot. Jaworski gave no indication who else he may seek to prove was involved.

'The birds' are returning to Graceham

GRACEHAM, Md. (UPI) — Last winter millions of birds finally left a pine grove near this tiny hamlet after threatening its economy and health for weeks. But experts warned the birds might return in the fall.

Already hundreds of thousands of birds have returned to the communal roost. Health and wildlife officials indicated Thursday that measures to keep the birds away apparently were inadequate.

Last winter, evoking memories of Alfred Hitchcock's horror film, "The Birds," millions of starlings, blackbirds and grackles blackened the skies, destroyed crops and ate livestock feed. Droppings several inches thick in places carried the threat of histoplasmosis, a lung disease.

Finally their spring departure was hurried by a barrage of firecrackers, bright lights and recordings of birds in distress. But experts predicted the birds, attracted by the grove's warmth and shelter, would return unless some trees were cut.

The grove is finally being thinned out after months of argument over who would pay for the work. But the state health department's chief veterinarian, Dr. Kenneth Crawford, thinks the cutting is too little too late.

"If they're only taking out every third row, they're going to have bird problems," he said. "Within days those trees will fill up that thinned out space."

But project forester Ken Willett disagreed. "If it was thinned anymore, you would get to the point of detriment to the other trees and might as well remove them all," he said.

Frederick County health official Paul Beale said the grove is "a lot more open now" and added, "Some foremen for the cutting are beginning to say it's not going to keep the birds away. There are already a lot of birds in Graceham, and a lot of people don't have much hope that thinning trees is the answer."

He said the county might try burning sulphur in small quantities in the grove to keep the birds away.

McLaughlin quits as White House aide

Nearly two months after his duties ended, Fr. John McLaughlin resigned Wednesday as a White House speechwriter. One of many former Nixon aides still on the payroll, McLaughlin's presence was a particular embarrassment because of his past outspoken and controversial defense of the former president, and a life style — including an apartment in the Watergate complex — that furrowed the brows of his Jesuit superiors. McLaughlin, for whom the Ford team found no use, went out much as he came in — praising Nixon and predicting his place in history. Meantime, other ex-Nixon people — including Rose Mary Woods, Ken Clawson and Gerald Warren — remained on the payroll, with Press Secretary Ron Nessen saying Ford didn't want to "toss people off in the street" before they found other work.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy may have started a new trend in politics: the non-race. Now Florida's Gov. Reubin Askew a popular Democrat often speculated over as a national candidate — has bluntly closed the door on a 1976 presi-

HONDURAS-BOUND food and clothing collected in the Northwest suburbs will soon be going to the hurricane-stricken South American country but it won't be transported by military aircraft from the Glenview Naval Air Station. The Defense Dept. canceled Marine Air Reserve plans to ship the contributions via a regularly scheduled training flight to New Orleans. Other arrangements are being made to send the 18,000 pounds of supplies.

Honduras airlift of food, clothing stalled temporarily

The military airlift of some 18,000 pounds of food and clothing collected in the Northwest suburbs and earmarked for hurricane-stricken Honduras was canceled Wednesday but other arrangements are being made to get the contributions to South America.

A Defense Dept. directive issued Wednesday morning from Washington, D.C., ordered the Marine Air Reserve at the Glenview Naval Air Station to forget about plans to deliver the supplies to New Orleans, where a ship was to take them to Honduras.

Instead, Honduran officials are finalizing plans to transport the provisions across country by commercial jet or by truck for shipment overseas, meaning a delay in aiding needy victims of Hurricane Fifi. The storm struck Honduras two weeks ago, killing several thousand people and leaving countless others homeless.

"The good intentions are appreciated," said Mrs. Norma Solano of the Honduran Embassy in Chicago in reference to the efforts by the Glenview Marines that ultimately were aborted. "Now all we can do is wait a day."

THE CRY FOR HELP was answered by area residents who read of Mrs. Maria McGowan of Arlington Heights, a native of Honduras whose family apparently was unharmed by the hurricane and subsequent flooding. But in the course of learning of the family's status it became obvious that persons affected by the disaster needed assistance. Contributions and gifts poured in and plans were made to send them.

Though Delta Airlines had already flown for no charge three shipments of Chicago donations to Miami where they were placed aboard Salsa Airlines in a final link with Honduras, a difficulty in scheduling weekday runs prompted a call to Glenview. The supplies were delivered to the base Tuesday night but they remained there all day Wednesday when the trip was canceled.

"The plans have fallen through," said operations officer Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine. "Without us knowing it some sort of big meeting was going on yesterday (Tuesday) and this morning (Wednesday) in Washington. The Defense Dept. has issued new guidelines making it illegal for us to fly any airlifts."

LEE SAID THE ORDER explained that the Air Force had completed efforts to get "immediate, high-priority supplies (meaning food, medicine and insecticides)" to Honduras and that any additional supplies would have to be sent without military assistance.

Officials from the Glenview base were asked to help because regularly scheduled training flights to Miami and New Orleans are made from there. Plans called for a flight to go to the Louisiana city Wednesday morning at 10 but it was delayed so long by the Washington meeting that it never got to New Orleans. Pilots made a practice run closer to home instead.

"Maj. Lee is a wonderful man," said Mrs. Solano. "He tried to help us so much."

Many mercy flights delayed because of material logjam

by United Press International

When the torrential rains and high winds of Hurricane Fifi ravaged Honduras two weeks ago, Americans responded with traditional generosity.

But homeless, hungry and starving natives of the tiny Central American country now face an additional ironic tragedy — badly needed supplies are held up in staging areas because of transportation problems.

In Miami, donations of food and clothing have reached the million-pound mark but they are arriving at such a rate that TAN, the Honduran airline, cannot handle the situation.

AT HOUSTON tons of provisions are stacked up at two airport warehouses for lack of moving facilities.

A Houston Fire Dept. spokesman said Wednesday that fuel had been received for a flight to Honduras but no plane is available.

Two Air Force Reserve planes transported 40 tons of supplies to the disaster area but it was not known whether the Air Force would authorize additional mercy flights.

Lt. Col. Don Reynolds, who accompanied one of the flights from Houston, said the planes had to land at different airports because of storage problems.

"Both airfields were working to capacity and if there had been more craft arriving or departing they couldn't have handled them," Reynolds said. "Nearly half of our cargo was unloaded box by box by 10- to 12-year-old Honduran Boy Scouts."

IN MIAMI, TAN president Bill Spohrer said "It's just too much. We're the staging area but it's more than we can deal with. We just can't fly it out as fast as it's coming in."

Three flights leave daily and two ships sail weekly from Miami on the mercy mission. Similar accounts have been reported from other areas but Spohrer said that much of the smaller individual contributions seem to be diminishing and most of the relief shipments now come from professional relief organizations.

Mrs. Henry Lee, an organizer of the Honduran Relief Center in Morgan City, La., said 12 tons of food with a ton of medical and other supplies collected by volunteers in the Morgan City area were being shipped to Honduras by boat.

Special plan OK to stymie hospital branch project?

Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital will have to begin construction of its Wheeling-Buffalo Grove branch without the planning approval needed to obtain important Blue Cross-Blue Shield funds, a hospital spokesman said Wednesday.

Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said approval by Comprehensive Health Planning, Inc., a prerequisite to receiving a Blue Cross-Blue Shield contract, probably would take six months.

To delay start of construction that long, Davis said, would mean a sharp rise in construction costs.

"If we don't get started this year, I doubt if we'll ever do it," he said. "We simply can't wait for Comprehensive Health Planning to review it."

DAVIS SAID EVEN if hospital officials waited for the review, there is still the possibility the agency would not accept the hospital plans.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital legally can begin construction without the approval of Comprehensive Health Planning. Without that agency's approval, however, Blue Cross-Blue Shield will not sign a contract with the hospital.

This means that it would not be fully reimbursed by Blue Cross-Blue Shield for costs incurred by patients with that type of hospital insurance.

A spokesman for Blue Cross said Wednesday more than 30 per cent of the persons in the United States are insured by the company and would thus create a "severe financial hardship" on any hospital which was not a member. Officials could not break down membership in the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling area.

In addition, Davis said without a Blue Cross contract the hospital backers will have to look toward an alternate method of financing the branch hospital.

A STATE LAW allows the hospital to finance part of the construction with general obligation bonds that are purchased through the county or municipality in order to obtain lower interest rates. Davis said, however, that unless the hospital can show financing agencies that it has a contract with Blue Cross, they are unwilling to commit financial support.

Thus, if the project cannot be financed with general obligation bonds, the hospital would have to use private financing which carries higher interest rates, Davis said.

He said it may be financially beneficial for his clients to obtain private financing because the higher interest rates may cost less than if they wait several months and are faced with substantially higher construction costs.

Davis said he was dismayed to learn of the Blue Cross requirement because he thought the hospital had cleared its final hurdle two weeks ago when its final plans were approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

A SPOKESMAN FOR Comprehensive Health Planning said a recent report indicated there is no need for additional hospital facilities in Cook County. He said the new hospital will not be approved unless Franklin Boulevard officials can show the agency otherwise.

"The assumption that a hospital is not needed out here is pretty ridiculous," Davis said. "I don't know how they (Comprehensive Health Planning) can refuse to approve us after we already have state approval."

By obtaining approval by the state before Oct. 1, the hospital avoided the newly-enacted certificate of need law, which requires the backers to prove that a hospital is needed where it is being proposed.

Davis said it probably is illegal for Blue Cross to refuse to enter into a contract because a hospital has not been approved by Comprehensive Health Planning. He said, however, he doubts the hospital will challenge the matter in court.

Before any decisions are reached, Davis said, he plans to meet with Blue Cross officials. He said he met with them recently, but little progress was made.

THE BLUE CROSS spokesman said it has been the firm's policy since 1973 to require review of all hospital facilities by a local planning agency before entering into a contract.

Although there are serious problems facing the new hospital, Davis said the backers are not likely to abandon the project. "I don't think those people will do that," he said. "They've already done too much and worked too hard to scrap the plans now."

Davis said the hospital will solicit the support of local organizations to demonstrate the hospital has the backing of the community. "We want to show there is great interest in this hospital," he said.

The 228-bed satellite facility has been proposed for a tract on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling's corporate limits.

The $11.3-million facility would be designed to serve Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

Des Plaines urged to rule on subsidy

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) has asked Des Plaines and Park Ridge officials to decide by Nov. 1 whether they intend to provide subsidies to keep buses rolling.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN's executive director, said Wednesday he hopes Des Plaines officials reach a decision sooner, possibly at the city council meeting Monday evening which he plans to attend.

Des Plaines officials have held talks with both NORTAN and representatives of the Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) over the future of bus operations in the city.

The move was prompted by NORTAN's negotiations with United Motor

Coach to purchase the bus line. The district will probably take control of the bus company later this year.

Once this occurs, the future of 11 bus routes in the city becomes uncertain.

CITY OFFICIALS have been told they would have to pay NORTAN about $85,000 a year to keep the routes in operation. While the CTA also has presented a proposal for providing service, no firm costs estimates are available.

DiJohn said "There are no deadlines as such, but we would certainly like to have some indication as to their intention as soon as possible."

He also said that while the CTA was eliminated from consideration last week as a possible management agent for the district's bus operations, NORTAN officials are still holding informal talks to determine the costs of purchasing service from the CTA for all of the district's bus routes.

"The numbers are being worked up now," DiJohn said. The first proposal submitted by the CTA would have provided only a management agent for the district's bus operations. Any long-range transit studies would have to be contracted for separately.

DiJohn also said the CTA would not have been able to act as the employer for the personnel who would operate and maintain the buses. The district is still considering two management firms to operate the bus and provide planning services.

A final recommendation on hiring the management firm could be made later this month.

Police chief seeks naming of lieutenant

The creation of the rank of lieutenant in the Buffalo Grove Police Dept. is being planned by Chief Harry J. Walsh as a means of increasing command personnel.

Walsh has asked Village Mgr. Daniel Larson to include funds for either one or two lieutenants in the 1975-76 village budget. Larson is responsible for preparing the annual budget proposal, which then is amended and approved by the village board.

"We need them," Walsh said of the lieutenants. There are now none in the department. "We should have a cadre of imaginative people trained."

Walsh added that part of his plan is to be able to share the leadership responsibility that he alone now holds. The promotions would not be made until next May at the earliest, when the budget is approved.

Officials react to actions of Meyer's sales practices

said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

"The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," said Jacobson, and "until I can ask some questions and get some answers, I don't think any additional things can be done."

Jacobson said his first reaction was to wonder "why it was never brought to our attention by the director of public works."

Jacobson said he was concerned that city employees might have been used in sales demonstrations, and added "I would prefer nobody was demonstrating" with city equipment. "Why should the taxpayers be involved in private enterprise?"

Although Scanlan said "I know Roland too well to think he would do anything dishonest," he added he thought the mayor had not used good judgment.

"IF HE WOULD HAVE consulted with me on something like that I would have said 'No, Roland, I wouldn't do it. It just doesn't look good,'" said Scanlan. The alderman said he feels Meyer is "one of the best things that happened to this city," and felt the mayor might be able to justify his firm's sales technique by pointing to other businessmen who demonstrate their product line with satisfied customers. But "I would have said 'no,' I just don't think it's good judgment," said Scanlan.

Huddleston said: "I don't know just what to think about the situation at this point. I'd just like to think about the matter." Waldron agreed, although he noted McEggen proposed the city buy the specialized garbage trucks. "It was his idea for these Kuka Shark trucks and the whole system," noted Waldron.

The fact that the mayor owns Midwest might boost company sales, suggested Waldron. "I think a mayor might have more weight in impressing a prospect ive buyer than any other salesman might," he said suggesting there may be "unfair competition."

ALTHOUGH WEBER said he intends to question Meyer, he added he considers the mayor "the last guy who would put himself in a position where there's any conflict of interest at all or where there's any public disgrace." He said he sees no particular concern if the demonstrations are not interfering with city work schedules or costing taxpayer money.

Eberhard said there is an "indirect" difference between the mayor and other salesmen, but he wants to check the facts further. "I don't go for this kind of stuff. This concerns me quite a bit," he said.

Wuerch saw the details as "good reading," but his only reaction was to say "I don't think the mayor is any different than any other salesman. What does being a mayor of a city have to do with it?" he asked.

Schools adopt new sex ed program for upper grades

by DOROTHY OLIVER
A new sex education curriculum for seventh and eighth graders in River Trails Dist. 28 has been adopted by the board of education.

The two-year program was designed during the summer by teachers Marianne Jezowski and Don Wickorham and was presented to the board at its Tuesday night meeting.

Alan Levin, curriculum director, said sex education was taught last year by a team of outside consultants. This year, he added, the curriculum will be taken over at the district level and taught by teachers.

The seventh-grade curriculum, which will be taught over a four-week period, will deal with the adolescent changes experienced by young people, and with reproduction.

LEVIN STRESSED that the curriculum "emphasizes the normal to alleviate any worries about fast or slow development."

Teachers will discuss not only the physical changes young people experience but the social and emotional changes. Discussions on reproduction will include information on the male and female reproduction systems, fertilization, prenatal development and birth.

Eighth-grade curriculum will review reproduction and delve into the areas of dating and social diseases.

The two teachers who mapped out the new program created a 54-page guide for use by sex education teachers. The guide includes pages of reference material, discussion topics, diagrams, suggested activities, and the district's objectives in teaching each of the subject areas.

FOR EXAMPLE, in the area of emotional aspects of adolescent change, the guide lists as objectives: to identify feelings about bodily changes, and to examine the difference between the emotions that are real and those that are unsubstantiated.

The unit will deal with understanding how bodily changes affect the emotions, handling new sex drives, understanding feelings of independence, control of emotions and acknowledging the desire to make oneself attractive to the opposite sex.

The guide points out there are special topics which teachers should be prepared to consider whenever questions are asked in class.

"A question asked by a student in slang will be answered by the teachers by changing the words to the correct medical term," Levin told the board. He added that questions of sexual technique will not be included in the program.

During their research, the teachers sought advice from the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction's office on how to handle discussions of birth control.

The response from the state, Levin said, was that only a doctor can discuss birth control with a class and students must have written permission from their parents. Teachers should refer questions on the subject back to the parents — pointing out there are religious overtones, he said.

"NOT INCLUDING birth control information is like giving a child a book of matches and not telling him where the extinguisher is," said board member Leora Rosen.

Other board members tagged OSPI's answer as "archaic" and "outdated."

Wickorham, who may be teaching the sex education course, said both he and Jezowski had hoped the board would react in favor of including birth control in the curriculum. He said changes would be made in the guide as teachers work with it and it was possible this addition would be made.

The guide contains recommendations, also approved by the board:

- A sex education curriculum for kindergarten through eighth grade should be developed to emphasize self-understanding, family life, social responsibilities and physical development.

- The process of formulating a sex education curriculum should be an on-going process; deletions and additions should be made as necessary.

- The guide should be evaluated by parents and teachers and should be revised each year based on recommendations.

- Parent meetings should be held to show the specific materials that will be used and answer any questions.

- A parent bookshelf should be established with reference materials for adults.
- Supplementary materials should be purchased.

- No teacher should be forced to teach the curriculum.

- Teachers will have in-service training to help them use the guide and become comfortable with the subject area.

The curriculum will be used this year after initial changes are made by Levin and training workshops are held for instructors.

Firm hired to study costs

Prospect moves to buy water system

Mount Prospect has taken the first step toward purchase of Citizens Utilities Co.'s water and sewer system in the New Town section of the village.

The village board Tuesday voted to hire the firm of M & E/Alstot, March and Guillou Inc., Des Plaines, to conduct a study of the cost of purchasing the utility company's equipment in the north-east portion of the village.

Cost of the appraisal is not to exceed $27,500.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Wednesday the purpose of the appraisal is to determine whether it would be financially feasible for the village to make an offer to the company and assume the water supplying job in that area.

"The study will try to place a price on capital improvements and hopefully determine how the system can be integrated into the village water system," Teichert said. The study also will try to determine if the equipment serving Mount Prospect can be separated from company holdings in other areas, Teichert said.

ACCORDING TO the agreement proposed by George March of the engineering firm, the study will determine the value of the existing water supply and sewer system and figure what other costs, such as short-range capital improvements, financing of the system, purchase and annual maintenance and operation costs would be required. The study also will report on the total cost needed for the purchase, whether the present rate structure would provide the needed revenue and whether the purchase is considered feasible.

Teichert said that if purchase of the equipment is possible the cost would be financed through the sale of revenue bonds which would be retired through the payment of user fees.

Teichert speculated that the ultimate price of purchasing the equipment could be paid off according to the present rate structure charged by Citizens. Due to a recently approved rate increase, about 2,350 households in Mount Prospect that are served by Citizens pay a minimum monthly water rate of $5.35 and a flat sewer charge of $6 per month.

The charge to Citizens customers in Mount Prospect is considerably higher than the cost assessed to village residents who are tied into the village water system.

THE RATE differential is such that a family in the Citizens service area would pay $13.46 a month including a sewer charge for 6,000 gallons of water used compared to a charge of $7 per month to other village residents for the identical service.

"The rate difference is extreme and as it stands there is no relief for the people in the Citizens area," Teichert said. "They don't have a constant supply of water and they still pay a higher cost."

The mayor added that if the Citizens equipment was integrated into the village water system, residents in the New Town area would be assured a constant water supply with good pressure because the village wells could handle the added load.

Teichert said it is possible that if the village purchases the Citizens equipment, rates charged to residents in the New Town area eventually could go down once the revenue bonds are retired. "At least they couldn't be in a worse position than they are now," the mayor said.

NO TIMETABLE for completing the study has been determined but Teichert said he believes the matter is urgent and should receive prompt attention.

"This is way overdue, in my judgment. The people have approached us to consider this and they are the ones who will have to bear the cost," Teichert said.

Although Citizens has said it is not interested in selling any or all of its operation, Teichert said if the village made the company an offer, he expected it would be given serious consideration.

"The ultimate goal in this situation is to provide the people there with better service and lower rates," Gelchert said.

TRUSTEE RICHARD N. Hendricks, the lone dissenter in the vote to proceed with the study, said Wednesday he is not opposed to possible purchase of the utility company.

"My question is whether we should spend $27,000 for a study when it may not be feasible to buy the company at all," Hendricks said.

Hendricks moved to have the matter tabled in favor of waiting for a legal opinion on whether the village has the right to condemn the company if Citizens refuses to sell. Teichert ruled the motion out-of-order contending that the village always has the right of condemnation as a last resort.

"I voted against the motion reluctantly because my concern was not answered," Hendricks said, "but I am in favor of obtaining the company in order to get those people on village water."

$500,000 school tax warrants apparently lost

A total of $500,000 worth of negotiable tax anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 39 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said.

The loss does not affect the school district because the institutions are responsible for any loss if the warrants are cashed, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration. Both institutions will post bonds 1½ times greater than the warrants to insure payment if the originals are cashed.

The Dist. 39 Board of Education authorized issuance of duplicate tax warrants to replace the originals earlier this week.

ACCORDING TO PERRY, the action will allow the district to pay the debt as planned and remove any possibility of tarnishing the district's credit rating with bonding companies.

The two institutions are Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis and Kinder, Peabody & Co., a New York-based brokerage firm, said Harold Erlandson, Elk Grove Township school treasurer.

William Schumway, attorney for the school treasurer, refused to supply any information from the warrant-sale documents in his possession, saying he didn't want to "embarrass" the two institutions involved. Schumway contended that the information is confidential.

Edward Gesme, an official in the bonds and investment department at Northwestern National, said he knows nothing about the lost warrants.

ANOTHER BANK OFFICER however said he was vaguely aware of the situation but didn't know any details.

Gesme did say it was possible Northwestern National was holding the bonds for "one of our clients — maybe a country bank."

The warrants are a means to borrow against anticipated tax revenue. They were issued against 1973 tax monies.

The warrants are to be paid off when the tax money is received and will expire in six months, Perry said. Tax money is now starting to come in.

The loss of three of the tax warrants was discovered in June, according to Erlandson. The district was expecting part of the tax levy to come in and the township treasurer issued a call for the three warrants to the Minnesota Bank. The bank was unable to locate the warrants, he said.

The second set of warrants was discovered missing Sept. 28 when the treasurer issued another call for the warrants from the East Coast firm. Erlandson said that apparently the brokerage firm holding the bonds merged with another firm and lost the warrants during the merger.

"WE'RE GLAD TO GET some of this cleared up," said Erlandson. "We paid off three of the warrants yesterday (Tuesday)."

The treasurer pointed out that the mix-up was going to be an additional expense to the township school trustees, a body which has control over local school district funds. "Someone has to take care of the paperwork," he said referring to the trustees, "and it's going to cost somebody somewhere along the line."

Erlandson said he had no idea what the cost involved would be.

JODI PALMER, left, and Geri Illy rehearse for a scene in "Charter Flight '74" a variety show to be presented Oct. 11 and Oct. 12 at 7 p.m. at St. Alphonsus Church, 411 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. Ethnic foods and beverages will be served. Tickets are available from Donna Leonard, 537-0908; Joan Zak, 253-8286; and Connie Reed, 255-7648. The show will include six make-believe trips around the world.

Missouri prof tells teachers:

'Career education' helps kids throughout life

by WANDALYN RICE

"Career Education" is another name for "personalized education" and will help students learn to make the decisions that will affect the rest of their lives, a professor from the University of Missouri told a group of Northwest suburban teachers Tuesday.

Norman Gysbers, professor of education at Missouri and the author of several books on career education, told teachers associated with the Elementary Vocational Education (EVE) project, that "career education really encompasses all of education — it involves the English teacher, the Latin teacher and the fine arts teachers."

EVE is a project involving four local elementary districts. The project, operated through the Northwest Education Cooperative, runs teacher-training programs to help elementary teachers learn how to teach elementary children about careers and career planning.

GYSBERS SAID THAT some people think career education "is simply a new title for vocational and technical education," but he said it is more than that. Career education can instead help students decide on vocations and on how they want to relate to all other roles they will have in life, he said.

"Some people tend to equate a career with an occupation," he said, "but I think that's a misuse. The world has occupations, but people have careers. We need to look at the career concept as encompassing all of a person's roles."

He cautioned the teachers that some people will be hostile to the idea of career education. "Some people view this as the Trojan horse built by vocational educators and drawn up to the gates of a liberal education. They see it as a watering down of education," he said.

Also, he said, some people are sceptic-

"I DON'T REALLY think all work has dignity. I think people have dignity and sometimes they take that dignity to their work," said Norman Gysbers, a professor of education at the University of Missouri.

al of career education. The sceptics, he said, may believe that career education is designed to foster the "work ethic" in children or is only meant for students who will not be going to college.

"FOR MOST PEOPLE, their work is central to their lives," Gysbers said, "but the viewpoint that career education is just about work is too narrow. While we have to focus on the work ethic, we also have to focus on the life ethic in which all work has meaning."

He added, "I don't really think all work has dignity. I think people have dignity and sometimes they take that dignity to their work."

Career education is also not just for students who are not going to college, he said, because "people who go to college also have careers." He said career education can be applied when teachers take children on field trips and focus on the people who work somewhere rather than on the machinery and the product.

IN ADDITION, HE said that published information about different jobs is just one part of career education. "Most career information is written by labor economists to answer questions labor economists ask — not to answer the questions kids ask," he said.

"We have to get young people involved in developing their own information. One of the most important curriculum purchases you can make is a tape recorder and a Polaroid camera," he said. Using the tape recorder and camera, he added, "You can send a couple of kids out as an investigative team to find out about jobs and come back and report to the class."

Most particularly, Gysbers said, teacher should not expect to buy prepackaged classroom materials and make career education a small part of a regular school day. "It would be easy for me to say to you that you can buy career education from a commercial publisher and put it on between nine and ten in the morning," he said. "But that is not what career education is."

Corn and soybeans damaged

Frost reaps early harvest statewide

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — The corn and soybean crop damage wreaked earlier on northern Illinois fields was spread into other parts of the state by this week's frosts, the University of Illinois Agricultural Service reported in a special issue Wednesday.

A light frost Monday night was followed by a hard freeze Tuesday that killed corn and soybean plants in central Illinois, and damage extended into southern Illinois, the service reported. Earlier frosts already had killed crops in the northern part of the state.

Late planted corn and soybeans will be severely damaged by the frost and yields will be reduced, the university's investigators said.

As of Wednesday, agronomists and county extension advisers gave this picture of crop and weather conditions:

• Southern Illinois: Frost with temperatures down to 30 degrees hit southern Illinois Tuesday night causing damage to corn and soybeans, said Dale Millis, U. of I. area agronomist at Brownstown.

The extent of the damage will not be known for a few days, Millis said, but drooping soybean leaves and watery spots on corn leaves are sure signs of injury. The frost came too soon for many late planted fields to escape damage and yields will be reduced. Harvest is running behind schedule due to late planting and less than ideal weather conditions during the growing season, Millis said.

• Eastern Illinois: Freezing temperatures Tuesday night took care of the possibility of anything continuing to grow, said Earl Bantz, Champaign County extension advisor.

Corn and soybean plants are now dead and yields will be down on those that were planted late. Bantz reported that some harvesting is under way with soybean yields ranging from 18 to 40 bushels per acre. Reported corn yields are near the 100 bushel mark.

• Western Illinois: A hard freeze Tuesday night with temperatures dropping as low as 26 degrees killed corn and soybean plants in Adams County, said Ronald G. Dedert, extension adviser. A light freeze the previous night had done minimal damage.

"I'd estimate 75 to 80 per cent of the crop was past frost danger," Dedert said, but corn planted as late as June 24 had just dented and will be damaged considerably, and some soybeans planted in the middle of July will probably produce nothing.

• Northern Illinois: Frost hit northern Illinois again early this week but D. E. Mulvaney, U. of I. area agronomist at De Kalb, said the latest frost made little difference as the damage already was done.

Soybean harvest has started, with yields ranging from 20 to 35 bushels per acre, Mulvaney said.

"Yields at our Elwood research field are running 8 to 10 bushels per acre below the four-year average," he said. Farmers still are harvesting some corn for silage; however, only seed corn companies are harvesting corn grain, he said.

Elrod addresses rookies

Sheriff Richard J. Elrod was guest speaker at ceremonies for 28 policemen who completed the Chicago Police Training Academy course last week.

"Law enforcement must be a dialog between the police officer and the community," he said.

Included in the police class were Hoffman Estates policemen Ronald Harper and Michael Meyers.

Elrod also announced that two other Northwest suburban policemen — Melvin Mack of Elk Grove Village and Sgt. William Graham of Des Plaines — are enrolled in a series of three-week Spanish language courses.

About 40 members of the Cook County League of Women Voters, including members from Arlington Heights, toured the Criminal Courts Building and the Department of Corrections with Elrod.

Unlucky Expert's last chance

The Olympiad game was over and the Unlucky Expert rushed up to us with his tale of woe.

He started, "I guess I am the only declarer in the entire continent who didn't make four hearts on board twelve."

"I guess you are," we replied. "What happened?"

"West opened the six of diamonds," was the first part of the reply. He continued: "I saw no reason to hop with dummy's king. Nobody leads away from an ace against a preempt. My queen won the trick and I promptly slipped the jack of spades on the table. East thought a while and played low so West won with the queen. He led back a trump and there was no way for me to avoid the loss of three spades and a diamond."

For once in our lives we have to sympathize with him. We doubt if anyone else anywhere in the world was faced with that low diamond lead.

However, we think that he should have run off all seven trumps after winning that first trick and see if East and West would have found the right discards.

The environment

Energy experts probe atomic plants

by LEA TONKIN

Energy experts Dixie Lee Ray of the Atomic Energy Commission and federal administrator John Sawhill continue to bank on the increased use of nuclear power to meet the nation's demand for power. Yet environmental critics such as the Palatine based Pollution and Environmental Problems Inc., and the Lake Michigan Federation are calling for added restriction of nuclear power plant development.

"We in Illinois are particularly concerned about the problems — not the promises — of nuclear power," said Mrs. Catherine Quigg, PEP vice president.

"We face one of the highest potential concentrations of radiation pollution in the United States, from six nuclear power plants, including the world's largest at Zion and General Electric's reprocessing plant at Morris." Operating difficulties have stalled the opening of the Morris facility.

The Atomic Energy Commission Sept. 20 instructed operators of all boiling water nuclear reactors to conduct detailed examinations of welds in small auxiliary pipes in the system that circulates water to cool the nuclear fuel. The examination is aimed at determining whether cracks or flaws exist in any of these pipes. Two Commonwealth Edison Co. nuclear power units — Dresden and the Quad Cities in Illinois — recently were shut down because pipe cracks developed in their cooling systems.

The chances of a "meltdown" from a cooling system failure, or a major accident are as likely as those of a meteorite falling, said an AEC spokesman. Yet Mrs. Quigg contends that the meltdown hazard has yet to be solved.

While some financial experts congratulate Edison for its ability to turn out electric power at lower cost than oil-dependent utilities, Mrs. Quigg contends that the Illinois distinction as a frontrunner in the nuclear power field is a dubious honor. Approximately one-third of Edison's electric power supply is generated at its nuclear stations.

At the GE reprocessing plant at Morris, Mrs. Quigg said the AEC has warned that "of all types of shipments spent fuel rods and high level waste represent the highest potential risk to the citizens of the state." The unit is designed to extract plutonium and uranium from spent nuclear fuel.

Power plant cleanup ordered

The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday ordered most of the nation's power plants to cut down the amount of heated water and chemicals discharged into streams. The $4.1 billion program will eventually add 1.5 percent to the consumers' electric bills, said EPA administrator Russell Train.

The new regulations will apply to power plants incorporating more than 3,000 generating units, Train said.

Exemptions are provided for power plants at which it can be shown that heated discharges do not have an adverse impact on the fish population in surrounding waters. The cleanup will cost $1.4 billion to control chemical discharges and $2.7 billion to control thermal discharges.

Lake Michigan sediment studied

Scientists are taking a close look at the bottom of Lake Michigan to help determine whether the lake will end up as polluted as Lake Erie. A team of researchers from Argonne

National Laboratory and the University of Michigan recently spent 10 days gathering samples of sediment from the lake.

David Edgington of Argonne's Radiological and Environmental Research Division, said analysis of the samples indicates the sedimentation of heavy metals has increased during the past 35 years because of high lake levels and increased shore erosion. He said that approximately 13 million tons of sediment including heavy metals from radioactive materials, automotive exhausts and industrial wastes enter the Lake Michigan each year.

Scientists hope to determine whether changes are occurring and what the effect will be on the lake. One process they are studying is eutrophication, among the causes of Lake Erie pollution.

Shortage of sea lampreys

Sea lampreys hit record low: A catch of 1,911 sea lampreys in Lake Superior this year is the most encouraging development to date in the 18-year battle to control the undesirable fish. Data recently released by the Dept. of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service indicate populations of the parasite are more than 90 per cent lower than they were in 1961. In that peak year, sea lampreys virtually wiped out other fish species including the lake trout in the Great Lakes. The trout are now showing signs that they will become self sustaining.

EPA bans two pesticides

The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency banned further production of the pesticides dieldrin and aldrin for agricultural use. The regulation allows existing supplies of the chemical to be used by corn producers. The National Pest Control Assn. adds that the restriction does not affect the use of the chemicals to control termites in homes. Shell Chemical produces the two chemicals.

Dems expected to control Assembly

by ROBERT KIECKHEFER
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The conventional wisdom has it that Democrats will win control of both houses of the Illinois General Assembly in the Nov. 5 general election.

Should that assessment prove correct, it probably would boost Gov. Daniel Walker's national political ambitions: possibly save House Speaker W. Robert Blair's political life; and almost certainly reflect national and local issues, rather than statewide concerns.

The breakdown of the legislative ballot is this:

• Republicans now control each house of the legislature by a single vote. It has been nearly 40 years since the GOP lost the governor's mansion and both legislative houses simultaneously.

• Twenty of the Senate's 50 seats are up for election. Twelve of those seats currently are held by Republicans, eight by Democrats. All eight Democrats are running for another term, while only 10 of the 12 Republicans will be on the ballot.

• All 177 House seats are up for election.

ANALYSTS FROM both parties believe the House will have a four-to 10-vote Democratic margin when the 79th General Assembly convenes next January. The Senate, the opinion goes, will be Democratic by between one and three votes. Even among Republican strategists, it's difficult to find anyone who seriously believes the GOP can retain control of either house.

Election '74

It's also difficult, though, to find anyone who can convincingly say why Democrats should sweep both houses this year.

Legislators say they're hitting local issues in their campaigns — issues ranging from the Regional Transit Authority in the northeast to the Oakley Dam in the Champaign-Decatur area. They also cite an expected national reaction to presidential misdeeds and pardons, though Democrats say they're not relying on such a trend actually showing up in ballot counts.

But, almost to a man, the candidates say no statewide issue — even the eternal promise of tax relief — has excited voters. That situation, they fear, could contribute to an unprecedented low voter turnout the first Tuesday in November.

THE LEGISLATIVE campaign, though, holds a great deal of interest for Walker. The governor, apparently hoping to identify himself nationally as an architect of Democratic triumph, is planning a major campaign effort on behalf of his party's candidates, whether they want his help or not.

The effort reportedly will include both money and personal campaigning. The money will come from the Walker-run Illinois Democratic Fund which still hasn't paid off Walker's 1972 campaign debt. The campaigning will feature Walker in his "meet the people" role and deputy governor Victor de Grazia as a strategist.

Walker operatives say their polls show the governor is a "potent, persuasive" force statewide, and thus, should help Democrats engaged in close races.

Some of those Democrats, though, don't want the governor's help. And others believe his main concern is his own future, rather than their election.

Rock Island County Democratic Chairman John Gianulis, for example, said last week it "would definitely hurt us" if it became known that de Grazia was working for Democrats in the 38th District.

"WE'RE TRYING to elect two Democrats here and we think we have a good chance to do it," Gianulis said. "Ho (de Grazia) has the interests of only one guy at heart — Dan Walker."

It's one of those interesting little ironies of Illinois politics that a Democratic takeover in the House could be a political lifesaver for the Republican speaker.

It is widely assumed that Blair has gubernatorial ambitions for 1976 or later. To keep those ambitions alive, he will have to retain his leadership post, either as speaker or as minority leader.

But Blair has made some blood enemies on his own side of the aisle — some as a result of the bitter speaker-ship race he won two years ago, others because of his position on the RTA, and still others who object to the manner in which he has used his power as speaker. Those enemies could deny Blair the 89 votes he would need for reelection as speaker should the GOP keep control of the House.

If his party is out of power, though, Blair would need only a majority of his own members for election as minority leader. If, for instance, there were 87 Republicans, he would need only 44 votes for election.

HIS CHANCES would be much better — although still not certain — under those circumstances.

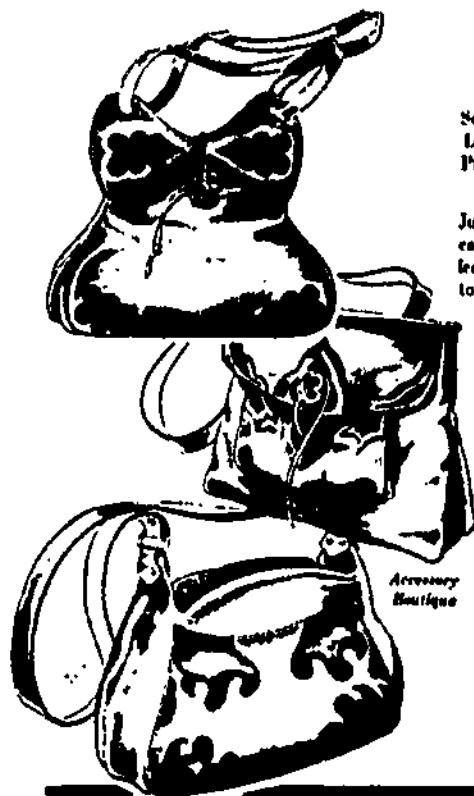

A Democratic House victory likely would hand the speaker's gavel to the current minority leader, Rep. Clyde Choate of Anna. The only real threat to Choate would be the opposition of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Sens. Cecil Pardee, D-Chicago, and William Harris, R-Pontiac, seem relatively secure in their leadership positions.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

All calories are the same

My husband and I have an argument concerning calories. He claims one can eat even 500 calories in fat, butter, or sweet cream, and not get fat — sick maybe, but not fat. I disagree very much.

He is 5 feet 6 inches, weighs 210 pounds and is 67. He is trying to lose weight and says it doesn't matter what he eats as long as he doesn't overeat his 3,000 calories a day. I disagree again. Some days he doesn't eat at all, drinks coffee all day, to cut his appetite he says. I think this is wrong also. It's bad for your nervous system. He's very irritable when he drinks all that coffee. Who is right?

I don't think he is going to lose much weight on 3,000 calories regardless of what kind of food it is, unless as you say, it makes him sick. He will probably need to cut down well below that level unless he is far more active physically than I would guess him to be.

The important thing in losing weight is how many calories you eat (whether it is fat, carbohydrate or protein), and how many calories your body uses. A calorie is a calorie whether it comes from protein food or carbohydrate. Think of it like your checking account. The balance, what you weigh, is always the accumulative result of what you have eaten and absorbed into your body against the amount you have used.

Those crash diets on a diet are not a good approach. The goal of a diet is to lose excess fat safely and keep it off. Your husband would do much better to be on a well-planned, balanced diet, low enough in calories to cause a slow but steady loss of fat. Then he should stick to that diet or add a few calories for maintenance once he has gotten down to the desired level. Too much coffee can be harmful.

About 30 years ago a doctor advised my brother-in-law to stop smoking or else his legs would give out on him. But he refused to quit so now after walking one block he must stop to rest, and he is unable to drive his car because of his weak legs. Did cigarettes really cause his legs to get that weak? If so how?

Probably. There is a particularly rapid form of obstruction of the opening of the arteries that is stimulated by tobacco. It is called Buerger's disease. As the opening in the arteries in the legs fills up it becomes impossible to increase the blood flow to them.

When you walk or run or use a muscle you must increase the blood flow to deliver oxygen and more nutrients. When you can't do this the leg muscles develop severe cramps or pain. By resting a few minutes to allow the circulation to catch up with the needs of the muscle the pain usually goes away. The muscles lose their strength and deteriorate.

As obstruction progresses some people develop gangrene and require an amputation. The disease can affect the hands, too. It is absolutely essential for these people to quit smoking.

Hospital to sponsor series of seminars

Is cancer increasing? When should parents call a pediatrician? How does a terminal illness affect family relationships?

These and other questions will be answered during a series of five community health education programs sponsored by Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge and suburban churches. The programs will be held at area churches during October.

The schedule of seminars is as follows:

'Human Ecology' is symbolized...

Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, has unveiled its first official symbol that, hospital officials say, visually translates the hospital's concept of Human Ecology.

"Human Ecology can briefly be described by the understanding and treatment of the human being as a whole person in light of his relationship to God, himself, his family and the society in which he lives," said T. L. Jacobsen, executive vice president of the hospital.

"This is the philosophical cornerstone of Lutheran General and has guided us since the hospital opened," he said.

The circle around the hands and figure represents the continuous service available from the hospital's health-care team and its facilities.

The Nixon pardon further erodes public's faith in government

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The summer of expectation has passed into an autumn of apprehension in Washington. August's surge of confidence has gone flat, replaced by a September and October of confusion and vague fear.

The summer was a time of tension — breath holding — with all attention fixed on the terminal struggles of a doomed presidency. When it ended, relief washed over the city like one of the rare summer cool weather highs that free Washington from its swampy heat.

The first days of the new administration were almost giddy, as witness the attention given to presidential miffing. But there was a deeper sense of new motion, of confidence restored, of release from a sucking bog.

The pardon was like walking into wall in the dark. The effect was disorientation more than anger; what had seemed to be an open road led only into yet another maze.

Still, it was not the nightmare returned. It was more like being slapped awake from a pleasant dream and forced to face a real world where facts change slowly.

Last fall, a Senate subcommittee headed by Edmund Muskie of Maine hired the Louis Harris organization to make a full-scale national survey on public attitudes toward government and society. The results were devastating — the single most publicized finding was that people trusted their trash collectors more than those who operate just about any other institution, and that 53 per cent of the public agreed with the statement that "there is something deeply wrong in America."

Using questions he has asked for eight years, Harris found a 31 per cent increase in the number of people — 76 per cent — who agreed with the statement: "The rich get richer and the poor get poorer." There were majorities as well — for the first time — for the statements: "What you think doesn't count much any more" and "People running the country don't really care what happens to you."

These questions are part of a scale of "alienation and powerlessness." It is on the basis of these and other similar results that experts substantiate what politicians report from their forays among the people — the public is turned off.

Muskie has a private office in the basement of the Capitol, reached by following a twisting corridor past the walk-in refrigerators of the Senate restaurant. He goes there to work and think — and recently, to talk — without interruption.

"The crisis of confidence we talked about in our subcommittee report still exists," he said. "It was something deeper seated than Watergate."

"The initial reaction to the succession of President Ford showed some promise of reversing these trends, but the pardon, the reaction, seems to have undone some of the gains."

Muskie slouched in a heavy leather chair, speaking slowly, sorting his thoughts.

"Something more than cosmetics, public relations, is needed. Even that period of reversing these trends, but the pardon, the reaction, seems to have undone some of the gains."

personal lives, and the people want "concrete evidence" of improvement "before they offer their confidence again."

The people also demand "more openness, less secrecy, integrity," Muskie said, and the new President "sensed this" in stating the theme of his administration.

Muskie turned to the findings of the 1973 survey. He said "I would be amazed" if the percentage of the public believing that wealth begets wealth and poverty gets worse had not increased with "the energy crisis and the profits of the oil companies."

As for the public's sense that its opinions are not heard, Muskie saw the possibility of an improvement over the year: "They may feel a little more reassured as a result of the resignation."

But he believes the feeling of alienation between the rank and file and the nation's leadership has not really improved. "People want to see results."

Muskie returned to the pardon, expressing personal concern "for the intensity of reaction to it" experienced in a recent three-day trip back to Maine. "Ford had a great opportunity," Muskie said, "... but he's let them down."

The people Muskie talked to "were mad at Ford, not Nixon."

But he worries more about the loss of confidence in government itself — "The feeling that the government doesn't run the country," that powerful interests were calling the shots. He agreed that this had always been an undercurrent in the population but expressed the belief that the advent of an activist federal establishment under Franklin Roosevelt had "substantially minimized this feeling."

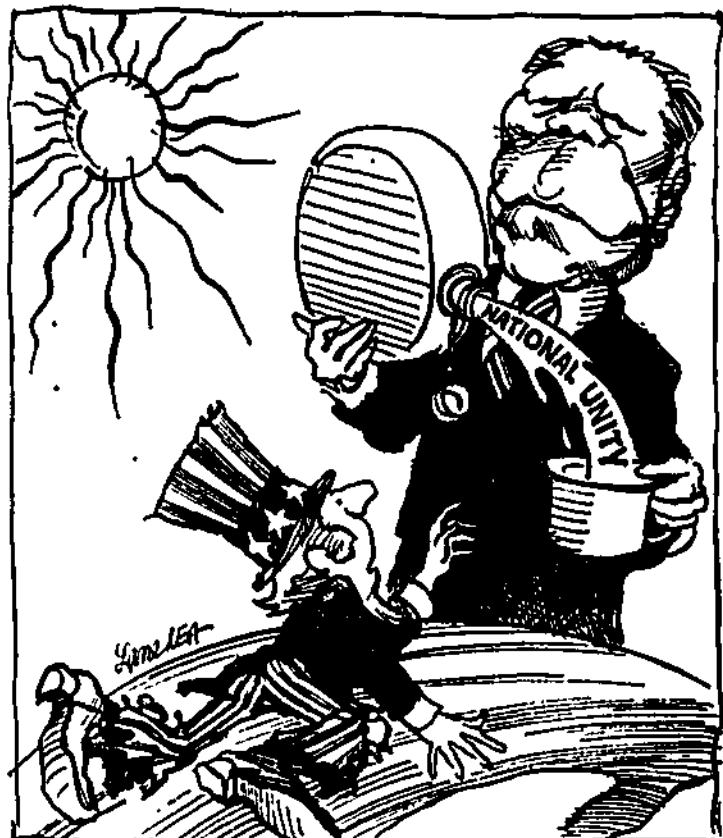

Washington, as has been said many times by its critics, is a company town. To the extent that is true, the Capitol and the government agencies that operate there are the factory; the White House is the nerve center, the head office. It is there, behind the fence, that the tone of the city is set.

Two glimpses of the last five weeks tell something of a story. In his first full week, the new President called delegations of governors and mayors to Washington to pledge his cooperation. Waiting for the conference to end, reporters lounged in groups on the lawn outside the White House. It was a sight not recently seen on that uptight campus, and finally someone in the Press Office told the police to ask the reporters to stop lying around on the grass. The request was politely made and just as politely accepted. The reporters moved.

Three weeks later, the President went to a downtown hotel to address the Republican National Committee. At least half an hour before his arrival, the Secret Service shut off the main lobby corridor from the meeting room to the press room. A reporter, wearing both national committee and White House credentials, was stopped trying to get to the press room telephones. When he insisted and started to walk through, he was restrained, and a loud, angry scene ensued.

At the end of the interview, Muskie was told that one unpublished in-depth survey of public attitudes was expected to show mounting concern with the state of the nation, but continued sense of increased personal well-being.

He shook his head. "That's not what I get. Fear. Old people, young people, everyone — fear."

Mirage?

Education comes first

The priority in High School Dist. 214's study of possible additions to its schools should be on educational facilities — not on frills like swimming pools.

In addition, the citizens committee which is being established to study building needs should consider particularly the needs of Arlington High School, the oldest building in the district.

The Dist. 214 board of education recently agreed to form a citizens committee to study the possibility of making additions and doing remodeling work in the district's eight high schools. The committee will be formed soon and will begin to consider a long list of building needs compiled by school officials.

The study is particularly appropriate at this time because, for the first time in years, Dist. 214 is not planning or building a new high school. As enrollment growth has slackened, it makes sense to go back and look at the buildings to see what is needed.

However, we are concerned that the group of parents who first suggested the study seemed to place much of their emphasis on the need for swimming pools and fieldhouses, rather than on improvements in the instructional areas of the schools.

True, most of the schools probably need increased physical education facilities in order to accommodate expanding girls' athletics. Federal law will probably soon require that girls be given the same access to gymnasiums that boys enjoy — and that will mean the need for more space.

However, physical education and athletics should never become the tail that wags the educational dog. We are particularly unconvinced that all of Dist. 214's schools need swimming pools, since several of the district's schools have pools built cooperatively with the park districts. It seems unnecessary that the other schools be provided pools at the expense of all the taxpayers in Dist. 214.

The schools in Dist. 214 do need improvements, however. The list of proposals compiled by local school officials includes such things as increased storage space, remodeling of art and vocational education facilities and other improvements.

In looking at the list of needs, the citizens committee will probably want to choose something for each high school, an action that will probably be necessary if voters are to be persuaded to approve a referendum to finance the changes.

However, the committee should remember that some schools in the district, particularly the oldest school, Arlington, are likely to need much more than the newest schools.

Arlington High School is, after all, 50 years old. While Prospect High School is youthful by comparison, it, too, is showing its age. These two schools should receive special consideration when the citizens' committee and the board consider improvements.

O'Connor uproar 'inconsequential'

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

It is not a matter of consuming concern to me — and I think Len O'Connor might be startled to learn that it doesn't dominate the worry of most residents of the Chicago area — whether he gets fired by NBC News.

It would be a matter of more than a little concern to me if the whole question of his firing, or quitting, or whatever, really centered around the question of his First Amendment rights, as he would have us believe.

I have for a good many years delighted in Len O'Connor's nasal whining about the ineptitudes, inequities and inertia of that monster we call government. His grasp of government and politics, particularly politics, is precise, and his acerbic sarcasm has served on more than a few occasions to derail stupid government programs or to prick the balloons of pompous demagogues.

He is, from my limited observation of him, not the kind of journalist who inspires a great deal of affection among his colleagues in the news business.

Operating as he does in a sphere of journalism suffering from a schizophrenic confusion over the difference between newsman and vaudeville performers, that is understandable enough.

Having circulated in that sphere for three decades and more, O'Connor has some rather creditable claim to the title of dean of Chicago journalism, and it is not surprising that a touch of prima donna has crept into his demeanor.

It is precisely because of his proven competence and his prominence as a Chicago journalist that O'Connor's petulant behavior on prime time television works a disservice to his profession and to the public.

It is of no great moment to the television audience whether Len O'Connor agrees with everything his bosses decide.

But to take advantage of his position as a television commentator to blow a dispute with the management of WMAQ-TV and the network into the proportions of an attack on his constitutional right of free speech is an abuse — albeit an inconsequential one — of that very right.

From O'Connor's own account, his complaint against the network boils down to the fact that one of the public officials on whom he has exercised his acerbic tongue was offered an opportunity to appear on another program on the same station to tell his side of the story.

To allow one of his victims a chance to talk back, O'Connor is telling us, is an attack on his (O'Connor's) God-given right to vent his spleen. Well, what happened to the other fellow's right?

It is a bit perplexing to try to comprehend O'Connor's charges that his freedom of speech is being trampled on by his bosses when for three consecutive nights those very bosses allow him to go before their television cameras to carp about them.

How O'Connor figures that giving another man the right to voice his views infringes on his own right to do so is a bit hard to follow.

The right to freedom of expression is a precious commodity. What O'Connor seems to have lost sight of is that it is not a right vested only in television commentators or movie critics or newspaper columnists. It is a right vested in the people.

That Len O'Connor happens to make a living through the daily exercise of that right does not give him any special proprietary interest in it.

Instead, it imposes upon him an extraordinary responsibility to defend and preserve it. By invoking his First Amendment right in a fit of professional jealousy, he demeans that which belongs to all of us.

If O'Connor has not come to understand that in some 40 years of the practice of journalism, it is not likely that it is going to come through to him in the next 40.

Schaumburg's board hit

How much longer do the citizens of Schaumburg have to put up with insults, patronizing comments and "you're out of order" rhetoric from "our" village board? The Sept. 10 board meeting was an incredible event compared in its glory to a dogfight. Must citizens who properly and respectfully address the board be treated to the grand inquisition i.e., "What's that chart? Is this new information? How long have you lived in the village?" It's a wonder they don't ask if one is a member of ROOST (Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township), the highest crime of all, next to not living in the village a certain magical number of years.

I deeply regret criticizing one of our trustees at the meeting, as he is a friend and neighbor, but he must learn to hold his tongue when a citizen attempts to address the board. Personal animosities must never interfere with freedom of speech at a public meeting, unless the citizen is "truly" out of order.

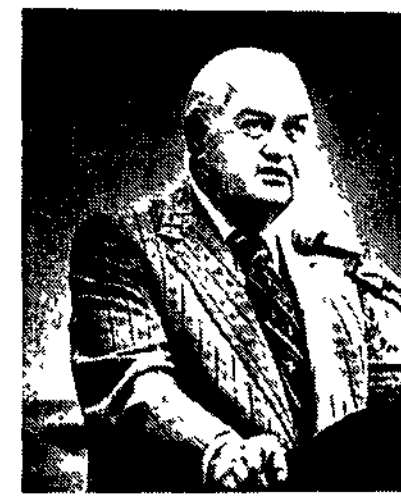

Obviously it rankles many (not all) of

letters to the editor

these village officials to see citizens step before the podium who have been proven right on important issues before the board. As an example, while this board was fighting over a peat bog for a hospital, soner voices were recommending other sites. Ultimately, these voices were proven right. Granted, it must be embarrassing to be in error but still no excuse for denying the constitutional rights of Schaumburg citizens to speak out on various issues.

Women still not welcome at Kiwanis; gals say, 'Nuts'

by DAIRY SIGALE

The reaction ranges from livid to what's-the-big-deal but it is clear that members of women's-rights groups across-the-board don't care for the Kiwanis Club regulation restricting women from membership.

"I think it's shocking" that public service organizations can have a discriminatory policy against women, said Sherry Rothenberg, chairperson of the women's rights committee of the American Civil Liberties Union and a lawyer in a sex-discrimination suit against nine private Chicago clubs.

"It's silly, they're playing games they should have stopped playing when they were seven years old," said Mrs. Jan Tucker of Arlington Heights, a member of the American Assn. of University Women and its Women Today study group.

"It's not really a big thing with me," said Mrs. Linda Hayes, also an AAUW member who added that organizations discriminating against both women and men are "being a little narrow-minded."

THE THREE WOMEN were responding to a question surrounding the suspension of a Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club chapter for breaking the rules of the charter by allowing women to join and to a query about discrimination against women in general. The Kiwanis situation may have a greater impact locally because of the presence of a woman, Mary Clark, on the Elk Grove Village Kiwanis rolls.

"If the word black would be substituted for the word woman we (society) would be outraged," said the ACLU chairperson. She said the group could practically do what it wants with its membership if it is a private organization but when it assumes a public posture it is subject to government rules and regulations. This means, she said, their actions may be in violation of federal and state laws, something that eventually will be tested in court.

Mrs. Tucker, who made it clear she is not an official spokesman for AAUW ("I can't speak for them, I would need local approval, state approval, national approval and probably God's approval"), said, "If a woman wants to be in Kiwanis and can be helpful she should be allowed to join."

MRS. HAYES THREW in a twist to the topic of discrimination. "Ultimately," she said, "women's and men's organizations will have to invite members of the opposite sex to join," with women's groups having to put their actions into words by having men members. The League of Women Voters has already done this but many women's organizations, including AAUW, have only female membership.

Still, a spokesman for Kiwanis International, the ruling body of the worldwide service organization, said Miss Clark's membership in the Elk Grove Village chapter would force the board of directors at its February meeting to take action according to its constitution.

"We'll call it to their attention to either get rid of her or get out," he said. Then he added, "that's a terrible thing but that's the way it is." He said there has been no organized pressure from any outside groups to force Kiwanis to change its policy, though he said, "My secretary seems to be giving me a bad time, lately."

MEL YOUNG SINGS AGAIN...

"Early deer, it worked like a charm!" Quirk beg for her favorite location. Emily and Barbara Young, already on the way to the living room of "House of Hair" Beauty Salon Department, started taking the latest chapter of the successful comeback in the singing career of Mel Young, her husband, well-known singer and entertainer of Arlington Heights.

Mel Young loves to sing. Blessed with a rich, deep baritone and fantastic stage presence, he entertains at small and large gatherings and social occasions. It was Barbara herself who brought up the subject of Mel's hair, or the lack of it, with Emily. Bookings were dropping off, and it was obvious that, while Mel's voice was as good as ever, the appearance of a bald singer could use some lift.

An intercom call brought George Perry up from the private, lower level floor for men. A skilled, experienced craftsman with 20 years' experience in all phases of Hair Replacement, George set up an appointment for a private demonstration. With only Barbara present in this male sanctuary, different Demo Hairpieces were tried on. Eventually Mel settled on an off-the-face, medium length "boy league" with about 10% grey hair sprinkled at the temples. That distinguished, yet young look seemed a sure winner both on stage and in personal life.

Then came the technical work, essential to preparation for a custom-made Hair Replacement. Scalp-Mold impressions, scalp color matching, hair samples for color, texture, dispersion, quality, and other small but vital details needed for thoroughly professional job. In 3 weeks Mel came for a final fitting, cutting and shaping of his new-completed custom Hair Replacement.

A rejuvenated Mel Young has one more promise to keep — to perform for the new Kiwanis Club of Arlington Heights as a personal favor to his "top man," George Perry, who is a charter member.

It is interesting to note that Mel's Hair Replacement is only a part of "House of Hair" Custom Hair Workshop. A considerable amount of work is done in specialized field of corrective hair replacement for children and women, who for various medical and hereditary reasons, suffer permanent or temporary hair loss.

Roe named vice president, general manager for the Paddock Corporation

The appointment of David A. Roe to the newly created position of vice president and general manager of The Paddock Corporation has been announced by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

Paddock said Roe's appointment was "the first in a series of steps that will strengthen our management structure, bring closer coordination of effort among all areas of our firm, and enhance our growth potential."

Roe, 38, will assume responsibility for operations of The Paddock Corporation's two subsidiary companies: Paddock Publications, publisher of the daily Herald, and Paddock Circle Newspapers, publisher of seven weeklies in Lake County.

Paddock described Roe as "a man with unmatched background in broad business and editorial areas of suburban newspapers and a unique perspective on suburban-urban publishing."

THE NEW executive earned the B.S. and M.S. in Journalism degrees from Northwestern University, where he was graduated with honors. He joined Hollister Newspapers of suburban Wilmette (now Pioneer Press) in 1959 and quickly advanced through editorial management to become editor and publisher in 1963. He was a director, vice president and publisher from 1963 to 1969, when the newspapers were purchased by Time Inc.

In 1970, Roe joined the Washington (D.C.) Post, where his first assignment was manager of special projects. He subsequently advanced to production controller, assistant to the general manager and assistant to the president.

He later served as vice president-operations and a director for Park Newspapers Inc., Ithaca, N.Y., before accepting a position in October 1973 as assistant to the president of The Paddock Corporation. In November, he assumed additional duties as acting director of sales and marketing for Paddock Publications.

Roe and his wife, Judith, are parents of three sons and live in Inverness.

A's, Caray, President Ford, Gibron...and other 'big' things

Even Leo Durocher could manage the Oakland A's.

When the major league baseball season began, I thought the A's wouldn't be the same without Dick Williams. I was wrong.

Just about anybody can manage the A's, as Alvin Dark has proved. And, it seems, only a major catastrophe could stop them over the next few years.

This is still a young dynasty. Bert Campaneris is one of just two mainstays over 30 at 32. Sal Bando's 30. Five others — Reggie Jackson, Ken Holtzman, Jim Hunter, Roland Fingers and Joe Rudi — are 23. Then there's Gene Tenace (27), Bill North (26) and Vida Blue (25).

No team has won more than two straight championships since the Yankee dynasty of 1949-55. The A's appear ready for their third in a row.

AND SPEAKING OF BASEBALL, where was NBC when we needed it most? I'm referring to Monday Night Baseball.

The past two Mondays have been crucial to divisional races, but baseball seems to be afraid of the pro football competition. If NBC could have aired a key game the past two weeks at 7 p.m. our time, it might have hurt the ratings of football which comes on at 8 p.m.

Fans suffer through the so-so games and the meaningless matchups during the summer. Then when the races heat up, they've got to depend on their radios to keep up on the action.

AND SPEAKING OF RADIO, will Harry Caray be back next year as the radio-TV voice of the White Sox?

He's the refreshing difference in this city. He makes watching and listening to Sox games a realistic experience. You won't find Harry constantly cheerleading like Jack Brickhouse. Caray is critical when necessary. For this reason, the Sox management might get rid of him.

Whether the Sox want to admit it or not, they need Harry. He makes every broadcast interesting. And interest brings fans to the park.

The rah-rah announcer is outdated. Fans are too intelligent to be fooled. Harry's honest. If the Sox are honest, they'll realize they're wrong and keep him on the payroll.

AND SPEAKING OF HARRY, one of his favorite players is Minnesota's Rod Carew. Recently Carew, who just turned 29, was asked if a .400 batting average is possible in modern day baseball.

"It can be done," said Carew, who has won his third straight American League batting championship and his fourth since 1969.

Pirates at 150 rock Hersey to grab share of golf lead

by KEITH REINHARD
Golf Editor

The weather was ice cold but Palatine irons and woods were sizzling hot as they roared to a crucial double win on their home course yesterday afternoon and moved into the driver's seat atop the Mid-Suburban League golf circuit.

The Pirates fired a dazzling 150, paced by Bob Capoun's one-under-par 35 effort to up their conference slate to 9-1 and grab a portion of first place. The Huskies, who went into the fray undefeated at 8-0, are also 9-1 now after their 163 composite bettered only a 176 by Rolling Meadows.

"I can't remember when a better team score was turned in here," bubbled Palatine coach Bill Schultz after his charges finished on fire despite temperatures in the high 40s over the tough par 36 Palatine Hills nine.

Mike Sievers nearly equaled teammate Capoun's fine effort but double bogied the final hole and settled for a nifty 37, Nick Zamboko and Scott Grant added 39s to the cause and the hosts were home free.

For Hersey it was Mark Miesfeldt charting a 38, Ed Stubbs a 39, Kevin Krahn a 42 and Steve Hartmann and Scott Warnecke 44s. The Mustangs were headed up by Tom Schramm at 41 while Mike Mills posted a 44, Jim Schultz a 45 and Dave Munson a 46.

The nicest aspect of the result for coach Schultz and company is that their remaining conference meets are against second division entries Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates while Hersey still must return to Palatine Hills again and tangle

President Gerald Ford

"A guy needs a lot of walks and has to keep his legs strong to run at top speed through an entire season. You learn a lot more about hitting as you get older. I never thought I'd win four batting titles either when I first came into the league."

Maybe "Old Rod" will reach that magic number next year.

AND SPEAKING OF MAGIC NUMBERS, Dec. 31 is one for your calendar. After that date, season ticket prices for the 1975 United States Open will go up.

A ticket good for the Medinah Country Club hosted golf tourney is presently being sold for $40. It entitles the owner to watch the three practice rounds as well as the four-day tourney. The cost as of Jan. 1 will be $45.

Unlike most other tournaments, the U.S. Open allows just 20,000 people on the grounds each day. So it is wise to order early so you'll be assured of seeing this once-in-a-lifetime event.

For further particulars, write: 75th U.S. Open Office, Medinah Country Club, Medinah Road, Medinah, Ill. 60157.

AND SPEAKING OF BIG GOLF EVENTS, just recently the World Golf Hall of Fame was opened. Many of golf's big names were inducted.

President Ford had cancelled out originally because of a full schedule. Then, according to one report, he was informed that Ben Hogan — one of his idols — would definitely be there. So the President showed up, too.

When told of the story, Hogan said, "Baloney! If this happened, I am delighted. But I don't think any person could bring the President any place, as a matter-of-fact. He must have an awful shank if he wants to see me."

AND SPEAKING OF BIG PEOPLE, Abe Gibron should be fired. Having a key play overheard by the opposition only should happen in backyard touch football games.

AND SPEAKING OF BIGGIES, here are some quotes of the week:

From the prep scene — "We couldn't have stopped him even if we had used the team bus," said a Hoopston (Ill.) player after 6-foot-9, 300-pound Watska tackle Ed Dene was switched to fullback and plunged in for a touchdown on a third down play from the one.

From the pro scene — "I watched my tailor work and asked him to teach me," said Kansas City defensive end Wilbur Young, a 6-6, 300-lb. guy who wears size 50 pants. "Then I went out and bought myself a sewing machine."

Instead of forking out $40 for a pair of pants, big Wilbur sews his own for $5.

with contenders Fremd and Arlington. The Cardinals also called this course home last season.

In another significant meet, Meadows at 168 slipped past Hersey (187) and Palatine (197) at the frosh-soph plane to keep pace with Prospect for the lower level links crown. Both the Mustangs and Knights have lost only once in MSL action.

Non-loop combat Wednesday saw Buffalo Grove nudging Maine West 164-166 and Wheeling falling to Libertyville 168-174. The Bison had a 39 from Mike Marshall and a 41 from Don Krolack to counter Warrior Bill Bucher's 40 in the medalist parade and they also stopped Maine in frosh-soph play, 172-190.

Wildcat John Leonetti tied for medalist honors with a Libertyville entry at 40 although it was in a losing cause. Wheeling did win the frosh-soph skirmish however 181-183.

Many Fire questions need answers? Charlotte's Stars to visit tonight

by MIKE KLEIN

Can Leroy Kelly, fourth leading rusher in Chicago Fire (and National Football League) history, save the franchise?

Will Bill Cappelman remember his one-third of the Fire's offensive playbook and quarterback a game winning offense?

Who is Jim Gessford, anyhow? And why does Jim Spavital, whose club won a single game during September, sport that huge grin?

Buzz down to Soldier Field tonight where the Fire will answer these stimulating questions against the Charlotte Stars, formerly New York. Don't worry, there's no danger of a sellout for the nationally televised game which starts at 8:10 p.m.

For seven bucks, you might even grab a glimpse of Dick "Super-Crunch" Butkus who's here as part of the TVS network crew.

To provide some light on those queries ... Kelly plus Cyril Pinder figure to get the call as Chicago pursues a basic ground game behind new quarterback Cappelman. Gessford is the new tight end and the primary reason Spavital won't employ a three-man backfield.

The great Kelley, 7,274 yards rushing for Cleveland's Browns, showed flashes of his old brilliance last week. Eighty-seven yards gained at Florida gives him 90 during a brief WFL career. And that's fourth on the Fire's all-time list!

"Leroy can be around for two or three more years with no problems unless something happens over night like a serious injury," Spavital said of his 10-year veteran.

"The way he runs and his type of attitude, I like him ... I really do. He's one helluva guy and a great football player."

Pinder figures to get his shot. He leads WFL rushers with a 5.2 yards-per-carry average and has 607 total yards. Other backs tonight are Reggie Sanderson and Bill Rudder as Bobby Wyatt has been placed on the inactive list.

At Florida, a 29-0 loss, Spavital started Kelly and Pinder plus Rudder who had one job: Block. But he's chosen a two-man set tonight after getting back Gessford, a 6-foot-4, 235 pounder who'll replace injured Don Burchfield.

Gessford was with Chicago at its Lake Forest College training site but lost the No. 2 tight end spot to since traded Luther Palmer only because he was slower. Now, with Burchfield banged up and Jim Seymour not much of a blocker, that doesn't matter.

"We liked his blocking in camp and even tried to make a tackle out of him," Spavital said of the rookie from Hastings College in Nebraska.

There never was much question that Cappelman would replace injured Virg Carter tonight. Leo Hart showed nine-of-32 passing for 110 yards in Florida when pressed into service.

"Cappelman is more relaxed and sure of himself," Spavital said of the 27-year old Florida State grad who's done tours with Minnesota, Detroit and Philadelphia in the NFL. "We've got to have that confidence now."

Cappelman starred at none of those places, but he was a solid back-up man. Hart never advanced much further than taxi squads with Atlanta and Buffalo.

Nobody ever built an offense around Hart. As Spavital says, "A professional team is only as good as its quarterback." And it showed in last week's shutout loss.

Everything complicated and about two-thirds of Chicago's playbook has been eliminated to keep Cappelman's job easy. They'll stick with two wide receivers, Jack Dolbin and Lonnie Crittenden, so Charlotte can't bunch up against the run.

Kelly's fine game last week has given the Fire a new life. The old moves are there. "We've needed a spark," said Spavital. "I've felt better the last two days than since (Mark) Kellar and (James) Scott got hurt. How long's that been ... three weeks?"

Right. And they've been very long weeks.

Wei takes singles title

Paul Wei of Arlington Heights captured the singles title in the Arlington Open boys 16-and-under tennis tournament held over the weekend at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

The 14-year-old Wei, a sophomore at Arlington High School, defeated Carey Westberg of Homewood, 7-6, 6-0, in the finals match Sunday to cart off the first-place trophy.

Westberg had beaten Glenview's Calvin Swiger in the semifinals, 6-4, 6-3, to make it to the finals. Wei had eliminated Rodd Dowdle of Barrington, 7-6, 6-2, in the semifinal round.

The lefthanded Wei, who will anchor the Arlington tennis team next spring, had an easy time in the quarterfinals with a 6-3, 6-3, victory over Tom Utley of Glen Ellyn. Westberg had an easier time, winning by default over Jeff Epstein of Skokie.

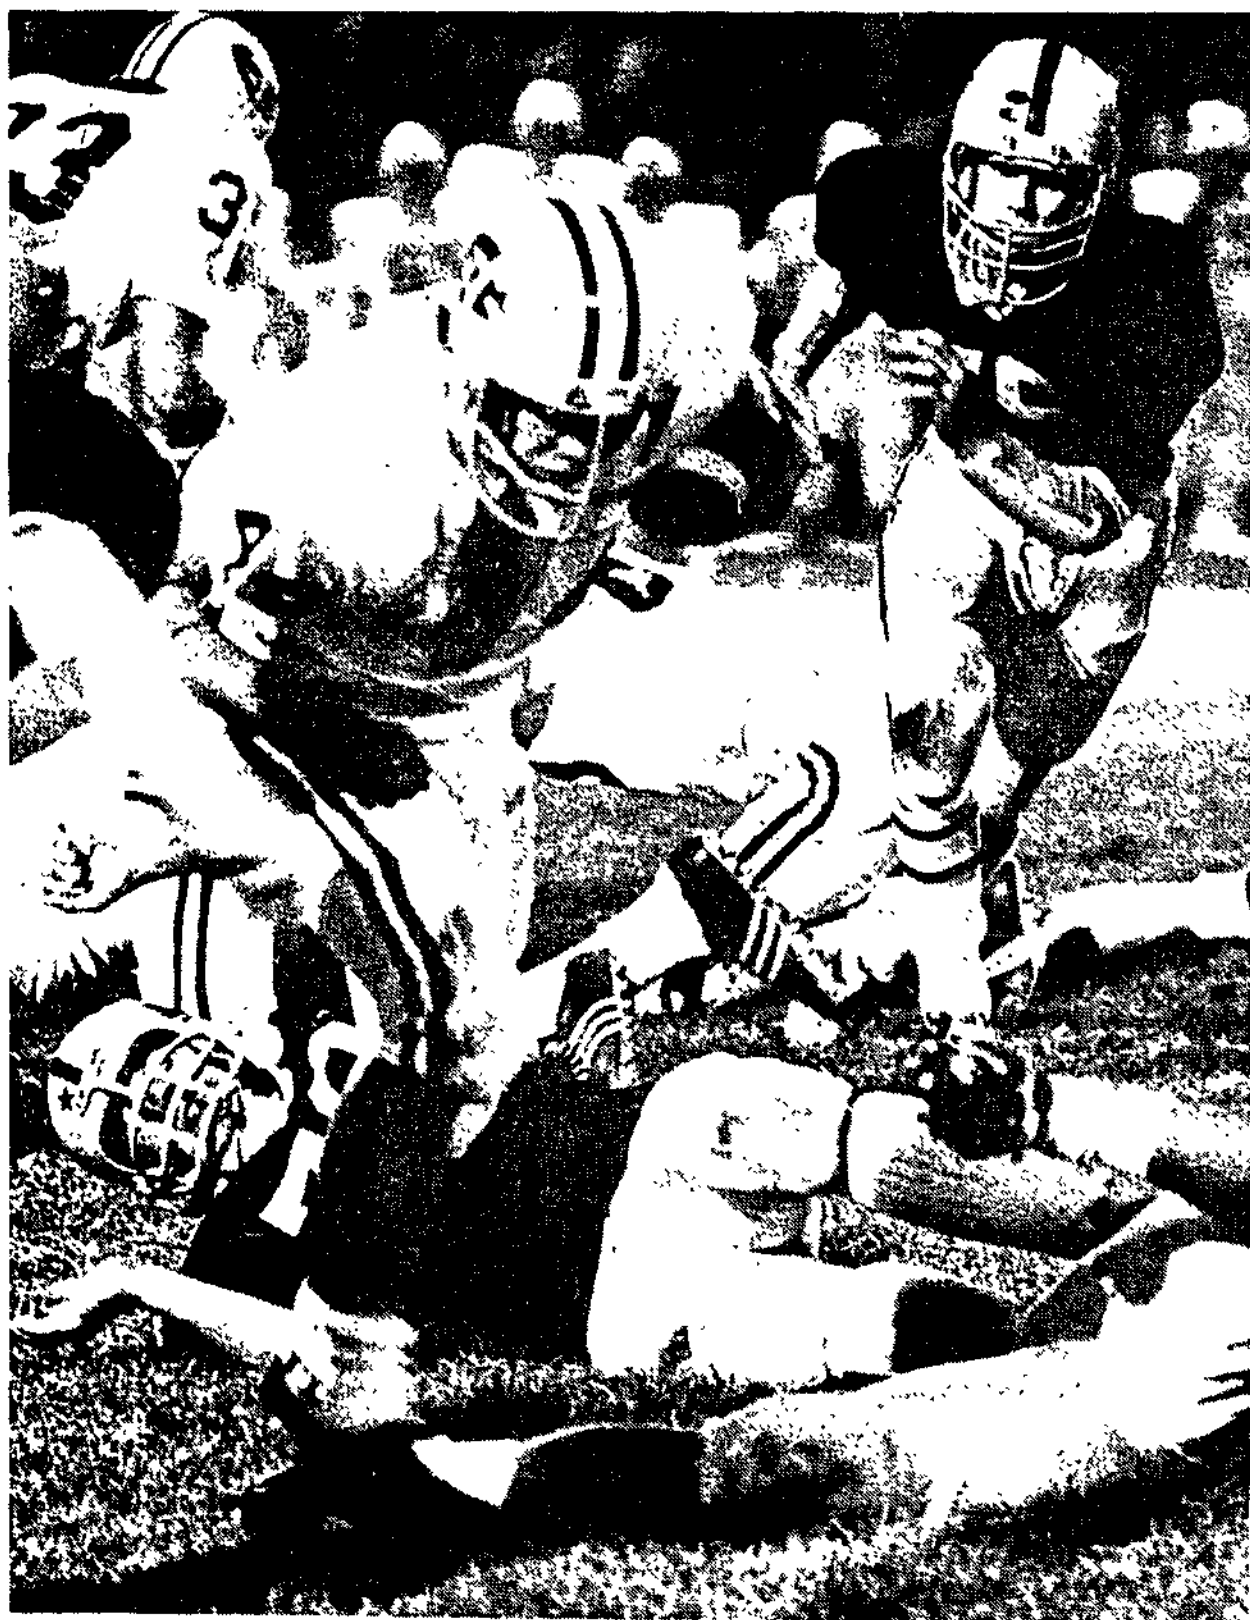

Semifinal and final rounds of doubles competition in the tourney will begin Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

Radio coverage for St. Viator, Holy Cross battle

WM radio will be at the Elk Grove field Friday evening for the battle between unbeaten high school powers St. Viator and Holy Cross.

WVMM-FM Sports Director Howard Balson will call the play-by-play and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will give the color commentary with air time at 8 p.m. at 92.7.

St. Viator and Holy Cross both own 4-0 records and are among the top 10 powers in the Chicago area.

PICKING HIS WAY through the strawn bodies of Forest View defenders, Elk Grove's Tom Roberts looks for running room in the midst of the Greens' 17-7 loss to the Falcons. Roberts' 65 yards rushing couldn't stop Forest View.

Prospect runners post two Mid-Suburban wins

Prospect's cross country team registered a double victory in a conference meet at Schaumburg Tuesday by beating the host Saxons, 19-44, and edging Buffalo Grove, 22-34. The Bison beat Schaumburg, 21-37.

The Knights, now 5-5 in Mid-Suburban League duels, were led by junior Greg Tobiasz who ran the course in 16:44 for first place. He was followed in second spot by sophomore teammate Matt Lawson at 16:52.

In third place was Saxon Mike Palmer (16:59), the only Schaumburg runner in the top 10. Two Bison runners captured fourth and fifth place — Jeff Schuster (17:04) and Randy Lane (17:06).

Prospect coach Joe Wanner got good efforts from Rich Podgorny (17:09) and Brian Pomrenko (17:18), a pair of senior who finished sixth and seventh. Prospect's Pat White was sixth (17:30), giving the Knights two soph in the top 10 finishers.

Buffalo Grove's third and fourth men were Chris Rugg (8th) and Tim Foley (10th).

Wanner was pleased with the performance of his harriers, especially the underclassmen, and he pointed with pride at the showing of Jack Pittman, who won the sophomore race in 17:35.

Prospect's sophs beat Buffalo Grove, 15-47, but they lost to Schaumburg, 24-34. The Saxons' sophomores defeated the Bison, 15-47.

On the freshman level, Schaumburg stopped Prospect, 25-33, and they nipped the Buffaloes, 28-29. In another close duel, the Knights fell to the Grove, 27-29.

Arlington keeps on rolling, records another net shutout

With just one week remaining in the dual meet portion of Mid-Suburban Conference tennis, Arlington appears a shoo-in to take an undefeated record into the conference meet.

The Arlington girls rolled up another shutout Tuesday against hosting Forest View, 8-0. They now own 38 points after five meets.

Arlington's closest challenger is Prospect. The two won't meet in a dual meet this year. Prospect's chances to stay within just a couple of points of Arlington were hurt when Palatine beat them Tuesday. With one match to be completed Wednesday, Palatine held a commanding 4-2 edge.

Other action had Elk Grove over Buffalo Grove, 7-1. Hoffman Estates over Rolling Meadows, 6-2. Wheeling over Schaumburg, 5-3 and Hersey over Fremd, 5-3. Conant had a bye.

Capturing singles titles for Arlington were Mary Baines, Jean Condon and Maureen Coleman. Doubles winners were Leslie Grubitz and JoAnn Skovnik, Mary Flynn and Janet Haberkorn, Patty Pinski and Doty Massey and Lori Schroeder and Marianne Obrstrom.

Palatine posted wins in three of the four doubles matches and once in singles to defeat Prospect. Doubles winners for Palatine were Leslie Winter and Marcy Mazzetta, Sheila Chambers and Cindy Charlier and Karen Stark and Maria Campise. The singles win came from Colleen Clery.

Prospect's points came off the racquets of Lorel Allselt and Colleen Lynch.

Elk Grove went over the .500 mark with a 3-2 dual meet record with its 7-1 decision over Buffalo Grove. The Grove swept the single competition behind Lesley Massey, Caroline Mitsch and Denise Hartmann. Its doubles victories came from Diane Quinn and Karen Pegula, Nancy Chernick and Regina Neri and Gayle Lakeander and Becky Holland.

Buffalo Grove captured first doubles on the efforts of Michelle Brusseau and Lindsay Tollefson.

Hersey notched its fourth dual meet win on the efforts of two singles and two doubles wins. Barb Pancratz and Linda Davis took singles decisions with teammate doubles teams Pam Rodlek and

West's archers win

Maine West's girls had it their way against Elk Grove in an archery dual meet Tuesday. West won going away, 17-2.

High scorer for the meet was Barb Breder of Maine, who fired a perfect end (six straight arrows in the bullseye) en route to a 320.

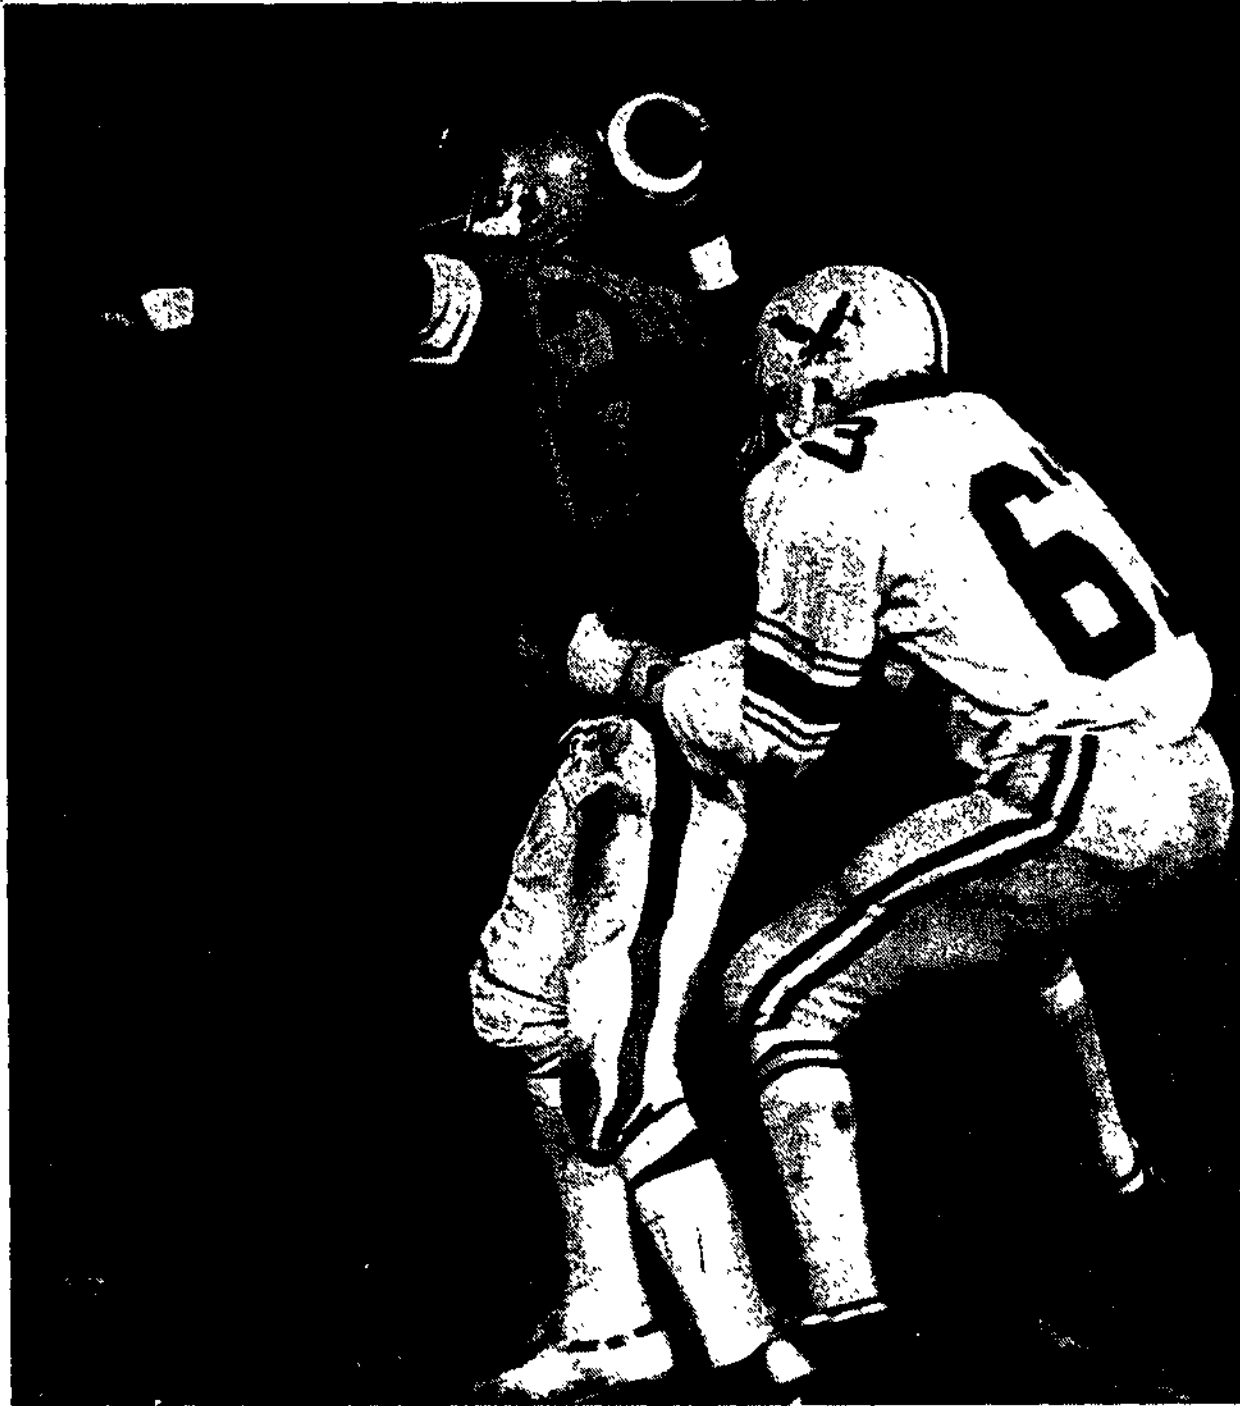

Other top performers for the winners were Maripat Klein (311), Marianne Wielgos (303) and Ginger Holm (298). Elk Grove's best score was a 297.

West golfers fall, Hoepfner records 42

Mike Hoepfner's 42 was low score for Maine West but the Warriors were easy targets in varsity golf played Monday. West shot 175 while Maine South totalled 153 and Glenbrook South 149. Other place winners for West included Scott Kisten 43, Jim Kossick 44 and Bill Bucher 46. The Warriors' season record stands at 4-0 with victories over Ridgewood, St. Viator, Niles North and Maine East.

Arlington, Prospect post 21-0 scores

Despite the windy, cold conditions, two Mid-Suburban Conference archery teams recorded perfect scores as well as high individual performances Tuesday.

League leading Arlington was paced to its 21-0 victory over Forest View by Kathy Boyd. She turned in a 584 series — tops among the teams competing Tuesday afternoon. Boyd also recorded two perfect ends (hitting the bullseye six straight times).

Also scoring high for Arlington were Kim Griffith and Linda Bahe. Griffith had a pair of perfect ends with Bahe scoring one.

Forest View was led by Cathy Rodenback with a 568 series.

Prospect also had a perfect score against Palatine, 21-0. Dorothy Nee was tops for the meet with a 513 series. She tied with teammates Gary Avischous and Rene White at 20 yards with a 270.

Chris Petko led Palatine with a 447 series. Joan Vesely tied Petko at 20 yards with a 248.

Conant improved its record to a 4-2 with a 17-4 victory over Schaumburg, now 1-4.

Linda Olson was high for both teams with a 486. Conant's ace edged out Schaumburg's Trudy Bayer, who had a 480 series.

Fremd got by Hersey, 12-9. Helping Fremd to its third win against two losses was Cathy Ulrich with a 479 series.

Hersey, now 2-3, was paced by Jim Cash's 215 from 30 yards. Corinne Frank was Hersey's best at 20 with a 266.

This afternoon, beginning at 4:30, Arlington will be at Elk Grove, Forest View at Fremd, Prospect at Hersey and Schaumburg and Conant at Palatine. In this latter meet, the scores will only count as a regular meet for Palatine and Schaumburg. Conant will only be competing against Palatine and the scores will only count for Conant in the conference standings.

It's autumn. And time for cider. Only this autumn, it's time for the "Seven'n Cider." Just mix fresh apple cider with Seagram's 7 Crown, over plenty of ice. You'll get a crisp, clean taste of what autumn's all about.

Seagram's 7 Crown. It's America's favorite.

No con with Bill Walton: a refreshing pro rookie

NEW YORK — No matter what else he did, Bill Walton always kept one eye peeled on that little canvas bag.

The mustard-colored one with the rip in it.

The words "Portland Trail Blazers" were stenciled on the bag and it was stuffed so tightly, it bulged like some overstuffed sausage at the seams.

Bill Walton carried the bag in his hand when he walked into Madison Square Garden for the first time in his life Monday morning. He held on to the bag while riding up on the elevator to the press lounge where he would answer questions about how it felt being professional now and when it was time for lunch, Port-or $400,000 a year and Sarkowsky feels he's worth every penny.

Portland finished last in the NBA a year ago. Now that they have Walton, there are those who feel the Trail Blazers will turn the whole thing around this season.

Harry Gilckman, Portland's executive vice president and general manager, is a man with both feet on the ground. Naturally, he's delighted about the addition of Walton and new coach Lennie Wilkens, but he's not letting his heart run away with his head.

"It all depends what they mean when they say he's going to turn the whole thing around for us," says Gilckman. "If they mean we're going to win the world championship, I don't believe that for a minute. Kareem couldn't do that with Milwaukee, could he? We believe we have an honest chance to be in the playoffs. Right now, that's our goal."

Walton played in his first two exhibition games with Portland and looked good. He had 26 points and 28 rebounds

In last Friday night's 92-91 win over the Los Angeles Lakers and, playing in only three-quarters of Saturday night's game with Golden State, he collected 10 points and 12 rebounds in an 88-78 loss to the Warriors.

For Monday's news conference, the red-haired, 6-foot-11 Walton showed up with a silk blue head-band across his forehead, a plaid lumberman's shirt, light blue cotton slacks and huge brown hiking boots.

He was peppered with questions, many wanting to know how he felt about playing the game for money now instead of for the pure fun of it as before.

"I haven't noticed it yet," he said, "so I haven't thought about it."

Then someone wanted to know if Walton felt his presence could convert Portland into a winning team.

Eddie Amarit and Mike Tietz. West has also beaten Glenbrook North, 3-1, on single goals from Johnson, Koeller and Peter Solarz. Buddy Doroskin defended the net. The Warriors are 6-0-1. East's Demons were beaten this week, 4-3, by Glenbrook South. Kosberg, Tietz and Luis Zubillaga scored Maine's points.

Palatine Celtic Soccer highlights

PALATINE CELTIC SOCCER HIGHLIGHTS

Sharks 2, Alligators 1
This was a very even game with strong play by Shark fullbacks Sean Mulloy, Tim Sheilander, and Chris Kingsborough; and two goals by Kevin Ruzman on assists by Tom Kearns and John Pechl. The Alligators also put up a good team effort, with Tom Falkenberg kicking in a penalty kick rebound, and Pat Murphy heading a very tight net.

Bears 1, Dolphins 0
The Bears pulled in their first win on two goals by Kevin Parsons, and one each by Billy Hilder and Jim DeStefano, assisted by Paul Haddock and Cam Williams, and good field play by Kevin Darhout and Danny Hogan.

Monkeys 3, Dolphins 0
Much improved play by the novice Dolphins against the first place Monkeys belied the final score. In particular, wings Dan Schuman and Jeff Pheders kept up a constant pressure against the Monkey defense. Mark Anderson led the first scoring with two goals, Matt McElman followed with one goal and one assist, and Tim Mueller and Joe Cline kicked up one assist apiece. Jim Nix and John Yarwood were most improved players of the week and Bruce Peterson earned the shutout.

Panthers 2, Cougars 1
Two evenly matched teams provided their enthusiastic fans with the most exciting turn-out of the season. The Panthers won it with goals by Paul Scheel and Jeff Moore, and outstanding play by fullbacks John O'Driscoll and Rick Ruzman on defense and Scott Prater and Jim Martin on offense. The Cougar goal was by David Graveline and the outstanding Blue players were fullback Mark McLean, wing Steve Smith, and inside right Mike Hogan.

Black Hawks 1, Owls 0
Great Owl defense by Brian LaMasse, Blake Stones, and Jeff Sheppard fended off all but one Hawk, Kevin McKenna, who fought his way in for the lone Black goal. Hawk goalie Jim Ruzman saved a penalty kick and bought himself a shutout.

Bluejays 4, Eagles 2
The Bluejays offense, undeterred by the driving rain, scored four times against the lightning Eagle fullbacks, Tim Considine and Mike Oswald. Steve Norys made one of the goals, Chris Braun made two on assists by Jerry Norys, then they reversed the pattern and Norys scored on an assist by Braun. Eagle goals were by Pete Mahlmann and Tom Solter.

Road Runners 2, Cardinals 1
Tom Meyer and Dave Mollar scored for the winning Road Runners while Andy McElman assisted by Bob Cury to score the only Card tally.

Cardinals 1, Bluejays 0
This was the first defeat for the Bluejays in this season and only the second of the season. It was done by top-notch team work and the McElman brothers — Andy scoring and Rich assisting — plus a hardworking goalie, Todd Privett.

Black Hawks 3, Eagles 2
The Blackhawks controlled the game on goals by Keith Connolly, Tom Cornwell, and Greg Brehm and good teamwork from Paul and Tom Cornwell and Mickey Solimene. Peter Mahlmann scored both the Eagle goals and Brian and Tim O'Callahan earned con-

mentations from Coach John Kinsella. Owls 2, Road Runners 0
In Sunday's second upset in Senior division play, the Owls won their first game in the fall season with tallies by Rick Puls and Brian LaMasse (on a direct free kick). Brad Byker earned the shutout.

GIRLS Juniors
Supdragons 2, Morning Glories 0
This was one one of the best games played to date by the junior girls. The Glories came on strong with aggressive play by forwards Mary Sheilander and Carol Wether, and all the fullbacks, especially Cheryl Lynn. Equally aggressive were the Dragons — forward Kelly Lynn and scorers Patty and Nancy Melhoric. Goals Nancy Nowakowski and Rosemarie Genovese worked hard for their shutout.

Cardinals 3, Impatiens 0
A stronger Impatiens defense, Sharon Nowakowski, Lisa Genovese, and Diane Stoker, fended off all but one of the Cardinals — Sharon Scapino who scored a hat trick with assists from Jennifer Jell and Mary Anne Nether. Coach McElman cited Karen Olson and Joanne McElman for field play and her goalie, Diane Popp for the shutout.

Daffodils 1, Green Clover 0
The Clover came very, very close again with good offensive play by Patti Reller and defense by Cathy Collins and Dana Howard. But Daffodil Peggy Walker slipped past them for the one tally that decided the game. Gold Coach Solimene commended Betty Carlson for offense and goalie Jennifer Wilson who earned the shutout.

Roses 2, Blue Bells 1
Rose fullbacks Mary Tozer and Debbie Moller provided the impetus that enabled Joyce Popp (on a penalty kick) and Sharon White to score. Anne Marie Schager booted in the Blue tally.

Insurance firm chemists acting as water watchdogs

Chemists at an insurance company laboratory in Long Grove are working with colored fluids and "Speckle" to detect harmful impurities in water.

Speckle is the nickname for the double beam spectrophotometer used at the National Loss Control Service Corp. lab. The firm is a subsidiary of the Long Grove-based Kemper Corp., one of the Kemper Insurance and Financial Companies.

The sophisticated hardware is used to determine concentrations of substances in water by measuring specific waves of light. "Some of our equipment can detect the presence of materials in water in quantities as small as one part per billion," said Gerald Maatman, NATLSCO president.

"With the increased ecological concern being shown by private citizens and virtually all segments of government and industry," Maatman said, "it's natural for us to apply our expertise, objectivity and know-how to monitor and detect harmful foreign substances in water."

NATLSCO specializes in professional loss prevention and problem solving in complex environmental areas. Maatman said many industrial labs aren't equipped with the specialized apparatus required for wastewater analysis, or can't allocate valuable lab time needed for research and development to wastewater analysis.

3M breakthrough on connectors

Breakthrough in cost savings: the 3M Co. Electronics Div., one of the exhibitors at the National Electronic Packaging Conference at Arlington Park race track through today, is announcing a switch from the use of gold to "bright tin" in its line of circuit board connectors.

According to C. H. "Red" Carter, marketing director for the St. Paul-based division who was on hand at the 3M exhibit Wednesday, the newly developed use of tin rather than gold will mean a cost savings of 30 to 40 per cent. "In the past, almost all connectors that go into circuitry have been gold plated," Carter said. The connectors are used by computer, home entertainment, control system and communications manufacturers.

Carter is predicting that the switch to tin in connectors will have a significant impact on rapidly expanding electronics markets. More applications of the solid-state, integrated circuits are being developed. Although he declined to give exact sales figures, Carter figures his division's multimillion dollar sales will continue to increase by 40 per cent a year for the next four years.

CBS out front in crucial 3rd week of ratings battle

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS was the No. 1 network in prime time for the week ending Sept. 29, 1974, according to the recently announced national Nielsen ratings.

CBS had seven of the top 10 shows. NBC placed two shows, and ABC one. CBS won Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights. NBC took Friday and Sunday, and ABC won Wednesday night.

The ratings for the week were: CBS with a 21.0 rating; NBC 19.7; and ABC 18.8.

The over-all ratings for the first three weeks of the new season were: CBS with a rating of 20.3; NBC had 19.0; and ABC had 18.8. The third week of the rating battle is considered by many TV analysts as extremely important because viewing patterns begin to solidify.

Although CBS is in first place, a spot it has kept for 18 years, NBC has become much more competitive this season while ABC is slipping to one of its worst seasons in recent years.

The top 10 shows for last week were:
1. CBS' "All in the Family."
2. NBC's "Sanford and Son."
3. CBS' "M*A*S*H."
4. NBC's "Chico and the Man."
5. CBS' "Hawaii Five-O."
6. CBS' "Good Times."
7. CBS' "Mary Tyler Moore Show."
8. CBS' "Bob Newhart Show."
9. ABC's "Wednesday Night Movie" — "California Kid."
10. CBS' "The Waltons."

Mental health radio show topic

Team treatment for the mentally ill, a new concept in conducting therapy in a mental health setting, will be discussed by Dover Roth of Forest Hospital, and his wife and co-therapist, Charlene Roth, R.N., also of Forest Hospital.

The advantages of this approach to treating the mentally ill is this week's topic of "The Search for Mental Health," a public service radio series heard Sunday at 8 a.m. on WJJD-FM (104.3).

"The Search for Mental Health" is produced by the Forest Hospital Foundation and is distributed nationally.

Bozo: noontime idol of peanut butter set

by United Press International
For 13 years, the peanut-butter-and-jelly Pied Piper called Bozo the clown has cavorted through a live-hour of tumbling acts, cartoons, skits, games and jokes five days a week. No children's show in town can match its appeal or ratings.

If there's any doubt to the popularity of the show, just try to obtain free tickets given out by WGN-TV. The waiting line is seven years long.

"People have started giving the tickets away as baby shower gifts," Bozo production assistant Jennifer Wilson said. "That way, their children can go see Bozo when they get old enough."

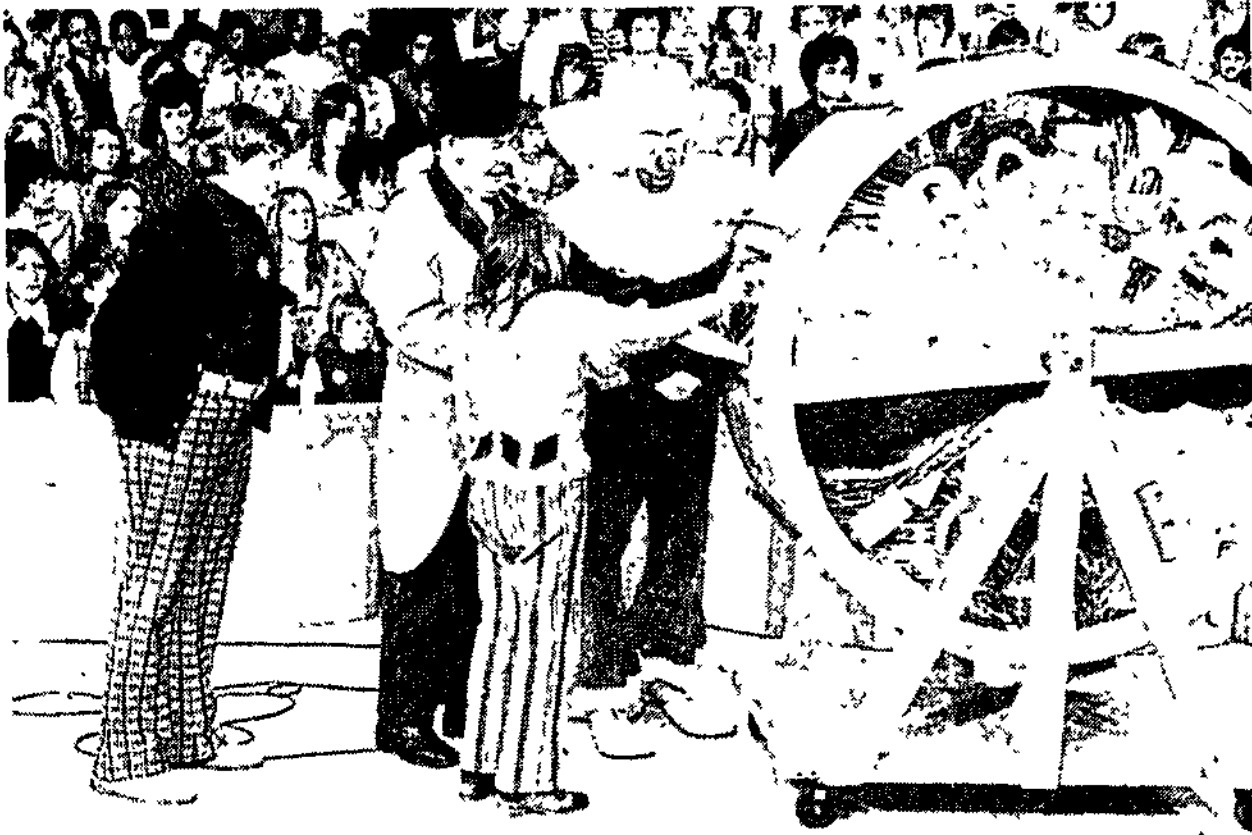

THE UPSIDE-DOWN orange-haired clown, noontime idol of thousands of Chicagoland children, stopped making personal appearances years ago and tickets to the studio show are "sold out" through 1981.

SHOW PRODUCER Al Hall and Miss Wilson put together the daily scripts which take Bozo and his friends through their day's antics — all to the tunes of a 15-piece circus band.

Bob Bell has played Bozo for the station since the show began in 1961. He puts on the same makeup and costume every day that every other Bozo in the country wears.

One seven-year-old Bozo fan said he watches Bozo every day.

Would he miss it?
"I'd miss it for a million dollars," he said.

THESE LUCKY KIDS may not even have been born when Bozo's free tickets to the show are sold out through 1981. Circus show. There's no problem seeing Bozo on TV but their parents wrote for tickets to the popular Bozo's free tickets to the show are sold out through 1981.

Taped Julie Eisenhower on wrong end of interview

NEW YORK — The television camera may be your best friend — or Cyclops, a one-eyed monster that eats you alive.

This week, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, former President Richard Nixon's youngest daughter, was floating down the airwaves as the host of the syndicated talk show, "Not for Women Only," videotaped two weeks ago. The topic: "Public People, Private Lives."

During the taping, a group of reporters gathered at an NBC studio to watch Mrs. Eisenhower's performance as a replacement for Barbara Walters. They hoped for a good news story or perhaps a feature on Mrs. Eisenhower's first brush with interviewing.

Mrs. Eisenhower seemed a personable novice. She didn't miff her lines or let the show drag.

But that was Mrs. Eisenhower live and in person.

THIS WEEK, Mrs. Eisenhower was on the air and she did not fare as well. Something was missing. On the tube, she was a weak-voiced child-woman playing a game with a terrible monster. It was no wonder her father feared the eye of Cyclops, Mrs. Eisenhower's every move, gesture, and slip were magnified so that an innocent mistake took on a greater dimension.

How odd this TV contraption? A Nixon can be eaten alive, while a Kennedy is smothered in kisses. Who knows why?

Then, too, Mrs. Eisenhower's breezy interview style was passable in person, but when broadcast, made her seem empty-headed. There was no flesh or blood in her inquiries.

WHAT WAS wrong with this show is that Julie Nixon Eisenhower was asking the questions. She should have been answering them.

Television in review by Frank S. Swertlow

This is a pity, especially since Mrs. Eisenhower could have revealed so much about a man whose identity is so hidden. Watergate was there, too, but it came in a cloak that never was opened.

And the guests seemed to be tailored for Mrs. Eisenhower's comfort. There was Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., who once dated Mrs. Eisenhower's sister, Tricia, and Rebecca Ann King, last year's Miss America. Also on hand was Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale, the wife of the minister who married the Eisenhowers.

The biography of our Lincoln-head cent

With all of the "Coin Sets" and "Type Sets" available to the public, it is necessary to take issue with some firms erroneously offering other than eight pieces as an "official" type set.

In the opinion of this writer, a legal Type coin occurs when a major, noticeable change is deliberately made in either the physical, metallurgical or design structure of a lawfully issued coin. On the other hand, any attempt to correct a poorly executed die or an imperfect mechanical operation can create several varieties of a single type.

Many of the so-called sets being offered inexperienced collectors contain one or more "varieties" which are not types.

Collecting coins

by Mort Reed

THE COINAGE Act of Feb. 21, 1857 authorized the issuance of a small, convenient-size one-cent coin. It was to be 3/4 inch in diameter — which has never changed over the years — in a composition of 88 per cent copper and 12 per cent nickel with a weight of 72 grains.

From 1857 to 1909 there were five designs, eight types, three designers, three different weights and four compositions.

James B. Longacre designed the Flying Eagle and the Indian head series (Type 1, 2, 3 and 4). The Type 1 reverse consisted of a wreath of American agricultural products — corn, cotton, wheat and tobacco. Type II — 1859 reverse was a wreath of laurel. Type III — 1860 displayed a reverse wreath of oak and laurel tied to three arrows and separated at the top by a Union shield.

Type IV remained the same in design but changed in composition to 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent tin and zinc, and in weight from 72 to 48 grains. This changed the color of the cent from the famous "White" penny to a deep copper.

IN 1909, Victor D. Brenner designed the Lincoln-head cent on the invitation of President Theodore Roosevelt as a tribute to the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birthday. The Type V design remained unchanged from 1909 to 1959, but metallurgical differences during that period created VI with the "steel" cent of 1943, and Type VII with the issuance of a 95 per cent copper, 5 per cent zinc composition struck from salvaged shell casings in 1944 and 1945.

In 1959, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, Frank Gasparro designed Type VIII — the Memorial reverse as it appears on our one-cent coin today.

From 1946 through 1962 the composition of the Lincoln cent reverted back to 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent tin and zinc. In 1962 this was changed to eliminate the tin making the alloy 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent zinc, with the weight remaining at 48 grains.

Short-term office occupancy sag reported

Overbuilding has caused 33% empty offices locally

by LEA TONKIN

The "golden corridor" of Northwest Cook County still shines, says prospectors in the office market. Yet sagging occupancy rates at area office buildings is indicated in a survey recently issued by Chicago's Continental Bank.

A 33 PER CENT vacancy rate at Northwest Cook County office buildings is the highest of all Chicago area suburban regions included in the bank survey, taken in the first quarter of the year. An overall 22.3 per cent vacancy rate for all suburban areas is indicated in the survey of 247 office buildings. North and West Cook County, Southeast DuPage County and remaining (low density) areas were surveyed in addition to Northwest Cook County.

Commenting on the relatively poor showing in occupancy rates in the Northwest suburban office market, Continental's area research analyst Ronald Pollina said, "A lot of developers got the same idea at the same time for new office space. Developers may back off from their plans for 1975, partially because of the amount of space available, and the economy. It just happens we have both variables working at the same time."

Occupancy rates were reported at 67 per cent for Northwest Cook, 85.5 per cent for north Cook, 83.5 per cent for West Cook, 90.5 for southeast DuPage and 83.8 per cent for low density areas.

"One reason why the Northwest Cook area stacked up higher vacancy rates than other suburban regions is the explosion of new available office space within the past years," said Pollina. Of the 2.7 million gross square feet of available office space recorded in the bank survey, Northwest Cook claims 1.3 million square feet. The area has more than twice as much available space as southeast DuPage, with the next largest amount.

BETWEEN 1965 AND 1974, 68 buildings or 5.7 million gross square feet of new office space were constructed in the Northwest suburbs.

The office building boom which progressed more rapidly in Northwest Cook than all other suburban regions, has resulted in a turnaround for developers who expected to lease their buildings as soon as they were completed, Pollina said. As the glut of office space is absorbed in the market and occupancy rates climb to the 85 to 90 per cent range, developers will selectively plan new office projects, he said.

What appears to be a dismally low occupancy rate for Northwest Cook office buildings actually reflects the large number of buildings opened this year. The occupancy rate of 88.3 per cent for area office buildings opened before 1974 (2,916,591 gross square feet) compares with the 67 per cent occupancy rate for all area buildings open when the survey was taken (4,028,291 gross square feet).

"The space will be absorbed," commented Pollina. "It may take a while, but the area has a lot of potential and it will continue to grow."

CONTINENTAL BANK researchers office market in the City of Chicago later this fall. A survey taken in May of this year by the Building Managers Assn. indicated a 88.08 occupancy rate for city office buildings.

What about the notion that Schaumburg is the hub of the "golden corridor" and it's development will become a second Loop? Pollina discounts this projection as unrealistic. Yet Schaumburg "already is one of the major office centers in the metropolitan area," he said.

OPTIMISM CHARACTERIZES the outlook of local participants in the office market:

• Greg Campbell, property manager for J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc., developers of the Woodfield Plaza in Schaumburg and other area properties, said, "We find business is good," although he concedes that the office market is somewhat depressed. "Substantial growth" is planned in the Schaumburg area, he said. Possible pitfalls: a lack of mass transportation and a continued downward trend in the economy.

• Dwight Walton, vice president of Brion Properties, Inc., in Arlington Heights, reports approximately 98 per cent occupancy at the firm's smaller office buildings (average size 18,000 to 20,000 square feet). Catering to the small user accounts for the company's success, he said, adding that "when you talk about the major complexes that sprang up along the Northwest Tollway you may find more competition."

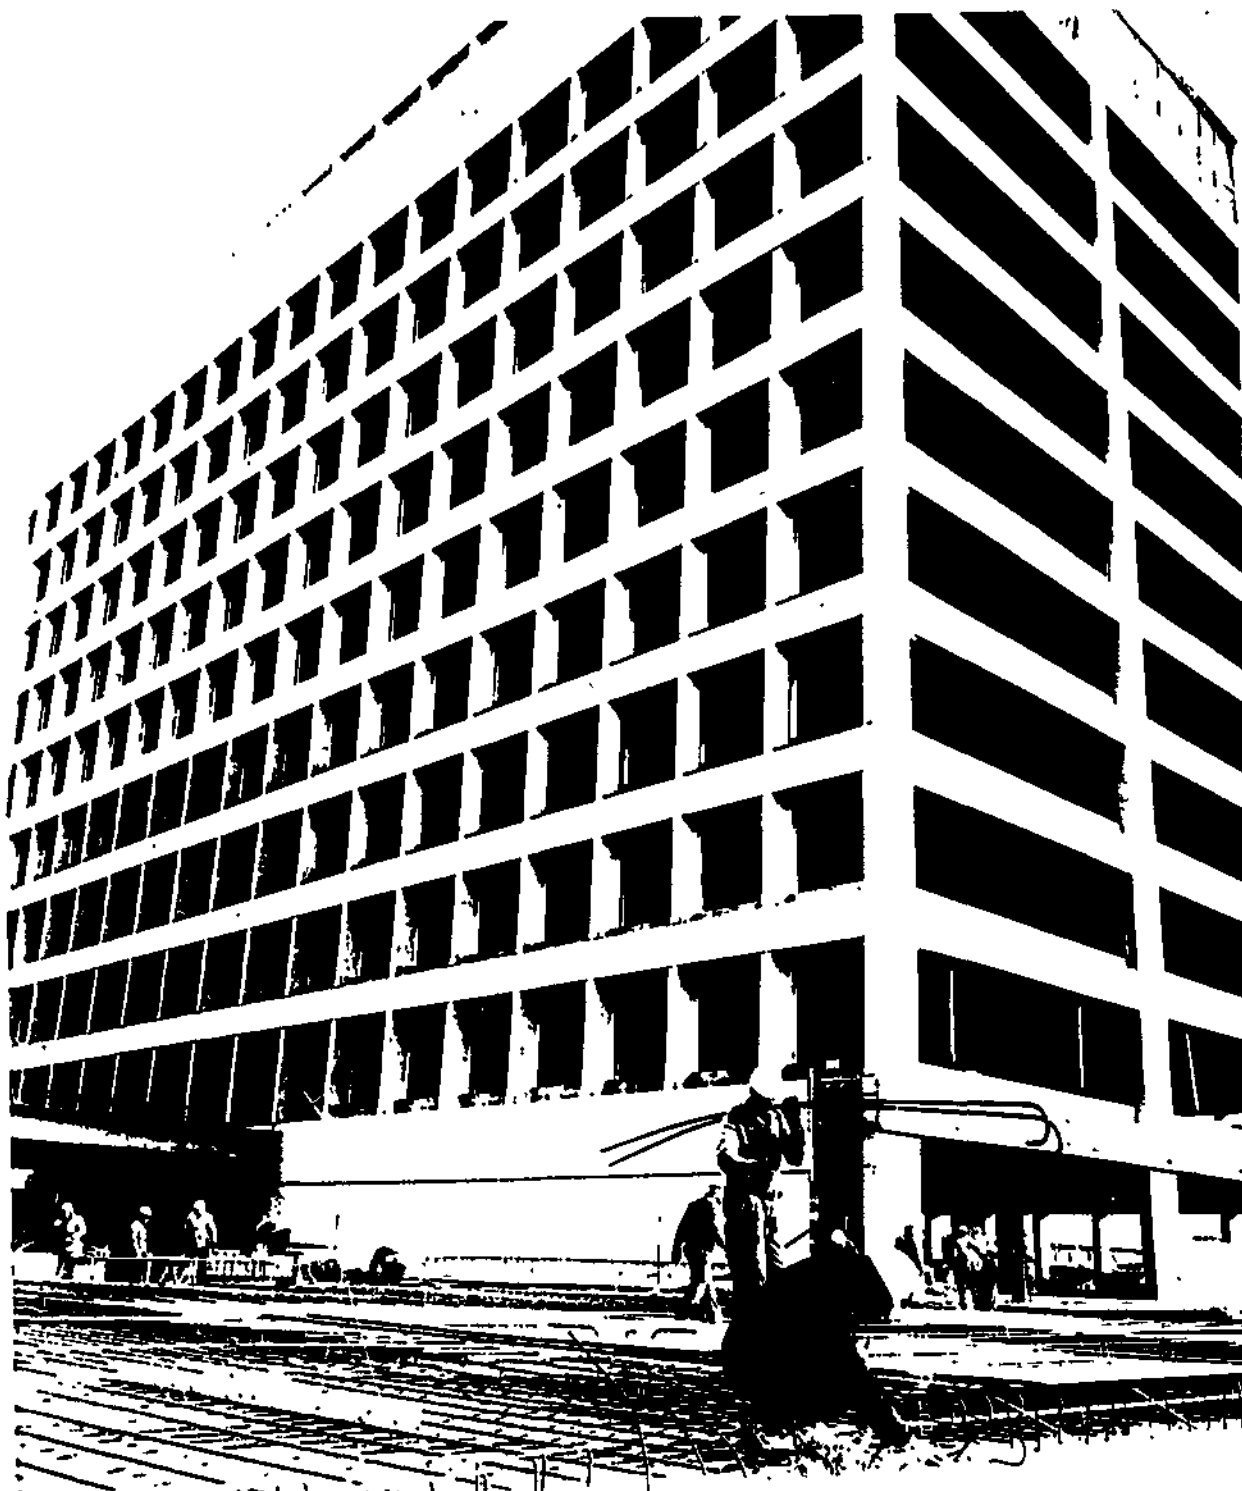

He predicts a continued upsurge in small office building construction in the rental range of $6.50 to $7 a square foot for older buildings and $7 to $8.25 a square foot of newer facilities.

• Marvin Klingdon, director of the commercial and investment division of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co. in Des Plaines said, "our experience is that the office rental market has picked up considerably in the past three to four months." Convenient access, parking and other amenities account for "pretty solid occupancy rates" at area office buildings, he said.

• Charles Kerkas, leasing manager for IDC Real Estate at One Woodfield Plaza in Schaumburg, said leasing activity in this area has just been "phenomenal." The 70 to 80 per cent leasing of the office building before construction was completed indicates strong demand for office space, he said. Plus factors: access to Woodfield shopping center, and major highways, a good labor market.

WHAT LIES AHEAD in the Northwest suburban office market? Developers' assessments of the situation should surface as they decide if they should go ahead with construction of new facilities in the coming year. The occupancy figures as well as projections for 1975 may have changed since the Continental Bank survey was taken, yet the report does offer some clues.

Developers reported plans for only five office buildings (418,943 gross square feet) under construction for opening in 1975. This represents a 700 per cent decrease in number of buildings and a 683 per cent drop in gross square feet from 1974 totals. It could bring 1975 office construction in the Chicago metropolitan area to the lowest point since 1965 when no buildings were opened.

Banks losing public funds

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Cook County ignores many suburban banks and concentrates deposits of nearly $240 million in "politically connected" Loop banks, Wayne Andersen, Republican candidate for county treasurer said this week.

Nearly 80 per cent of Cook County's $300 million in average monthly investments is deposited in 15 Loop banks, said Andersen, an attorney from Des Plaines. And, two Chicago banks — Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. and First National Bank of Chicago — hold nearly 60 per cent of the county funds, he said.

Northwest suburban banks top a 10 district list in lack of county funds, Andersen said, while calling for a new deposit system.

THE NORTHWEST suburbs, which contribute more than 10 per cent of all taxes collected in Cook County, showed county deposits of only $450,000 — about $350,000 at the Bank of Elk Grove in Elk Grove Village and $100,000 at O'Hare International Bank — according to county treasurer Bernard Korzen's Aug. 1 report.

Northwest suburban banks could compete, by bidding, for nearly $20 million in an investment program proposed by Andersen. Nearly $180 million would be funneled into non-Loop banks.

"The increased deposits of county funds will allow all county taxpayers, who are the source of the funds, to benefit instead of a few large commercial enterprises with ties outside the county, state and even the country," Andersen said. "The increased suburban deposits would ease 'tight money' in some areas," he added.

Andersen's program calls for division of the county into 10 "community investment districts." Banks would submit public bids for county funds and deposits in each district would be similar to the percentage of county taxes paid by residents in the districts.

"TAXPAYERS HAVE the right to expect to receive full benefit from each tax dollar they pay," he said. "Tax money should earn the highest possible interest rate while being investment to bolster the county economy."

"The treasurer (Korzen) has misused his discretionary investment power to favor a few powerful banks instead of impartially serving the people," Andersen said.

A spokesman for Korzen said that "any bank can apply for deposits of county funds." Michael Rizzo, who supervises deposits for Korzen, said that "the chances are they (Northwest suburban banks) haven't applied for it."

Andersen said suburban banks are "scared" of county investments because of "political strings" involved.

"With the interest situation the way it is, many smaller banks cannot afford to compete," Rizzo said. "There are also restrictions. Deposits can't be more than 75 per cent of the bank's capital surplus."

Korzen is not seeking reelection.

Andersen criticized his opponent, Edward Rosewell, for seeking the treasurer's post. Rosewell, a Democrat, is a former Continental Bank vice-president

Wayne Andersen

"and he was in charge of getting government funds," Andersen said. County deposits in Continental Bank totaled nearly $38 million in August.

"The question is — who will be he serving?" Andersen said. "It's like putting a lobbyist for Exxon in charge of the federal energy office."

ROSEWELL TOLD the Herald he was employed for five years by Continental Bank and was a vice-president in the public funds division. "I never called on Cook County," he said. "I called on county treasurer's downstate and was in charge of union funds."

Rosewell said he "completely severed" all relations with Continental, including pension benefits, when nominated to run on the Democratic ticket. Continental and First National hold more county funds because "they are the largest," he said.

"I have no axe to grind with the downtown banks," Andersen said. "But the county funds are drawn from the community at large and should be invested in local economies."

Andersen said he favors a removal of restrictions on deposits of government funds in savings and loans. As an aid to State Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Park Ridge, Andersen wrote a bill that would remove the ban. The bill will be considered next session by the Illinois General Assembly.

O'Hare adds to suburban office boom

Office building construction has progressed more rapidly in the Northwest suburbs than any other suburban area in the Chicago vicinity. As indicated in a study by the Continental Bank, Chicago, 68 buildings or 5.7 million gross square feet of office space were constructed in the area between 1965 and 1974.

DRAMATIC DEVELOPMENT of area office space has been concentrated in two areas. The largest center of activity is the O'Hare airport vicinity. The second focal point is the vicinity of the intersection of the Northwest Tollway and Rt. 53 (Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows). Accessibility to O'Hare airport and Chicago's central business district characterize both development centers.

The average building in these areas has 83,349 gross square feet compared to the metropolitan area average of 75,451 gross square feet. Some 1.3 million gross square feet of available space in the first quarter of 1972 indicates a wide range of choices for tenants. Rapid development of office space resulted in low occupancy rates for these communities: Arlington Heights, 60 per cent; Rolling Meadows, 27 per cent; and Schaumburg, 42 per cent respectively.

Rental rates in Northwest Cook County as indicated in the survey ranged from $4.25 to $9 a square foot.

Northwest Cook County is referred to as the "golden corridor" because of its dramatic and continued growth. The population explosion in the Northwest Suburbs is accompanied by substantial industrial and commercial development.

OTHER INDICATORS:

• Transportation — highway access in the Northwest Suburbs is considered excellent. The lack of mass transportation with the exception of service offered to a limited number of commuters by area railroads may affect the labor pool. The attraction of the area for managers and professionals is greater than for lower income clerical workers, the ban said.

• Amenities — restaurants, snack shops, hotels, motels and shopping centers are generally located within two miles of area office buildings. Parking space, conference rooms and other amenities are important in leasing considerations.

Coming up:

• Oct. 8: the U.S. Agriculture Dept. will conduct a hearing on a proposal to increase minimum farm prices for bottled milk. The session will begin at 9 a.m. at the Camelot Inn, Rosemont.

• Oct. 3: Businessmen's Breakfast Club will meet at 7:30 a.m. at Nielsen's Restaurant, Rosemont. The speaker will be Jerry Westerfield.

• Oct. 8: Northwest Christian Business Men's committee will meet at Nielsen's Restaurant, Rosemont. The speaker for the 12 noon luncheon will be John Yonan, president of Servicemaster Steel Corp.

• Oct. 8-11: The Illinois Assn. of Realtors annual convention will be held at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago. The theme: "The Greatest Show on Earth."

• Oct. 8-9: Illinois Development Council Conference will be held at Nordic Hills, Itasca.

• Oct. 3: CFS Continental "food-service to the nation" is honored this week at the Sheraton Inn-Walden, Schaumburg.

6 join million dollar club

Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors added six names to their Million Dollar Sales Club during the month of August for the year 1974. These six associates participated in transactions totaling $1 million or more working through the MAP Multiple Listing Service. They are Muriel Hogarty, Don Jeschke, Alan Macdonald, Bob Magnus, Earl Malze, and Peter Rodgers.

Muriel Hogarty, serving with Annen & Busse for 10 years in their Mount Prospect location, has maintained her million dollar sales status for seven of those 10 years and has been awarded lifetime membership in the MAP Multiple Listing Service as well as the Illinois Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Sales Club. She is a charter member of W.I.R.E. (Women in Real Estate) and recently received a special award "For Outstanding Service and Contribution" from that organization.

Don Jeschke, a five year member of the Annen & Busse firm in their Palatine location, has previously been named a member of the firm's Million Dollar Sales Club and formerly a member of the firm's President's Club.

Alan Macdonald, new to the real estate field just three and one-half years ago, and serving from the Annen & Busse Arlington Heights Office, has reached his million dollar sales mark for the third consecutive year. He is now eligible as a lifetime member of the Million Dollar Sales Club of the MAP Multiple Listing Service as well as the Illinois Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Sales Club.

Bob Magnus, having achieved his Million Dollar Sales Club membership for the fifth time in his seven year career with Annen & Busse, was also named Top Salesman of the Year from the Mount Prospect office for the year 1971. He is a lifetime member of the MAP Million Dollar Sales Club.

Earl Malze, a newer member of the Annen & Busse staff and serving from the Schaumburg office, has exhibited outstanding qualities of salesmanship and service during the fourteen months he has been in the real estate field. He reached his million dollar sales goal early in the month.

Peter Rodgers, office sales manager in the Annen & Busse Palatine office, and a member of the Annen & Busse staff since 1967, has repeated his Million Dollars in residential real estate sales consistently over the years. He has been awarded Lifetime membership in the MAP Multiple Listing Service Million Dollar Sales Club.

These six associates bring to a total of eight Annen & Busse associates who have participated in $1 Million or more in real estate transactions already this year.

4 Homefinders salesmen reach million dollar mark

Four sales associates have attained million dollar status this year at Homefinders Realtors, announces Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm. They are Jerry Gudgeon, Hugh McGarvey, Mary Peterson, and Ann Bartlett.

This is the fourth year that Mary Peterson, who is with the Buffalo Grove office of Homefinders, has sold a million dollars worth of homes. This is quite an accomplishment because in 1972 Mary had open heart surgery. Gudgeon, who is with the Lake Zurich office of Homefinders, has been named "Salesman of the Month" by the firm on numerous occasions.

Hugh McGarvey, who was named manager of the recently opened McHenry office of Homefinders, is a resident of Streamwood, where he was chairman of the village's Commerce and Industry Commission. Prior to joining Homefinders he managed a real estate firm. McGarvey attended the University of Illinois and the Chicago-Kent Illinois Institute of Technology College of Law, majoring in political science.

Ann Bartlett, who manages the Roselle office of Homefinders, also resides in that village with her husband and three children. She has been a Brownie consultant with the Girl Scout organization for 12 years, has been a secretary for the Roselle Garden Club and has also served as secretary for the Parent Teacher Organization (PTO). She is active in the Buttonwood Homeowners Association and belongs to that organization's book club.

One year ago, Homefinders Realtors had seven sales offices. Today, there are 11. In a year when many real estate firms have cautiously observed the sales market, Homefinders has opened four new sales offices in Antioch, McHenry, Roselle and Libertyville. "Progress" is the watchword at Homefinders.

Sales offices are also maintained in Palatine, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, Mount Prospect, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

Homefinders also maintains a commercial and investment division. Randall Rathjen is the Director of Special Projects.

The executive offices of Homefinders are located at 235 N. Northwest Highway, Palatine.

Rubloff announces 2 industrial leases

Arthur Rubloff & Co. disclosed two industrial leases in suburban Chicago.

William Lederer represented C.H.C. Tire & Auto Supply, Inc. in the leasing of 27,000 square feet of space in a new multi-tenant building at 800 Lunt Ave., Elk Grove Village. The auto supply firm will use this space for expanding their distributor operations and serving as a public warehouse for firms in the Elk Grove area. Lederer also represented the owners of a multi-tenant building at 1224 Remington Road, Schaumburg, in leasing 3,500 square feet of space to Court & Slope, Inc., which will use the space for manufacturing, warehousing and office operations in fabricating automatic tennis racket stringers.

Lake Barrington Shores sets record by winning seven awards in Design 74

Lake Barrington Shores has set an unprecedented record for winning awards in the Design 74 competition sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland. The developers of Lake Barrington Shores, a luxury residential/recreational community, won seven awards!! Never before has one development won so many awards in this competition. The previous record for any one builder was three prizes, according to the H.B.A.C.

The competition has been deemed the "Academy Awards" of the Chicago Building Industry, and indeed, Lake Barrington Shores was the star! Of 10 Gold Keys presented (first place), Lake Barrington Shores picked up five, and of 16 second place Silver Keys, they won two!

"We're pleased that the project has been recognized so overwhelmingly," said Ed James of Lake Barrington Associates. "It reaffirms our commitment to develop an already beautiful site with the best possible homes and landscape. Our development team of architects, planners, engineers and ecologists deserve the credit. We're all extremely proud and honored."

The prize winning community is a partnership venture of James Building Corporation — a wholly-owned subsidiary of James Investment Corporation — and Amoco Realty Company — a wholly-owned subsidiary of Standard Oil Com-the presentation. Lake Barrington Shores, the luxury residential/recreational community, also won two Silver Keys for a total of seven awards, an unprecedented record for any Chicago builder in the history of the competition.

pany (Indiana).

Two of the first place Gold Keys were in the landscape category: "Total environmental land use for a planned unit development with more than two housing types or land uses," and "model area landscaping." Franz Lipp-Marvin Wehler Partnership is the landscape architect. Architect and land planner is Harry Reid, Partner-in-Charge, Desmond Muirhead, Sausalito, California. Hemmer-Barrowman, Chicago, is the associate architect.

In addition, five of the seven model homes available at the luxury development won awards in the various price group and housing type categories. Gold Key winners are: the Cragmore Country Home, a two-bedroom townhome; the Fenimore Country Home, a three-bedroom townhome; and the Amesbury Manor House, a one-bedroom-with-loft condominium in a four-unit, two-story structure. Silver Key winners include the Bostwick Manor House, a two-bedroom single-level residence; and the Dennison Country Home, a three-bedroom townhome.

Lake Barrington Shores is a 510-acre development located along Route 59 just north of Miller Road in the village of Lake Barrington. A 100-acre mile-long lake is in the center of the property and is part of the extensive recreation core. When completed, the community will have 1350 luxury residences with an overall density of 2.7 units per acre; a 35-acre forest preserve (already existing); an elaborate clubhouse, tennis courts, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, a boat marina and sand beach. Plans also include a private golf club with an 18-hole course.

The award-winning homes are priced from $22,400. Furnished models and the sales information center are open weekdays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., and on Sundays from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Design 74 is the fourth annual competition for home, apartment and condominium builders, sponsored by the H.B.A.C. The contest is judged by the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, and the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

When you select the Gallery, you know you are dealing with an established business of unquestioned integrity.

2. FAST TURNOVER FOR MOVES IN THIS AREA

Whether you're buying a new home or selling your present home-or both-going with the Gallery means action! With its many exclusive listings and access to hundreds more through the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service, the Gallery's expert counselors can help you find the right home for your family without aimless searching. Browse among the choice homes included in our illuminated "picture gallery," or examine other listings pre-selected to suit your exact needs. When selling your home, heavy advertising locally and in the national glimpses from the Gallery magazine--gives it maximum exposure here and in 49 other states. The same professional follow-up by Gallery counselors then helps find the right buyer and close the sale as near the appraised price as possible.

3. INTERNATIONAL RELOCATION SERVICE

The Arlington Gallery is part of a network of more than 1,500 Gallery offices across the U.S. and in Canada, Mexico and the Virgin Islands. When your move calls for relocating out of state, the Gallery employs a "hot line" service to obtain from the new area detailed maps, descriptions of communities and their resources and tax rates, and listings of available homes in your style and price range... all before you go there. Select only those homes you want to see from illustrated descriptive sheets. A Gallery representative will then meet you at your destination... give you "red carpet" treatment... even arrange overnight accommodations... and take you directly to just those homes you want to see. You save hours and days of valuable time, and complete all negotiations quickly and easily.

4. EQUITY ADVANCE AND GUARANTEE PLAN

Lets you purchase a new home now... even though your present home has not been sold! The Arlington Gallery's Equity Advance and Guaranteed Sale Plan provides special advantages to both buyers and sellers. No longer is it necessary to delay purchasing a new home until you sell the one you now own. No longer is it necessary to delay purchasing a new home until you are separated from your family for months at a time until a new mortgage agreement can be arranged. Under the Gallery Plan, up to 80 percent of the money you expect in equity from the sale of your home can be released to you now! Ask your Gallery counselor about this unusual plan.

Housing industry proclaims 'mobilization day' October 8

In a nationwide effort to bring home to the President, his cabinet and the Congress the emergency facing the housing industry, the National Association of Home Builders has set October 8 as "Housing Mobilization Day" according to Al Kaufman, president of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago.

The housing industry is in such serious economic straits as to demand emergency recognition and action to achieve immediate and equitable solutions to the crises so seriously inhibiting the industry's ability to provide living units for all of the people.

All sectors of the industry, including suppliers of goods and services to the builders themselves, will be participating in obtaining at a minimum the three following basic goals necessary to the provision of the housing needs of American families and necessary also to halt ever mounting unemployment in the industry: Additional special assistance funds must be provided through authorization for the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to purchase conventional mortgages and congressional approval of the Brooke-Cranston housing bill (S. 3979); Increase the availability of construction financing by the Federal Reserve Board using its discount "window" to increase the flow of construction lending and authorization of Federal National Mortgage (FNMA) to make construction loans for single-family units as it now does in its multi-family operation; and tax exemption for the first $1,000 of interest earned on savings in thrift institutions.

Kaufman stated that, "The construction industry is second only to food in the nation. Anything that impacts on it spreads out across the economy in insidious and far-reaching ways to create massive unemployment and to encourage inflation through lack of housing and the consequent increased cost of that which is available. Every member of the living unit industry — workers, management and suppliers must join together in making their senators and representatives know of the plight which faces us as a country. Nobody represents the interest of the potential home owner or renter except the housing industry. Nobody is aware of the consequences of failure to perpetuate the private sector and to keep the home building industry alive to meet its responsibilities except the housing industry. And finally, nobody is out there representing the interests of the builder and his individual survival as a factor in the business structure of our nation except the builder."

Kaufman added that "Employees in all sectors of the housing industry vote just as any one else votes and their views are important to their senators and congressmen. Anything less than an immediate effort to make our senators and congressmen aware of the housing crisis can only lead to further degradation of the economy."

Gladstone adds Darlene Coor

Darlene Coor, a new sales associate on the staff of Gladstone, Realtors' Elk Grove Village office, makes a strong case for women's lib in her choice of the real estate field as a career.

Ms. Coor has been a real estate legal secretary, rental agent for a 418-apartment complex, and secretary to a builder. Based on her previous experience and with further study, such as courses in Advanced Real Estate Law, she has now prepared herself for a profession where men and women are paid on exactly the same scale, a commission on sales.

In addition to her business background, Ms. Coor has a hobby that very likely will prove of interest to many home-hunters. She is a serious student of antiques.

A resident of the northwest suburbs for the past 26 years, Ms. Coor lives at 43 E. Slade St., Palatine, with her husband, James Richard Coor, and their daughter Carol.

Jones hits million mark for 12th time

Harlan E. Jones, veteran salesman in Baird & Warner's Arlington Heights office, 220 E. Northwest Hwy., has been cited for the 12th consecutive year as a million dollar salesman. Announcement of the achievement reached in July was made by Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of Baird & Warner's residential sales division.

In reviewing Jones' performance, Walters quipped that Harlan had slipped just a little: It took him seven months to gain entry to the 1974 Million Dollar Club and he had accomplished the $1 million mark in less than four months in 1972.

Jones joined Baird & Warner in 1960 and consistently was designated a star salesman and a member of the Baird & Warner Million Dollar Club. He is a life member of the Million Dollar Club of the Illinois Association of Realtors. In 1968, he was awarded the Distinguished Salesman Award by the Sales Marketing Executive Club of Chicago. Prior to his association with Baird & Warner, Jones was active in insurance and advertising sales.

Firm joins with Century 21

McKay-Nealls, Realtors with offices at 1600 Oakton St., Des Plaines and at 1010 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights have joined the nation-wide Century 21 real estate franchise network with approximately 900 offices.

Each office is individually owned, with offices coast to coast. Clients are provided with services backed by massive advertising, including television, and the latest real estate techniques.

Real estate training offered

The Institute of Real Estate Sales, a learning center located at 1000 E. Northwest Highway, Mount Prospect, is once again offering the public both its basic "Principles of Real Estate" course and its "Psychology of Sales" course. The basic licensing course will be aimed at both passing the state salesperson exam and also developing the student's ability to deal with these technical concepts on the real life level. A few of the concepts which will be examined are liens, easements, riparian rights, deeds, mortgages, legal descriptions, laws of agency and leases. "The Institute has been approximately 90 per cent successful in helping its students pass the State of Illinois salesperson's test on the first attempt," says Mr. Regan, director and President of the Institute. September 13 is the starting date for this course.

The Institute will also be offering its highly effective "Psychology of Sales" course. This is essentially a "how-to" course for those interested in increasing by a substantial margin their chances of success in selling real estate. Some of the skills developed are the ability to close a sale or listing effectively, the ability to tell a good prospect from a mediocre one, the ability to overcome minor and major objections, the ability to give a logical and effective listing presentation and the ability to make appointments with prospects who call a real estate company on classified ads. Video tape is used extensively as a highly effective teaching tool. September 17 is the starting date for this course.

Both courses will be given during weekday nights from 7-10 p.m. A formal catalog and class schedule is available at no charge.

The Institute is accredited by the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Department of Registration and Education.

New Century Town shows first phase

New Century Town, a planned new community of homes, shopping, recreation and offices, inaugurated its first housing phase the week-end of Sept. 28-29 when the preview sale of condominium townhomes and garden homes officially began.

Located in Vernon Hills just south of Libertyville, New Century Town will eventually consist of 5,000 residences on a 600-acre site that includes the new Hawthorn Center enclosed mall regional shopping center.

"We envision New Century Town as an up-to-date version of the American home-town, where you can work nearby, walk to the grocery store or movie, play tennis before breakfast, go boating after dinner or picnic on an island," stated Thomas J. Klutznick of Urban Investment and Development Co.

More than another housing subdivision, the new community is planned as a largely self-contained urban complex in a suburban setting, complete with homes, schools, a major regional shopping center, parks and a town center with restaurants, boutiques, a motion picture theater, shops, and professional offices, all within walking distance of the homes. A research and development area is also planned for the site.

The first homes to be available will be two-and three-bedroom two-story townhomes priced from $38,500 to $44,700 and one-and two-bedroom garden homes in two-story buildings priced from $25,950 to $33,000. Four models, fully furnished by the interior design department of Marshall Field & Company, have been completed and are on display.

"An important attraction of the opening phase will be the 7-7/8 per cent mortgage financing with a five per cent down payment, the lowest cost financing we know of in the Chicago area," Klutznick stated.

Already 39 of the new units have been sold as a result of drive-by interest, he reported. Buyers are largely families from the surrounding area, with half under 30 and half over. One condominium has been bought by a single man.

"On the basis of this unsolicited interest, plus everything we have to offer, we think New Century Town will be off to a flying start," he said.

Designed for drama as well as convenience, the first of the townhomes features a soaring two-story living room, 18 by 12 foot, and 9 1/2 by 9 1/2 foot step-down dining room with sliding glass door overlooking a private fenced patio.

There's also an 8 by 7 foot breakfast room with a sliding glass door leading to the front garden; a 9 by 9 foot galley-type kitchen; entry foyer; powder room; and utility room with dryer and washer on the main floor.

Upstairs, there's the 15 by 11 foot master bedroom suite with sliding glass doors leading to a 12 by 3 1/2 foot walk-out balcony, plus a large walk-in closet and linen closet; a full bath with linen closet; and a second bedroom or sitting room, 14 by 9 feet. A feature of this second bedroom is a raised opening overlooking the living room below.

Danielson receives top sales award

William C. Danielson has been named the sales leader for the month of August at Wm. L. Kinkel & Co., Realtors, announced Ralph H. Martin, president.

He received the award for bringing in the highest monthly total of real estate sales and listings during August. Danielson joined Kinkel's residential sales staff in 1972. In only his second year, he was elected to the Illinois Association of Realtors' "Million Dollar Sales Club" for achieving more than $1 million in real estate sales. He also has obtained the designation of graduate, Realtors Institute for completing the three phase seminar of the State Realtors' association.

Danielson holds a bachelor's and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago. Prior to joining Kinkel, he was in outside chemical sales for several national corporations including Commercial Solvents Corp. and Philadelphia Quartz Co.

Along with his wife, Patricia, and three children: Lora, Darlene and Lynn, he resides at 557 Washington Street in Des Plaines.

MODEL AREA of New Century Town in Vernon Hills just south of Libertyville officially opened the weekend of Sept. 21-22. At left is building containing two and three-bedroom two-story townhomes; at right is building with one and two-bedroom garden homes. New Century Town is a joint venture of Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty; Matco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Company; and Sears, Roebuck and Co. through its Homart Development Co. subsidiary.

Price of the two-story townhome (Unit C) begins at $38,500.

The second townhome is designed for the larger family. On the main floor there's a 17 by 12 foot living room and 9 by 9 foot step-down dining room with sliding glass doors leading to a 12 1/2 by 12 foot patio. There's also an entry foyer; powder room; 10 by 9 foot U-shaped kitchen; and a 12 1/2 by 11 foot family room with sliding glass doors. Washer and dryer are also on the main floor in a closet opposite the kitchen.

Upstairs are two full baths and three bedrooms. The master bedroom is 16 by 11 feet, with a 9 1/2 by 5 foot walk-out balcony reached through sliding glass doors. The other bedrooms are 12 by 10 and 11 by 9 feet.

Price of this townhome (Unit D) begins at $44,700.

The garden home is New Century Town's name for a private living unit under condominium ownership in a building containing a number of such homes. Two garden home plans are offered, each with a choice of first or second floor locations.

The one-bedroom garden home features a 16 by 12 1/2 foot living room and an adjoining 9 1/2 by 8 foot dining room. On the first floor, the sliding glass doors of the dining room lead to an 11 by 7 1/2 foot patio; on the second floor, they lead to an 8 1/2 by 8 foot walk-out balcony.

The home also has a formal entry foyer; a 10 by 8 foot L-design kitchen; 14 1/2 by 12 1/2 foot bedroom with walk-in closet; and a large bathroom with washer and dryer concealed in a closet.

Price of the one-bedroom garden home (Unit A) begins at $25,950.

The two-bedroom garden home has a 17 by 12 foot living room and 8 1/2 by 7 foot dining room. Sliding glass doors from the living room lead to a 12 1/2 by 9 1/2 foot patio in the first-floor version of the plan and to a 9 1/2 by 9 foot balcony on the second floor.

There's also an 8 1/2 by 8 foot galley-style kitchen; a 7 by 7 foot breakfast room; a 14 by 11 foot master bedroom with dressing room and private bath; a second bedroom, 13 by 11; second full bath; and washer and dryer in a closet.

Each home comes with a garage, air conditioning and special luxury features such as a private patio or balcony. Continuous cleaning ovens, dishwashers, waste disposals, and washers and dryers are all standard equipment. Owners become members of an association which, for a monthly fee, arranges for year-round exterior maintenance, including lawn care and snow removal.

A total of 107 townhomes and garden apartments will be built in the first cluster of New Century Town. The first units will be ready for occupancy at the end of November, 1974.

"While New Century Town will be continually evolving, many of the amenities are already here on the site," Klutznick said. These include a 25-acre lake and recreation island with bikeways and walks; the Hawthorn Elementary school and new Hawthorn Junior high school; and the Hawthorn Center enclosed mall shopping center, with Marshall Field & Company, Sears, Roebuck and Co. and nearly one hundred specialty stores, restaurants, and shops already operating. Lord & Taylor, Montgomery Ward & Co. and more specialty stores and shops are on the way.

Other features to come include a second major lake; a sports complex with clubhouse facilities, indoor-outdoor tennis, and indoor-outdoor swimming; a town center; churches; adult education programs; and basketball and volleyball courts.

New Century Town is convenient to all major forms of transportation. Libertyville, West Lake Forest, and Lake Forest are three nearby commuter rail stations providing quick access to the Loop 35 miles away. O'Hare airport is approximately a half-hour's drive away via the Tri-State Tollway two miles to the east which connects with the major expressways serving the entire area.

Furnished models of the New Century Town townhomes and garden homes are on display Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. The entrance to the model area is on Vernon Dr. at Town Line Rd. (Ill. 60) 1 1/4 miles west of Milwaukee Ave. (Ill. 22).

Attractive financial terms make powerful selling tool

When normal types of home financing become tight, the financial terms of a real estate sale between buyer and seller become powerful marketing tools in the hands of a skillful realtor-associate negotiating the transaction with both parties, advises Richard M. Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, a 20 office Chicago suburban real estate firm.

"In times," Caruso continues, "when there is plenty of mortgage money through savings and loan companies, banks and other financial and lending institutions, it matters little to the home seller whether the buyer makes a down payment of 20 or 50 per cent, because at the closing, he will see either the dollars of the purchaser or the equally spendable money put up by a financial institution."

"However, when there is no lender to supply the cash at closing, or, when mortgage money becomes expensive to either the buyer or the seller or both, the terms offered by the seller to the buyer or vice versa, have a direct relationship on the price a home will bring and the time it may take to find a buyer."

"Reducing it to an easy example," Caruso adds, "let's say that two identical homes are offered for sale at $50,000 each with an assumable mortgage having a balance of $25,000. Let's also say that Seller A is looking for a buyer who can either get his own financing, pay all cash, or come up with $25,000 in order to assume the existing $25,000 mortgage."

"Let's next assume that Seller B is willing to help with the financing by taking a second mortgage at 9½ per cent interest for five years in the amount of $15,000."

"It stands to reason," Caruso continues, "that there is a lot more going as well as more potential buyers for Seller B's home, which requires only a $10,000 down payment versus at least $25,000 for Seller A's home. Under the circumstances, Seller B has a much better chance of realizing a quick sale and his $50,000 sale price."

"Besides the disadvantage of demanding a large amount of cash, Seller A also limits the number of prospects who can deal with him. He also faces the possibility that his buyer's financing from a lending institution may require the payment of points by the seller, or the buyer, being forced to pay higher financing costs himself, might be unwilling to pay more for Seller A's home when he compares the more liberal terms offered by Seller B."

Summing it up, Caruso says that the best terms will almost always produce the best price, and that unfavorable terms will result in an unfavorable price for the seller. This should be borne in mind by those families selling their home in a tight money market.

By the same token, Caruso points out that home buyers who are not willing, or cannot offer attractive terms to the seller, should prepare themselves to pay a higher price than those who can offer the seller large amounts of cash or who have their own sources of financing. Such home buyers in today's market are most attractive to the sellers of property and can, therefore, be in a better bargaining position.

Concludes Caruso, "The value of 'terms' as a marketing tool underscores the advisability of obtaining expert professional help in selling real estate property today. This also implies an obligation on the part of Realtors to sharpen their negotiating techniques and to use every creative, progressive method available for financing properties.

Air-conditioning loans up

Central air-conditioning zoomed to a commanding lead in home improvement loans at Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association, with May through August 4 to 1 gain over the first four months of 1974.

Assistant vice-president Dennis B. Kosobucki noted the performance was also 290 per cent above the comparable period a year ago.

As a result of its spurt, air-conditioning loans for the year nearly double those for the previous leader — "aluminum siding, trim and gutters," which has remained virtually unchanged from previous reports.

All loans are 66.6 per cent ahead of the same span a year ago and, likewise, the first four months of 1974. When eight-month comparisons are made, 1974 against 1973, the gain is 46 per cent.

Kosobucki said room additions were the other big gainers, double the initial 1974 period and triple May through August a year ago.

Roofing was up 143 per cent and 43 per cent over the two comparison spans.

August was the biggest 1974 remodeling month with 21 per cent of all loans, followed by July with 16. April, May, March represented 13, 12 and 11 per cent respectively. January, February and March ranged from seven to nine per cent.

How to choose best fireplace wood

Once considered a luxury item confined to custom-built houses, the fireplace has now become a common feature in homes of virtually all price ranges. This has been brought about by the advent of factory-built fireplaces that have eliminated the need for massive footings and masonry associated with earlier fireplace construction.

Some of today's owners and occupants, reared during the days when fireplaces were not so commonplace, may find fireplace purchasing rather confusing. Do you buy it by the cord or ton? Why does some wood cost more than others? Which woods have the highest heat values? Which ones impart the best aroma? What woods should not be used as fireplace fuel? These are a few of the questions that the new fireplace user may ponder.

Heatilator Fireplace, a division of Vega Industries, Inc., one of America's leading manufacturers of factory-built fireplaces, offers some tips on fireplace in hopes of helping fireplace users obtain maximum pleasure from their hearths while at the same time making the most effective use of this source of supplemental heat during the energy shortage.

A standard cord of firewood is a stack of wood 8 by 4 by 4 feet (128 cubic feet). However, when buying from a wood-lot supplier, you will most likely be buying a face cord — one that is 8 feet long by 4 feet high but only as deep as the length of the logs — perhaps as little as 12 inches. In that case, you are buying only one-fourth of a standard cord. In 24-inch lengths, a face cord measures just half of a standard cord, etc.

In some parts of the country firewood is sold by the ton. If you buy wood by weight, instead of volume, make sure that the wood is dry (not exceeding 12 per cent moisture). Otherwise, you will be paying for water. Request winter-cut wood because it is drier from the start.

How does a ton of wood compare with a cord? Let's assume that you buy white oak. A cord containing 12 per cent moisture content wood will weigh approximately 4,200 pounds, or just in excess of two tons. Weights per cord vary from white pine (2,350 pounds) to hickory (4,600 pounds). When you get freshly cut wood, then the weights increase to 3,240 pounds and 5,670 pounds respectively — roughly one-half ton per cord of additional moisture!

Choosing the kind of firewood to burn in your fireplace is a highly individual matter. Some woods ignite easily but burn fast and with poor heat output. Other, such as the heavier hardwoods, are slow starting, long lasting and have very high heat output.

Knowing characteristics of various woods, the buyer may want to secure a mixed cord or ton — some easy starting logs which can be split into kindling and some high heat sustaining logs.

When kindling is needed, short lengths of a straight-grained wood, such as cottonwood, aspen, fir and pine will split easily and start quickly. Once this material is burning vigorously, then hot-burning hickory, oak, locust, maple, birch or ash logs may be added. The U.S. Forest Service recommends four logs at a time for a proper size, relatively attention-free fire in the average fireplace.

By not choosing wood with too much moisture, you can avoid the problem of rot and decay. The wood should be dry and free of knots and other defects.

If your nose rules your selection of firewoods, then obtain apple, cherry, beech, hickory or pecan logs. Their smoke usually resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit. But be prepared to pay more than for the standard woods. However, you should have a few of these more expensive logs on hand for those special occasions when atmosphere is more important than a little money going up in smoke.

You will achieve just a completely opposite effect of a pleasant aroma if you throw plastic articles, poison ivy twigs or stems, or wood treated with creosote or other preservatives on the fire. So discarded telephone poles, bridge pilings and railroad ties are a "no-no." Many individuals are extremely sensitive to even small amounts of the toxic smoke from these burning materials.

From a safety standpoint, resinous woods (hemlock, larch, spruce and juniper) should be used in moderation. These woods contain moisture pockets which, when heated, explode with great vigor. Should the fireplace screen happen to be open a bit or should a "pop" occur while tending the fire, you could end up with a burned carpet or worse yet, a burned bystander.

But with good woods, a properly engineered fireplace equipped with a fine mesh screen, and average care, the art of burning wood can provide a world of pleasure. So throw another log on the fire to keep the heart aglow, and turn the lights down low. Watch the dancing flames and relax.

Allstate offers new concept in businessowners policy

A new concept in insurance for smaller businesses is being offered by Allstate Insurance Company in its exclusive Business Owners Deluxe Policy, the company announced.

"We believe the new policy to be one of the most innovative insurance products developed to serve the property and liability needs of the small businessman," an Allstate spokesman said.

"To give extremely broad protection, various forms of property and liability insurance, formerly written as separate coverages, or as pick and choose selections with separate limits, have all been combined in one easy to understand policy."

"The old-fashioned, complicated selection of coverages and limits has been virtually eliminated. The businessman merely selects two limits — the replacement cost value of his buildings, and the actual cash value of his business personal property — nearly every other coverage feature and limit is automatic.

The policy provides up to $1 million in business liability protection, and automatic business income loss protection (including necessary payroll expense) for up to 12 months, if the business is damaged or destroyed by an insured peril and cannot operate normally.

Under the policy, business property is covered for "all risks" or direct physical loss unless specifically excluded. Thefts, including employee dishonesty are covered.

Buildings are covered for their replacement cost value up to the amount of insurance purchased, with no coinsurance.

Business personal property is covered for its actual cash value up to the amount of insurance purchased, also with no coinsurance.

Business firms eligible for insurance with the new policy include nearly all rental stores and offices, motels, mercantile buildings, and apartment buildings.

"A real breakthrough with this new policy is the simplified rating procedure which enables an Allstate agent to prepare a quotation in a matter of minutes, right in the businessman's office," the Allstate spokesman said.

Housework comes with every house

by DOROTHEA BROOKS
UPI — Housework. It's something that comes with every house.

And it's not to be taken lightly — unless you're among the lucky few who will move in complete with housekeeper and cleaning staff.

Despite the recent industry emphasis on "easy maintenance" building and decorating materials, all too seldom does the question of housework figure in the decision of whether or not to buy a house.

When it does, you can almost bet the couple involved has lived in a horror or two that required heroic efforts to keep presentable.

A three room city apartment, even allowing for the inevitable city soot and cockroach hazard, is no preparation for a wonderful "big old house" with oodles of nooks and crannies, miles of woodwork, great high ceilings, wonderful tall windows to be washed and curtained, four or five fireplaces, lots of room but little organized storage space, two flights of stairs, a basement, an attic, etc., etc.

Even a small, cozy old house has its housekeeping hazards. Perhaps dozens of those attractive small-paned windows to clean. No city soot, but a lifetime accumulation of fine white coal ash in the walls to sift over every surface. The original wide floor boards are most attractive, and require loving care to stay that way.

Even the new house has its pitfalls when it comes to housework. Great expanses of glass look wonderful — if clean. The open kitchen brings the cook — and her clutter perhaps — right out for all to see. The sprawling ranch house does away with climbing stairs, it's true, but offers miles of walking instead.

The old house has its cluttered back porch or hall that never can be kept neat, the front porch that has to be swept. The back entry in the new house brings the kids and their dirt right into the kitchen; the front entry lets guests and their wet umbrellas right into the living room.

The wonderful old house may have acres of lawn and dozens of flower beds. Beautiful, but more housework. The new house comes complete with swimming pool. That, too, is housework.

The answer, of course, is to be sure just what you are willing to undertake in the way of maintaining a house before you buy it. The beauty of complicated flower beds that friends ooh and ah over will never make up for the work involved if you don't love gardening. If you do, it won't be work. Your delight in settling down before a glowing fireplace may be worth the effort of the extra cleaning. You might rather have the time to sit around a fire on a weekend camping trip.

Be honest with yourself. Don't judge by anyone's standards but your own. And it's wise, too, to have some agreement on how the housework will be shared in the family.

Things are looking up on that front. The stereotype roles of "housewife" and "breadwinner" are fading. Signs that couples — young and old — are breaking away from traditional male-female roles were revealed in interviews and a survey conducted by the Eureka Home Care Institute in Bloomington.

A mail survey of families across the country showed 57 per cent of the men use a vacuum cleaner regularly to help their wives with household chores — a sharp increase from the 38 per cent who answered similarly in a 1970 survey.

In depth interviews, in which a Eureka representative talked with both husband and wife, revealed that couples who share financial responsibilities share domestic responsibilities.

During 30 man-on-the-street interviews in a large metropolitan area, 26 men stated they considered housekeeping part of their responsibility. "It's absolutely natural. It's just. It would be unnatural for me to expect my wife to do all the housework," said Lee Oliver, assistant manager and teaching pro at a suburban Chicago tennis club.

For couples who begin marriage with both partners working — about 55 per cent — sharing housework is a natural part of their lifestyle. However, men who experience years of marriage as "sole breadwinner" often find it difficult to adjust to a working wife.

"My husband gave me one week to quit my job," said Edith Early of Denver, Colo., who went to work after 12 years of marriage. Seven years later, she and husband Frank agree her personal sense of fulfillment through work and their partnership in home care has made their relationship a happier, stronger one.

Most couples divide chores according to preference, ability and individual work schedules, maintaining a flexible schedule.

"Whoever has the time, does whatever has to be done," said Diane and Ronald Prang of Chicago.

The survey showed while most women cook, wash clothes and clean the kitchen and bathroom, the vast majority of men are opting for dusting and vacuuming in addition to traditional home maintenance work.

A minority of men, the survey showed, still adhere to stereotyped male-female roles. When asked if he helped clean house, one man in Chicago replied, "No way! I'm not henpecked."

If that's the situation in your family, be doubly sure you choose a house with an eye to the housework involved.

Three receive promotions at Harvestore Products

In a continuing effort to better serve the requirements of its former customers, A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., Arlington Heights, has made three staff changes in its internal marketing department, according to Harley O.

Wall, the company's director of marketing.

James J. Walsh has been promoted to manager, staff services, a newly-created position. Walsh, previously manager of marketing services, will supervise and coordinate the activities of Harvestore's advertising, marketing services and marketing information departments. He will report directly to Wall.

Walsh's former position will be occupied by Roy E. Bristol, who has been Harvestore's southern regional sales manager since 1969. Bristol will supervise sales training and market development activities for the company, reporting to Walsh.

Frank Welton will replace Bristol as southern regional sales manager. He is returning to Harvestore after four years as the executive director of the Georgia Agribusiness Council, Atlanta, Ga. He will continue to be headquartered in Atlanta.

Prior to becoming Harvestore's manager of marketing services in 1967, Walsh was western regional sales manager for the company. Before joining Harvestore in 1963, he had been sales manager for an implement dealer, and spent several years as an active grain and livestock farmer. Walsh, who received a B.S. degree in commerce from the University of Notre Dame in 1946, served during World War II as a pilot in the Army Air Corps.

Bristol is a 1951 graduate of Ohio State University with a B.S. degree in agricultural education, and has been with Harvestore since 1963, when he joined the company as area sales manager for Illinois, Wisconsin and eastern Missouri. He was named southern regional sales manager in 1969.

Welton served as an area sales manager for Harvestore in the southeastern states for six years before joining the Georgia Agribusiness Council in 1970. Prior to joining Harvestore he worked with several agribusiness companies in positions of increasing responsibility. Welton attended Pennsylvania State University and served in the U.S. Army from 1946 to 1947.

Savings and loans major source for mortgage credit

The nation's savings and loan associations have been the major source of residential mortgage credit for the past generation and at year-end 1973 held more than 44.3 per cent of the country's residential mortgages, the United States League of Savings Associations reported today.

In its newly-issued 1974 Savings and Loan Fact Book, the leading trade association for the savings and loan business, said that at the end of last year savings associations held a total of $211 billion in mortgages on homes and apartments. Another $21.1 billion in mortgages on commercial properties (hotels, shopping centers, hotels) brought the grand total of mortgages held by the business up to $232.1 billion.

"In 1973," the Fact Book stated, "savings and loan associations accounted for 51.3 per cent of the increase in loans outstanding on one-to-four family homes and 27.5 per cent of the increase on loans on multi-family units."

The Fact Book pointed out that residential loans held by federal agencies (Federal National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation and the Farmers Home Administration) may be deducted from total mortgage holdings to determine the number of mortgages in the private sector.

"When such a deduction is made the contribution of savings and loans becomes even more significant," the publication said. "For example, at year-end 1973, 53.3 per cent of all the home loans in the private sector were held by associations; 69.6 per cent of the increase in such loans was attributable to savings associations."

Following savings and loan associations in mortgage holdings are commercial banks, which are followed by mutual savings banks and life insurance companies.

Managing 'human climate'

Once upon a time the public life of the $100,000-a-year executive was still pretty private.

Keeping a low profile was the rule, anonymity was the word for the top-powered, high-priced men at the top of the business world.

But times they have been changing in that world as in so many others. In recent years, once-seclusive management has often found itself in the spotlight of public attention, the target of consumer activists and other interest groups.

Where does management turn for assistance in responding to this newly combative public?

Instinctively to the public relations man. But the same old PR practices won't do at all in today's rapidly changing situation, warns Philip Lesly.

Lesly, president of the Philip Lesly Co. of Chicago and author of "The People Factor: Managing the Human Climate," says that management has had to come down from the mountain and meet the public in the streets, dealing with today's problems in today's terms. His advice to companies and their PR aides:

- Combining the past for answers is a no-no. In our fast-moving times any reading based on what people used to think or even what they currently think is likely to be out of date by the time any new action or communications can take effect. The really meaningful move is the move after the move after this one. Checkmate!

- Make unprecedented recommendations. Management may scream "fuzzy thinking," yet most of the time it is exactly this "fuzzy thinking" that makes possible real changes in group attitudes. Every manager must consciously put creative, pattern-breaking minds on his team.

- Hang loose. Don't run a tight ship. Management in a locked-in position is an immobile target. Move with the times. A tight ship may be too tight to meet the buffeting of future change.

- Today's scapegoats — the big and the powerful, rather than the oppressed — are scapegoats because they're sitting ducks to the activists. Management advisers must realize this fact and revise their techniques to meet the challenge.

"Communications materials that are 'almost right'," says the author, "are as desirable as an 'almost right' 23-foot leap over a 25-foot chasm."

The People Factor: Managing the Human Climate" (Dow Jones-Irwin, Inc., 1974)

Simple tips will conserve energy

Turning your home into a comfortable, energy-conserving winter fortress can be a snap with a few easy do-it-yourself tips from Northern Illinois Gas Company.

With just a minimum of time and effort, you can trim your fuel bills and conserve energy at the same time.

For instance, the monthly heat loss through one door without weather stripping could heat an average home for 14 hours. Felt or metal stripping makes tight seals around window and door frames.

Cracks between window or door frames and walls should be caulked. Small cracks can be filled with rope putty.

Storm doors and windows are energy and money-savers, too. Without them, you could lose as much as 15 per cent of your heat to the out-of-doors. Before purchasing "storms," however, be sure to obtain several estimates from reliable dealer-contractors.

Insulation is another key to energy conservation. Inexpensive and easily installed materials are available from local hardware or building supply dealers. A loose fill of mineral wool, expanded mica pellets or rolled insulation materials such as batts are good insulation over top-floor ceilings.

NI-Gas recommends three inches of outside wall insulation and six inches of ceiling insulation for maximum energy efficiency.

If you are in the market for a new home, see if the NI-Gas Energy Conservation Award is displayed in model homes. Presented to builders in the utility's service territory, the award is an indication to the consumer that the builder has utilized NI-Gas' upgraded insulation standards and double glass or insulated doors and windows.

There are other easy steps you can take to seal out the cold this winter:

THERMOSTAT: When the first cool days arrive, adjust the thermostat until you find a comfortable temperature, and leave it there. Remember, heating costs increase for every degree above 70 degrees that you set the dial.

SUNSHINE: Use nature to its best advantage. On sunny days, open shades, drapes and blinds; this will help heat the house and cut down on fuel bills. On cold, gray days, window coverings should be closed to provide added insulation against the out-of-doors.

FIREPLACES: A fireplace used improperly can be a great source of heat loss. Keep the damper shut when the fireplace is not in use. If there is no damper, place a piece of insulating board or plywood in front of the fireplace opening. A damper that does not close tightly should be repaired. This eliminates drafts, conserves fuel and saves money.

DOORS AND WINDOWS: Control the "traffic" in and out of your house during cold weather to prevent heat escaping from the house. Broken or loose windows also can be heat thieves, and should be repaired as quickly as possible. Be sure that ventilation openings in the attic are no larger than necessary. And when bedroom windows are left open at night, doors should be closed tightly so other areas of the house stay warm.

UNUSED ROOMS: Turn off registers in any unused room and keep connecting doors closed.

FURNITURE ARRANGEMENTS: Arrange furniture and draperies so that the registers and cold air returns are not blocked. Such obstructions hinder the circulation of air and decrease efficiency. Keep registers and grille faces clean at all times; a vacuum cleaner will do this job quite effectively.

FURNACE CARE: Give careful attention to the furnace throughout the heating season. Replace or clean the furnace filter periodically to help ensure maximum efficiency. And the gas burner should have a blue flame with a slight bit of yellow at the flame tip.

HUMIDITY: Regardless of the type of heating system, humidification should be considered for greater comfort at lower temperature settings. However, the percentage of humidity should be carefully monitored, as too much can harm woodwork and insulation. A humidistat is recommended to measure humidity. Excess moisture attracted by cold windows or cold wall surfaces also is indicative of too-much humidity.

An energy drain in your home is also a drain on your pocketbook.

UNDER SUPERVISION of Dr. Edward Pinsel and with nurse Kathy Dowding monitoring the machine, Max Borda undergoes stress testing at Northwest Community Hospital. The treadmill-type machine enables doctors not only to determine the state of health of a person's heart, but also to identify those with potential cardiovascular problems. For the individual who has already suffered heart attack the test can help to relieve anxiety.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Stress testing valuable diagnostic tool

by BILLIE BACHMUBER

A simple test could save your life. If you are a candidate for an impending heart attack — 30 to 40 per cent of which strike with little or no warning — your odds can be safely evaluated by treadmill stress testing.

Or if you have survived a heart attack, or have undergone heart related surgery, this multiphasic exercise stress test could help to relieve you of undue anxiety about your health.

"The electrocardiogram interpreted while a patient is under controlled stress is a valuable diagnostic aid in identifying risk for disease of the cardiovascular system," said Dr. Edward Pinsel, cardiology consultant at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

"The stress test not only is an important step in identifying those persons with potential cardiovascular problems, but also helps to eliminate anxiety in patients who may interpret unrelated chest pains as angina pectoris," he explained.

FOR EXAMPLE, a man about 39 suffers an unsuspected heart attack. Though he recovers and now is in good health, he constantly is plagued of feelings of "What next? What can I expect?" Fortunately this patient takes his physician's advice and opts for stress testing. His heart action is found to be normal as he exercises under gradually accelerated stress. His electrocardiogram, which is connected to his chest while he exercises, is normal. His blood pressure reading, also monitored while he works on the treadmill, is within normal range. This patient now can relax about his heart, but he should repeat the stress test in another year, the cardiologist advised.

Another patient comes to his physician complaining of chest pains. He, too, is steered to stress testing and is happy to learn his heart about which he worried is normal. He can live with his indigestion, but he needs reassurance that his heart is working normally.

FOLLOWING CORONARY surgery a patient may become unduly worried about the health of his heart. He and others like him may be relieved of agonizing anxiety. At six months and again at a year following surgery this patient should have his heart evaluated with an angiogram or by treadmill testing.

"I would choose treadmill testing," declared Dr. Pinsel, pointing out that every such test is tailored to the individual.

Treadmill testing, available at Northwest Community Hospital for about a year and a half, is proving beneficial to a variety of patients. For instance, an inactive middle-aged businessman decides to get "off his duff" and to start playing handball, a vigorous sport. He may be perfectly healthy, though out of shape, but on the other hand, the sudden stress on his heart could be fatal.

RISKS FOR HEART attacks are greatest for men past 35 and women past menopause or after hysterectomy. Risks increase if the patient smokes, has a close relative who died of a heart attack (especially a sibling) and is overweight. Also if he has diabetes, high cholesterol or high fat content in his diet, and if his blood pressure is high.

"Risks are additive," explained Dr. Pinsel.

However, Dr. Pinsel would advise any inactive middle-aged man who is planning a shape up program to first pass the treadmill test. This advice applies even though the man's EKG is taken at rest in a doctor's office and is normal.

"A patient's response to exercise is unknown unless it is tested," he said.

(Of more than 200 patients tested at Northwest, one in six have had abnormal tests, according to Dr. Pinsel.)

FOLLOWING HIS physician's orders a patient coming to Northwest Community for testing will be advised what and when to eat, about drugs he may be taking and what clothing to bring with him.

First a nurse prepares the skin and attaches to the patient's chest four electrodes leading to the EKG machine. Two digital computers record the heart rate and the ST segment, which signifies how much oxygen is getting to the heart. Dr. Pinsel described the procedure. Any heart irregularities are detected. And the attending physician monitors the blood pressure and talks to the patient as he slowly begins walking the slightly slanted treadmill.

The test is conducted in five stages, the slant and speed of the treadmill gradually increased as the patient attempts to keep up. If at any time the patient exhibits any dizziness or chest pains, the test is immediately terminated, assured Dr. Pinsel.

Most patients comfortably can reach stage 3, a brisk walk. Out of shape persons don't fare so well, while well trained individuals make it to the maximum. The important thing is that the patient's heart action is evaluated now, said the cardiologist.

Any interested person may call Northwest Community Hospital, CL 9-1000, for information about dynamic heart testing. Complete testing time takes about one hour and costs about $90 at Northwest Community.

Stress testing is also conducted at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Cigarette smoking among the young

Agencies wage antismoking crusade

(This is the first in a series of three articles in which Patricia McCormack, family editor of United Press International, examines the problem of smoking among teen and pre-teen Americans.)

Kids don't go behind the garage to try smoking cigarettes.

They do it with peers on the playground, in the school or at some rest-room fun place. By the time they are 9 a lot of boys and girls have tried smoking. Some already have made up their minds. These are "regular users" of cigarettes.

Some confirmed 9-year-old smokers already adopt the cigarette manipulation habits of adult smokers, said Helen Jones of the American Lung Association. She said it tore her apart from head to toe to see a little kid with a cigarette parked behind an ear.

Miss Jones is one of many health workers whose agencies are engaged in a big crusade to snuff out smoking among kids. Or see that it never starts.

The American Lung Association, American Cancer Society and the Public Health Service are the big forces in the antismoking campaign aimed at the little kids and teen-agers.

The health detectives are trying to convince the young American that what's on every pack of cigarettes is true. To wit:

"WARNING: THE Surgeon General Has Determined That Smoking Is Dangerous To Your Health."

But the campaigns are not just anti-smoking. They play up the advantages of developing a healthful lifestyle.

Comic books, for grade and junior high school students, tell the antismoking story in a way that's palatable to the youngsters. Movies, television commercials, pamphlets with road-to ruin stories for pre-school children, and other materials rain down the antismoking message.

The Public Health Service offers a Teen-Age Self Test for Smoking.

That one, now, is available free from

THROUGH A VARIETY of literature, the American Cancer Society, American Lung Association and Public

the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, Bethesda, Md. 20016.

The youngsters are tested on effects of smoking on health, on nonsmokers' rights, on the positive effects of smoking, on the manufactured reasons for smoking.

Also — on reasons for starting, on feelings toward authority and on the question: "Can I control my future?"

THE AMERICAN Cancer Society comic book "Where There's Smoke" has been given to nearly 10 million. Its newest little pamphlet — "Huff 'N' Puff" — is for preschool children. It's about the three pigs and the big bad wolf. The wolf gets in trouble with his smoking.

These materials and others are available free from the American Cancer Society, 219 E. 43rd St., New York, N. Y. 10017 or Northwest Suburban Cancer Unit, 113 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine 60067.

"No Smoking — Lungs at Work" is a free children's pamphlet from the American Lung Association, 1740 Broadway, New York, N. Y. 10019. It's aimed at fourth, fifth, sixth graders.

That Christmas Seal agency's current teen-centered antismoking programs have at least two highlights.

One is the use of high school volunteers to talk to grade school children about smoking and health. Teen-age volunteers in Virginia, Florida, California and several other states are involved in this work.

THE OTHER IS A direct appeal to teens themselves and involves many activities. Among the more interesting are those that are also linked to the movement for the "rights of the nonsmokers."

In the state of Washington, for example, persons who expressed an interest in nonsmokers' rights were asked to volunteer for specific activities, including speaking to high school students about smoking and health.

Young adults, especially, are sought for and interested in this activity. The volunteers are given an orientation session before going out to speak. They devise their own messages.

Miss Jones of the American Lung Association says the appeal of the nonsmokers' rights' movement to young people is one of the more positive signs in the teen smoking picture.

Along another line is an event known as the "nonsmokers' concert." The Chicago Lung Association last year sponsored an nonsmokers' rock concert.

MORE THAN 2,000 attended. The concert included a deejay — Gerry Arens of WVVX — who quit on the air and persuaded 300 young people to quit with him, according to Margie Gillis of the Chicago Lung Association.

The American Lung Association hopes to reduce the number of teen-age smokers by aiming special messages at preschool and elementary school children.

Under development are animated television film spots for use during children's television programs, plus a pamphlet for kids aged 6 to 12 for use in connection with this program.

Consultants from behavioral science, early childhood education, pediatrics and the communications fields are assisting in its development.

The major idea: convince the very young children that smoking is to be avoided. But that's not all.

As Miss Jones put it:

"We expect the children themselves to put pressure on older brothers and sisters and parents."

Next: Why do teens smoke?

Booklet tells working women their rights

by GAY PAULEY

More women than ever before are holding jobs outside the home so nothing could be timelier than a look at the working woman's rights under federal law.

The U.S. Government has packaged it neatly in a booklet because of the great increase in the number of women in the labor force. Within one decade — 1963 to 1973 — the number of women workers (aged 16 and over) increased by nearly 10 million, or 40 per cent, when it climbed from 24.7 million to 34.5 million.

"The number of men workers increased by only 15 per cent during this period."

It should be pointed out immediately that federal legislation on rights apply to the men as well, however.

Not only are more women working, but they tend to work for longer periods of time — many for a stretch of 20 to 25 years after their children have entered school.

"In addition, many women in their 40s and 50s returning to the labor force are unaware of their rights," said the booklet, just released from the Women's Bureau, the U.S. Department of Labor. The publication compiles general information on federal legislation as of January 1974. It covers matters of seeking a job, on the job and when women roll.

On getting a job, for instance, the bureau points out there are about 400 apprenticeship occupations in the skilled trades. Your nearest employment service or state department of labor can help you on the list and how to go about apprenticeship.

ONE SECTION IS DEVOTED to "You have a right to complain if." These include: if an employer's advertisement to employees carries a sex label; an employer refuses to let you file an application but accepts applications of others; a union or employment agency refuses to refer you to job openings; you are fired or laid off without cause; you are passed over for promotion for which you are qualified; you are paid less for comparable work;

You are placed in a segregated seniority line; you are left out of training or apprenticeship programs.

"And the reason for any of these acts is your sex, race, color, religion or national origin; also, your employer provides racially segregated lunchrooms, locked rooms, restrooms or recreation facilities."

The longer life and working life span of women may account for the government's age discrimination in employment act. It prohibits employers, employment agencies and labor unions from discriminating on the basis of ages 40 to 65 in hiring, firing, promotion or other aspect of employment. In some areas, there must be an unwritten policy of non-discrimination, no matter what the age.

The government booklet reminds that there may be no discrimination based on sex in earnings, including overtime pay and most fringe benefits. It requires equal pay for men and women in the same establishment performing "substantially equal work requiring equal skill, effort and responsibility. The work does not have to be identical."

THE PUBLICATION covers the matter of benefits under Social Security. This is a detailed analysis in the booklet, but the one thing that stands out is "As a wife, if you have worked and are eligible for retirement benefits on your own earnings record, you get benefits either on your own record or on your husband's, whichever gives you the larger amount."

There's inequity buried here somewhere, because if both husband and wife accrue benefits under Social Security, why should only one collect? But that's another column.

Editor's note: A copy of "A Working Woman's Guide to Her Job Rights" is available for 60 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Arlington girl finalist in Singer Co. contest

Linda Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Thompson of Arlington Heights, has been selected a finalist in the senior division of The Singer Company's 22nd annual Stylemaker contest.

The senior division is open to sewers between the ages of 16 and 18. As a finalist, Linda is eligible to compete for the title "Young Stylemaker" and a $3,000 cash scholarship. The finals will be held in New York City at the St. Regis Hotel Nov. 5.

Linda's winning entry, pictured in the Sept. 16 Suburban Living section of the Herald, is a long gown in hunter green polyester. The pattern, Vogue 2804, involved a great deal of intricate sewing including a tucked bodice, midriff insert and a front tab with tiny covered buttons. The long sleeves also featured tucking on the cuff.

A FRESHMAN AT Trinity College, Deerfield, Linda hopes to become an interior decorator. In high school she won a senior honor award for excellence in home economics. She has always been an avid sewer and found time to sew for the rest of the family including a coat for her mother and a suit for her father.

Linda selected the pattern because it was a challenge, and she feels it expresses her true creativity through her sewing. She also enjoys knitting, macramé and bead work.

Both Linda and her mother will be flown to New York for the finals and for four days of sightseeing and entertainment as guests of the Singer Company.

Family counseling

The Family Education Association of Arlington Heights will hold a family counseling session next Thursday, Oct. 10, at 8 p.m. in Miner Junior High School, Room 40, 1101 E. Miner St., Arlington Heights.

Those interested in obtaining a better understanding of children and their problems are invited.

Rest before guests

Mothers-to-be would benefit well from 10 or 15 minutes rest before entertaining guests. Sitting down with feet elevated does wonders for swollen ankles and helps stimulate circulation.

Winter project at Elgin State

Redecoration of the teen activity room at Elgin State Hospital will start Saturday by the Northwest Suburban Section of the National Council of Jewish Women. The project will last all winter and include painting the walls, coordinating curtains, possibly new lighting fixtures, furniture and games.

And, every deposit earns from the date of deposit to the date of withdrawal on all accounts. And, all of it earns at the absolute top interest rate.

Five ways to put your money hard at work earning for you at First Federal Savings. Look over these rates and see which is best for you:

Aca is a loser—and so are consumers

After a valiant, four-year battle for life, Aca of Washington, D.C., succumbed last week to her fourth attack in recent weeks. The deceased was pronounced dead on the floor of Senate Memorial Hospital even as one of her attending physicians rushed into the chamber in hopes of saving her.

As Aca's many loyal friends mourned, her enemies gloated over her death. Aca had been well loved and highly esteemed by millions of both low and high station — but she had unfortunately been hated by many of uniformly high station.

During her embattled lifetime, her highly-placed enemies had made her life miserable, launching vituperous attacks upon her competence, her integrity, her character, and even trying to cripple her.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

EVEN ACA'S OWN relatives had disowned her, railing bitterly that Aca would always get her way if she lived. But Aca had been adopted by a large family who not only fought for her, but declared that they could not live their lives without her.

Aca's family and friends — even those few of high station — had published an appeal to the physicians at Senate Memorial Hospital just the day before her death, urging them to save her.

They pointed out that only three more physicians were needed to keep her breathing, and then, they said, further deliberations on her future could take place.

They described all of Aca's beloved qualities — her humanitarian spirit, her cooperativeness — and promised that she would never be quarrelsome or domineering.

THEY POINTED OUT that there is no one else at all like Aca anywhere in the country, and that her adopted family had been largely unheard before she came to Washington on their behalf.

They also assured Aca's enemies that she did not hate them and was not out to do them in.

But in the end the physicians at Senate Memorial Hospital chose to pull the plug on Aca's respirator.

Now, some mystics talk of the reincarnation of Aca (which was her favorite name at the time of her death, standing for Agency for Consumer Advocacy, previously known as Consumer Protection Agency).

If there is life after death for Aca, though, she may not be the same.

Sodium perborate solution removes perspiration stain

Dear Dorothy: Although I soak or spray my husband's undershirts, I can't get rid of the yellow underarm perspiration stains. Any help would be appreciated. — Mrs. H. Carsch.

For this type of yellow discoloration on a washable fabric, there is a specific treatment. While you can use a chlorine treatment, it is easier to use a sodium perborate solution. All the reports I get say it does just as good a job, and the garments can be left in solution several hours if need be.

Mix one to two tablespoons of this bleach with one pint hot water, mixing just before using as the solution loses strength on standing. Soak until the stain is gone. This may take several hours or overnight. Rinse well. Mind you, this treatment is specifically for this kind of stain.

Dear Dorothy: I reheat leftover rice in a homemade "steamer."

The "steamer" is a thin aluminum pie pan (the throwaway kind which contains frozen pies), the bottom of which I have perforated 30 or 40 times with an ice pick. My "steamer" fits neatly into the top of my favorite copper-bottomed stainless steel cooking pot, and the pot lid rests neatly (but not tightly) on the rim of the pie pan. In a sense, this acts as a double boiler but puts the steam directly on the rice. I use the same method to cook delicate summer squashes. — Mimi Kearns

Dear Dorothy: I have two room-size air conditioners. Can I use the fans on these, like ordinary floor fans, without closing the doors and windows? — Mrs. Mary B. Ballard.

You'd better check with the appliance dealer. It depends on the age and make of your machines. Most made now for window or wall installations are equipped to serve both as coolers and as fans.

On Aug. 14 Mrs. Ritz carried in her column a bread recipe for those suffering a yeast allergy. She has informed us there was an error in the amount of milk used. It should be for 1 1/4 cups rather than 1 1/2 cups. The mistake was made by the woman who submitted the recipe to

Look Younger Than Friends Your Age

Now and then you like to be a step ahead of your friends. You like to set yourself apart from them.

Now you can, in a wonderfully satisfying way. You can look younger than many friends your age, just by easing away skin dryness that accents lines and wrinkles that can make you look older than need be.

Fortunate women, from Bangkok to Baghdad, now look their youngest because they know the secret benefits of a skin-loving formulation created by beauty researchers. Skin almost drinks in the precious fluid, known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion. Its natural moisture, tropical oils and other emollients work with nature to maintain the oil-moisture balance needed for you to look your youngest. Complexion becomes more supple and radiant from the first days you use quick-penetrating Oil of Olay.

Faithful users let Oil of Olay work its wonders at least twice a day. In the morning, as a protective, non-greasy makeup base that lets cosmetics stay fresh for hours. At night, to soothe and cherish as you sleep.

Oil of Olay is at your drugstore. It's not a moment too soon to begin looking younger than friends your age.

U of I grads choose the rural life

When Linda Jean Sandblom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Sandblom of Des Plaines, and Peter L. Viall were wed Sept. 7, it was a happy blending of horticulture and agriculture. Linda has been working as a landscape designer at Klehm's Nursery in Arlington Heights and Pete, son of the Willard Vials of Mantoloking, Ill., is a farmer in a rural area near that town.

The two met in their senior year at the University of Illinois in Champaign where each majored in these chosen "cultures." Linda is a graduate of Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

A fall color scheme was the backdrop for the 5:30 p.m. wedding at Lutheran Church of Martha and Mary in Mount Prospect, with bridal attendants in shades of avocado, gold and orange and groomsmen arrayed in yellow ruffled shirts and brown jackets.

THE BRIDE'S WHITE sateen gown was fashioned with Empire bodice of imported Venise lace and A-line skirt of U-shaped lace-edged panels inset on a deep hemline of white satin, flowing into a cathedral train. A casket of English net and lace held her cathedral veil, and she carried a cascade of white roses, carnations, lily of the valley and German statice.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Viall

Wearing an avocado chiffon gown with lime green sleeves, the bride's sister, Mrs. William P. Blehn of Pacific Palisades, Calif., served as matron of honor. Her 3-year-old daughter, Juliet, wore an identical dress, but in yellow chiffon, and carried a basket of fall flowers as she performed her duties as flower girl.

Kristine Rosner of Davis, Calif., and Patricia Viall of Champaign, Ill., the groom's sister, were the other bridesmaids. Their gowns varied from the matron of honor's only in color, Kristine in gold with yellow accent and Patricia in orange with apricot trim.

The bridal attendants wore fall flowers in their hair and carried matching bouquets.

THE GROOM'S brother, Willard L. Viall of Pana, Ill., served as best man. His cousin, Philip Kloepper of Lincoln, Neb., was a groomsman as was Dr. William P. Blehn, the bride's brother-in-law from Pacific Palisades. Ushers were Joseph Tejedo of Moline and Terry Vaughn of Kankakee.

Following the ceremony, a dinner reception was held at Allgauer's Fireside in Northbrook. The following day the newlyweds left in a camper for points west on their three-week honeymoon.

Beginning in October they will be at home in rural Mantoloking.

Couple wed by candlelight

Rolling Meadows Community Church was the setting for the Sept. 7 wedding of Peggy Bell of Rolling Meadows and Denny Rafferty of Des Plaines.

The candlelight rites performed at four o'clock were followed by a dinner reception for 150 guests at the Arlington Heights VFW Hall.

Peggy, daughter of the Keith Bells, 2203 Kirchhoff Rd., entered the sanctuary in a white sheer gown appliqued with re-embroidered Alencon lace on the high neckline, the bishop sleeves and chapel train. A lace covered Camelot headpiece held her short bouffant veil, and she carried a large nosegay of white roses, white feathered carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath with five red roses for accent.

PEGGY'S FOUR attendants were gownned alike in white sheer printed in tiny red flowers. Crocheted lace edged the puff sleeves, neckline and the apron-type front of the skirt. The girls carried nosegays of red and pink carnations and white roses.

The groom's brother and his wife, John and Gail Rafferty of Schaumburg, served as the couple's honor attendants. Gail as matron of honor and John as best man.

Denny and John are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rafferty of Chicago. Another son, Phil, was among the ushers and a daughter, Genie, was one of the bridesmaids.

The other attendants were Carol Slawson, Janesville, Wis., a cousin of the bride, and Karen Kuhn, Rolling Meadows, as bridesmaids and the bride's brother, Bobb of Mundelein, and Don Rutkowski, Barrington, as ushers.

AFTER THE WEDDING and reception the newlyweds left for a two-week honeymoon at Pompano Beach, Fla. They are now living in Des Plaines.

Since graduating from Rolling Meadows High School, Peggy had one year at Harper College and works for Multi-graphics in Mount Prospect. Her husband, a graduate of St. Patrick High School, attended DePaul University and is with Greene & Collins, Chicago.

From tomatoes thoughts turn to planting peonies

The "Big Tomato" contest has come and gone — and not too soon because frost is about to knock off the tomatoes any day now.

I was still receiving entries a week after the contest closed, some with earlier-than-deadline postmarks. None of these was a big winner, but there are several among them that are worth mentioning.

Mrs. Righter S. Farris, 2501 South St., Rolling Meadows, sent in a picture of her five tomato plants that nearly blanketed the whole side of her garage. What is even more interesting is that Mrs. Farris started the plants from free seed that came in a spring issue of Family Circle magazine.

Mrs. Mildred Massman, 1425 S. Benton, Palatine, sent a lovely picture of herself holding two of her 15-inch circumference organically-grown tomatoes, a girl after my own heart!

THE REPORTS GO ON and on, and it appears that everybody who entered had a wonderful year growing tomatoes and all are proud to share the results of their gardening accomplishments.

If you have written in for one of my "Bug Booklets" within the last week, (this is my manual of control for fighting bugs without poisons) and haven't received it, please be patient. We ran out and the booklet is at the printer for another printing.

My big thrill of the week was getting my Klehm Nursery peonies delivered, pawing through the box and squealing over my favorites.

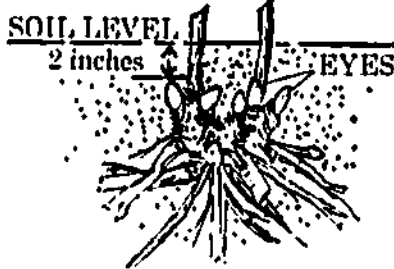

It will take me all day Saturday to prepare a new bed for my beauties, but it'll be worth it come spring.

We're fortunate to have the most famous peony grower in the country right in Arlington Heights, offering the National Grand Champion-1973 (Dinnerplate) and other estate peonies, "favorites of Greek gods and Chinese emperors."

IF YOU ARE a peony freak as I am, you'll be interested to know that in Greek mythology, according to Klehm's,

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

A COMMON mistake in peony planting is getting roots too deep. Two inches from soil level to top of eyes is best.

peonies were believed to have magical powers. The Greeks believed that the peony was a charm against evil spirits. The Greeks never picked peonies during the day for fear that the woodpecker — guardian of peonies — would attack the picker!

If you're planting peonies this fall, follow these tips for success:

Make sure the peonies have plenty of sun, good drainage, and make sure they are not close to trees. Add a one to two-inch layer of well-rotted cow manure at the bottom of your excavation (18 inches deep). Mix a half cup of bone meal with the soil for each plant. Do not plant the roots too deeply — not more than 2 inches from the top of the "eyes" to ground level. Planting too deep is one of the most common causes for failure to bloom.

Finally, after the ground freezes, mulch the new transplants with a thick layer of straw.

Collect coupons for guide dogs

Owners of pets are invited to help the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines provide blind servicemen with Seeing Eye Dogs from the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation. This can be accomplished by collecting coupons from Vet, Perk and Peak pet foods.

Within the next two weeks the Juniors will place coupon containers in chain food stores, grocery stores and meat markets in the Des Plaines area. Approximately 30,000 coupons are needed to purchase each dog.

All coupons collected by the Juniors are credited to their account on an accumulative basis by the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation. Any further inquiries may be directed to Norene Nohengen at 724-3505.

Seeing Eye Dogs provide travel, mobility and an opportunity for economic self-sufficiency for the blind. The serviceman receiving a guide dog from the foundation will also receive free transportation to and from the training center and four weeks' board and lodging while being trained to use the dog.

For the best prime rib in Los Angeles go to 100 E. Ontario St., Chicago.

Lawry's The Prime Rib Restaurant is now in Chicago. They're serving their famous one and only entree — fantastic prime ribs of beef, with all the fixings. Carved to order at your table. Come in soon and find out why it's called "the greatest meal in America."

80th birthday for Lake Bluff Children's Home

A yellow striped tent on the campus of Lake Bluff/Chicago Homes for Children Sunday afternoon, Oct. 13, will be the most visible clue that a celebration is under way. With clowns, popcorn, exhibits and musical groups, the agency's 80 years of service to children will be commemorated at a Harvest Home celebration on the campus in Lake Bluff, 200 Seranton Ave., from 2 to 5 p.m.

"We are hoping it will be a homecoming for all the people who care and have cared through the years for Homes for Children," said Mrs. R. C. McCarthy of Arlington Heights, president of Northwest Chapter of the Service League of Homes for Children.

Invitations have been extended to all who have ever been involved with Homes for Children — those who spent their childhood there, staffers past and present, trustees, auxiliary and committee members, both current and past, Service Leaguers and all now actively participating in the multi-service child welfare agency. Children and their parents who participate in programs of the Homes in Chicago have been invited, along with the children of the Day Care Center in Lake Bluff and their families.

Savor the Autumn Harvest

Autumn is the prettiest time of the year when the weather is just about perfect. After a long, hot summer, every hostess is ready to entertain again and cooking seems like an exciting occupation.

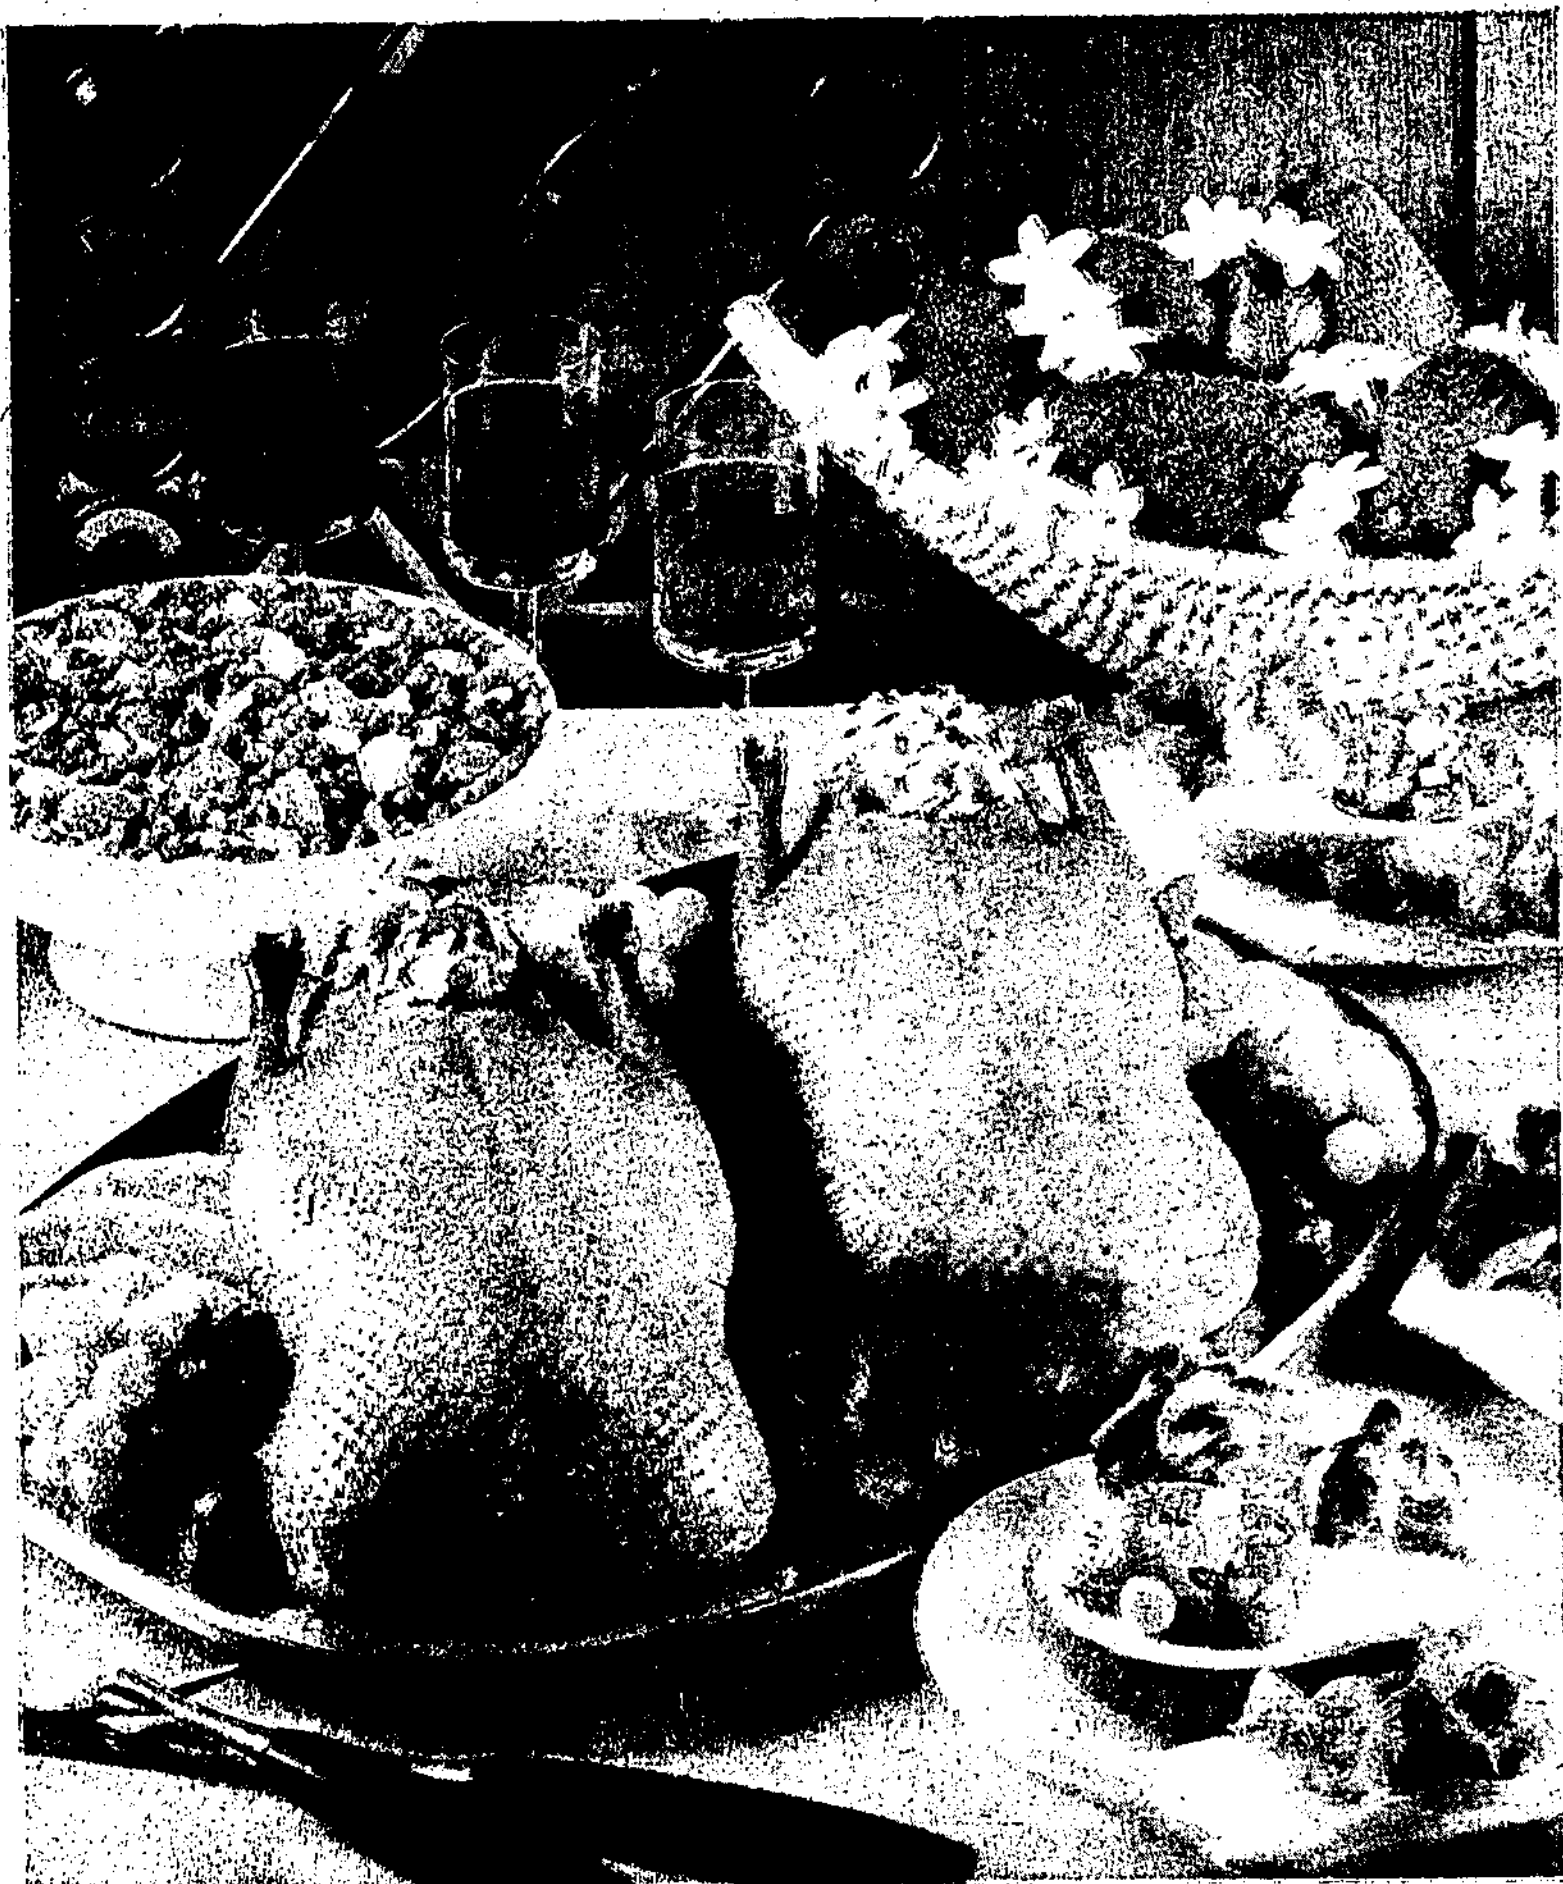

One intriguing menu begins with appetizers of Avocado Half-Shells with Tomato Salsa. Another time, a wise hostess will fill the half-shells with black or red caviar or even a well-seasoned pate. With Tomato Salsa, a dry appetizer wine is served and since the recipe is of Spanish origin, a sherry from Spain is deliciously appropriate.

The main course is a brace of Currant Glazed Duckling with Gourmet Stuffing to serve six to eight delighted guests. The frozen ducklings are found year-round at the supermarket ready to headline your party menu. The duckling can be roasted whole or cooked quartered in an electric skillet. For this repast, it's roasted with an easy stuffing that even a novice can master.

Long grain white and wild rice, herb seasoned stuffing mix, celery, onion and mushrooms are the basics for Gourmet Stuffing. Citrus Peas Melange is the suggested vegetable accompaniment supreme, so simple that the flavor belies its ease. Little baby early peas are blended with mandarin orange segments, pineapple tidbits and slivered almonds. With the main course, a full-bodied burgundy wine is poured. A dessert wine or champagne accompanies a simple but elegant dessert.

A second menu is reserved for another special occasion. Again, a brace of duckling comes to the fore, unstuffed this time, but nicely glazed. Cheesy Topped Baked Potatoes go in the oven along with the duckling. Brussels Sprouts Royale is another easy vegetable, made more luscious with green grapes, almonds and sherry.

Avocados do a turn-about this time, closing the dinner with a dessert divine, Souffle a L'Avocat. It's a souffle that "bakes" in the freezer the day before the party, making the cook's life easier.

Avocado Half-Shells with Tomato Salsa

- 4 California avocados, halved
- 6 medium tomatoes, coarsely chopped
- 9 green onions, chopped
- 1 1/2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 3/4 teaspoon basil leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon rosemary leaves
- 1/2 cup bottled Italian dressing

Combine all ingredients except avocados. Chill. At serving time, place an avocado half on lettuce-lined salad plate and fill with salsa. Makes 8 servings.

Currant Glazed Duckling with Gourmet Stuffing

- 1 frozen duckling (4 to 4 1/2 pounds), defrosted
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Gourmet Stuffing
- 1 jar (10 ounce) currant jelly
- 1/4 cup red wine vinegar
- 4 whole cloves
- 1 (3-inch) stick cinnamon

Wash and drain duckling, dry skin gently with paper toweling. Sprinkle body and neck cavities evenly with salt. Stuff duck cavities loosely with Gourmet Stuffing mixture. Skewer neck skin to back. Cover opening of body cavity with aluminum foil and tie legs together loosely. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees) until meat on drumstick is tender, about 2 to 2 1/2 hours. While duckling is roasting prepare glaze. Combine and mix jelly, vinegar and spices in saucepan. Place over moderate heat; bring to a boil and simmer gently 3 minutes. Brush duckling with glaze several times during last 30 minutes roasting time. Serve remaining glaze with duckling. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

MENU I

- Avocado Half-Shells with Tomato Salsa
- Spanish Sherry
- Currant Glazed Duckling with Gourmet Stuffing
- Citrus Peas Melange
- Burgundy Wine
- Dessert with Champagne
- Hot Tea

Gourmet Stuffing

- 2 (12-oz.) packages long grain white and wild rice frozen in pouch
- 2 (2 1/2 oz.) jars or 1 (4 1/2 oz.) jar whole mushrooms, drained
- 1 1/2 cups chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup minced onion
- 1/2 cup herb seasoned stuffing mix
- 1 teaspoon (1 cube) instant chicken bouillon
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted

Cook rice according to package directions only until thawed. Combine rice with mushrooms, celery, green pepper, onion and stuffing mix. Dissolve bouillon in boiling water. Stir bouillon and butter into rice mixture to moisten. Makes about 6 to 7 cups stuffing or enough to stuff two ducklings.

Citrus Peas Melange

- 2 (10-oz.) packages little baby early peas frozen in butter sauce
- 1 (11-oz.) can mandarin orange segments and pineapple tidbits
- 1/2 cup slivered almonds
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt

Cook peas according to package directions. Combine peas in butter sauce with remaining ingredients in a medium saucepan; heat through. Serves 6 to 8.

Glazed Duckling

Follow directions for Currant Glazed Duckling, omitting stuffing.

Brussels Sprouts Royale

- 2 (10-oz.) packages baby Brussels sprouts frozen in butter sauce
- 1 cup seedless green grapes
- 1/4 cup sherry
- 1/4 cup slivered almonds

Cook Brussels sprouts according to package directions. Partially open pouch; drain butter sauce into medium saucepan. Add grapes. Cook only enough to heat through. Remove from heat; add sherry and almonds. Gently stir in Brussels sprouts. Serves 6 to 8.

Cheesy Topped Baked Potatoes

Three to four 12-oz. packages frozen stuffed Idaho baked potatoes topped with cheddar cheese.

Remove potatoes from cartons and place on cookie sheet. Disregard the package directions and bake in a preheated 325 degree oven for 50 to 60 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Souffle a L'Avocat

- 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 pint whipping cream, whipped
- 1 1/2 cups avocado puree
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 8 egg whites
- 3 tablespoons Kirsch
- 4 drops green food coloring
- Almond Crunch

Day before souffle is needed, place sugar and water in heavy 1-quart saucepan. Over medium heat, simmer sugar to 200 degrees on candy thermometer. Do not stir. Meanwhile, whip cream and refrigerate. Puree avocado until very smooth, preferably with blender or sieve; stir in lemon juice and set aside. With electric mixer, beat egg whites in large bowl until stiff, but not dry. Continue beating while slowly adding the cooked sugar syrup to the egg whites; whip until mixture is completely cool, about 10 minutes. Beat in Kirsch and green food coloring. Then at very low speed, slowly add the avocado puree and then the whipped cream. Turn 1/2 of the mixture into a 1-quart souffle dish, prepared as directed below. Sprinkle over 1/2 of the almond crunch mixture in an even layer. Repeat with a second layer of 1/2 the avocado mixture and another 1/2 of almond crunch. Spread remaining 1/2 of avocado mixture over almond crunch layer. Place in freezer overnight. With rolling pin, roll rest of almond crunch into a fine powder; reserve for garnish. Next day, remove foil collar from souffle. Lay 1/4-inch strips of foil evenly spaced over top of frozen souffle. Sprinkle the spaces in between foil strips with the almond crunch powder; remove foil strips and return souffle to freezer. At serving time, serve as is or accompanied by fresh strawberries which have been marinated in Cointreau. Makes 8 servings.

MENU II

- Glazed Duckling
- Brussels Sprouts Royale
- Cheesy Topped Baked Potato
- Tossed Salad
- Souffle a L'Avocat
- Spiced Coffee

Almond Crunch

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1/2 tablespoon light corn syrup
- 1/2 cup finely chopped blanched almonds

Butter a baking sheet. Melt butter in a 1-quart saucepan over low heat. Add sugar; heat to boiling stirring constantly. Stir in water and corn syrup. Boil over medium heat, stirring constantly to 290 degrees on candy thermometer, about 7 minutes or until small amount of mixture dropped into cold water separates into hard but not brittle threads. Remove from heat; stir in nuts. Pour mixture onto baking sheet and spread about 1/4 inch thick. Cool. When firm, break into pieces and crush with rolling pin.

Preparation of Collar for Souffle Dish

Place a 4-inch band of double thickness aluminum foil around the top of the souffle dish. Fasten it with cellophane tape so foil overlaps top edge about 2 inches so that when the mixture is placed in a souffle mold it will give the illusion of a souffle when the paper is removed.

Make dessert a party

Cheesecake to share with friends

Today, when so many homemakers work outside the home, and when the cost of preparing a complete meal for guests seems formidable, it's a pleasant, friendly gesture to invite your favorite people for after-dinner dessert and your best coffee.

Fruited Vanilla Cheesecake is a rich and luscious treat — simply impressive for the best occasion — which will make eight very generous or 12 "polite" portions. You can doll up each serving with an attractive garnish of sliced fresh peaches, golden green grapes or other fruit.

This cheesecake is uncured and must be chilled for several hours or overnight, so it can be made well in advance of the feast.

Vanilla-Coffee Cheese Pie is another delicious dessert; it should serve six to eight and it, too, is yummy. A cream cheese filling is flavored with a combination of vanilla and coffee.

FRUITED VANILLA CHEESECAKE

1½ cups sugar, divided
4 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
3 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
1 cup heavy cream
Graham Cracker Shell
Sliced strawberries, peaches or other soft fruit in season

In top part of double boiler mix 1 cup of the sugar with gelatin and salt. Stir in egg yolks and milk. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla extract, lemon peel and juice. Chill until mixture is as thick as unbeaten egg white. In the large bowl of an electric mixer, beat cream cheese until light and fluffy. Stir in thickened gelatin mixture; beat well. With clean beaters beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar; fold into cheese mixture. With same beaters beat cream until thick; fold into cheese mixture. Spoon mixture into Graham Cracker Shell. Chill until firm. Run a knife around inside edge of pan loosen slightly. Remove sides of pan. Just before serving, decorate with sliced fruit and whipped cream, if desired.

Graham Cracker Shell: In a medium saucepan melt ½ cup butter or margarine. Stir in 2½ cups graham cracker crumbs and 5 tablespoons sugar. Press into bottom and sides of a lightly buttered 9-inch spring form pan. Yield: one 9-inch cheesecake.

VANILLA-COFFEE

CHEESE PIE

2 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1/3 cup dairy sour cream
2 teaspoons freeze-dried or regular instant coffee
1 tablespoon boiling water
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
9-inch baked pie shell

In a large bowl blend cheese with sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs and sour cream until well blended. Dissolve coffee in boiling water. Add to cheese mixture with vanilla extract. Beat until well blended. Pour mixture into pie shell; spread smooth. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until a knife inserted in center comes out clean, about 30 minutes. Cool completely on wire rack. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

Fruited Vanilla Cheesecake

Ground turkey creates a new entree

It takes some real ingenuity these days to avoid whipping up the same old menus day after day. Why not give your family a welcome change? Try the new ground turkey now available at your meat counter.

Ground turkey is economically priced, but a little different from the usual standby. It has a more delicate flavor so you need a lighter hand with the spices. It also blends easily with other foods.

Although turkey meat browns as fast as other ground meat, it may have to be cooked a little longer. Don't overcook if you want it tender and juicy. You'll notice ground turkey leaves no fat drippings in the pan. It's low in fat — that's why it is lower in cholesterol than any other popular red meat.

Ground turkey is dark meat, with its correct proportion of skin. It is lean and mild in flavor. An average serving of three and one-half ounces contains only 130 calories, and you can use it as you would other ground meats in your favorite recipes. It's protein rich and one pound will serve four to five people.

Why not try a delicious cheesy meat pie, for instance? It's a convenient one-dish meal that you can make ahead. The recipe is concocted for cooks in a hurry because the piecrust is made with refrigerated crescent roll dough that you simply roll out to fit a pie plate.

The filling is ground turkey, spices, onions, green pepper and mushrooms. Over it all — slices of cheese, bubbling on top as the pie comes out of the oven. Serve in wedges to the bridge club, a morning social brunch, or as a hearty family main dish.

CHEESY TURKEY PIE

1 pound fresh ground turkey
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 4-ounce can chopped mushrooms, drained
¼ teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
3 eggs
2 packages refrigerated crescent rolls (8 rolls in each)
6 slices sharp American cheese

In skillet brown turkey, onion and green pepper; drain. Stir in tomato sauce, mushrooms, oregano, thyme, salt and pepper; set aside. Unroll one package of rolls. Place the four sections of dough together, forming 12x8-inch rectangle. Seal edges and perforations together. Roll to 12-inch square. Fit into a 9-inch pie plate; trim.

Separate one of the eggs; set yolk aside. Beat egg white with remaining two eggs. Spread half over dough. Spoon meat into shell. Arrange cheese slices atop; spread remaining egg mixture over cheese. Mix reserved yolk and 1 tablespoon water; brush lightly on edge of pastry. Reserve remaining. Roll second package of rolls to 12-inch square as before. Place atop filling. Trim, seal, and flute edge; cut slits for escape of steam. Brush top with remaining egg yolk mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes. If pastry gets too brown, cover with foil. Let stand 10 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cottage cheese beefs up beef

Everytime you eat cottage cheese, you get a nutritional bonus — it's rich in calcium, riboflavin, thiamine, and phosphorus. One half cup of cottage cheese will give you about 30 per cent of your daily protein requirement, so that it can be used to extend meat and poultry dishes, or as a substitute for meat.

"Adding cottage cheese to meat loaf provides a nourishing main dish. Serve it with mixed vegetables, hot buttered rolls, and a colorful Fruit Cheese Salad."

COTTAGE CHEESE MEAT LOAF

1 pound ground beef
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 egg

Freeze meat dishes

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, almost any type of meat stew, ragout, or goulash — beef, lamb, pork, or veal can be frozen. Most vegetables in these combination dishes freeze well.

Save small or end pieces of Cheddar cheese to garnish or accent. If the pieces become hard and dry, grate them and refrigerate in a tightly closed container.

When buying eggs, remember there is a difference in the size. Large eggs must weigh at least 24 ounces per dozen; mediums, at least 21 ounces; and smalls, at least 18 ounces.

1 cup catsup
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Thoroughly mix all ingredients except Parmesan cheese. Lightly pack meat into 8 x 8 x 2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Sprinkle top with cheese. Bake 10 minutes longer. Let stand 5 minutes; cut into squares. Make 8-9 servings.

4 medium apples, unpared and diced
1 medium banana, sliced
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup drained pineapple tidbits
1½ cups green seedless grapes
½ cup coarsely chopped pecans

1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup sour cream
Sprinkle apples and bananas with salt, lemon and orange juice. Add pineapple, grapes and pecans. Blend together cottage cheese and sour cream. Add to fruit mixture. Toss lightly. Spoon onto crisp salad greens. Make 8 servings.

Delicious enough for guests

Her chicken has an Italian flavor

by LOIS SEILER

Using the trial and error method, Pat Cimballo of Des Plaines eventually devised a chicken recipe to suit her taste. She makes it for the family, but it is delicious enough to serve to guests.

Either one or two cut-up chickens may be used, as there is ample gravy in either case. Pat seasons the chicken generously with garlic powder and oregano, which pleases her husband, Rich, who is of Italian descent. Then she browns it with more garlic, onions and mushrooms. Wine, mushroom soup and milk are stirred into the pan drippings to make a rich sauce in which to cook the chicken and additional raw onions. The gravy is yummy over rice or mashed potatoes, and this method is also excellent to use when preparing pheasant.

As accompaniments Pat suggests Italian bread, a big salad and dessert. If a vegetable is desired, it should be plain because of the rich gravy.

PAT LIKES TO use both Romaine and iceberg lettuce in her salads, having them thoroughly dry and well-chilled. She always keeps a supply of garlic-flavored oil on hand to use for the dressing. A little of this is mixed with wine vinegar and sugar and shaken vigorously in a jar until it turns thick and creamy. Tossed with the greens, onion rings are a tasty addition and Parmesan cheese may be sprinkled on top.

For dessert, kolacky makes a big hit with family and guests. Pat makes hers from a recipe she acquired when the Cimbalos lived in Berwyn. Although a yeast dough is used, there is no kneading involved.

The ingredients are mixed together and the dough is rolled out and cut into circles. Pat makes a depression in each, filling it with Solo brand apricot filling, a favorite of her children, Laura, 18, Mike, 8, and Tony, 1½ years old.

BAKED UNTIL lightly browned, they are sprinkled with confectioner's sugar. These kolacky are light in texture and appealing to serve for breakfast, coffee parties or as a dinner dessert.

Although Pat teaches both piano and organ in her home and assists her husband with office work for his construction company, she still takes time to try new recipes. Tasting a new dish at a restaurant is inspiration for her to duplicate it in her own kitchen, where she finds the harmonious blending of foods as satisfying as a harmonious melody in her music room.

CHICKEN AND WINE

- 1 or 2 whole fryer chickens, cut up
- ½ stick margarine
- Salt
- Pepper
- Garlic powder
- Oregano
- 2 whole onions, sliced and separated into rings
- 2 whole cloves garlic
- ½ pound fresh mushrooms

- ½ cup white or light red wine
- 2 cans cream of mushroom soup
- 1 can milk
- 1 can chicken broth

Melt ½ stick margarine and brown chicken which has been seasoned with salt, pepper, a generous amount of garlic powder and oregano. As the chicken browns, add one of the onions which has been cut into rings and the whole garlic cloves. When all is browned, remove from pan and discard garlic.

Saute mushrooms lightly in pan. Pour off any excess grease, leaving only 2 tablespoons in pan. Add wine and stir well to loosen pan drippings. Add mushroom soup and milk and stir well. Do not boil; simmer gently until well mixed.

Return chicken and onions to gravy. Taste to correct seasonings, adding more pepper, garlic powder and oregano, if desired. Add remaining onion rings. Cook gently, covered, for 30 minutes. If gravy is getting too thick, add ½ to 1 can chicken broth. Cook an additional 10 to 15 minutes. Serve with rice or mashed potatoes.

ITALIAN SALAD

- ½ head iceberg lettuce, well chilled
  - 1 small package Romaine, washed, dried thoroughly and well chilled
- Break leaves and lettuce in small pieces. Can add 1 onion cut in rings, if desired.

Have 2 to 3 cloves garlic marinating in 4 ounces oil for at least a couple of hours. As the oil is used, more may be added to have garlic-flavored oil on hand at all times. For this quantity of greens, use the following:

- 2 ounces garlic oil
  - 1 ounce red wine vinegar
  - ½ teaspoon sugar
- Combine ingredients in a jar and shake vigorously until thick and creamy. Pour over greens and toss well. Sprinkle with grated parmesan cheese, if desired.

KOLACKY

- 1 package dry granular yeast
  - ¾ cup scalded half and half, cooled to lukewarm
  - 1 tablespoon sugar
  - 1 cup margarine
  - 2 cups flour
  - 4 slightly beaten egg yolks
  - 1 can Solo apricot filling
- Dissolve yeast in lukewarm half and half and add sugar.

Cut margarine into flour with a pastry blender as you would for pie dough. Add egg yolks and yeast mixture and beat thoroughly by hand.

Turn out half the dough onto a floured board or pastry cloth. Roll out to ¼-inch thickness (not too thin.) Cut into circles 2½-inches in diameter. Place on an ungreased cookie sheet. Repeat process with remaining dough. Make a deep depression in the middle of each circle of dough with your thumb. Fill each with a rounded teaspoon apricot filling. Let stand for 15 minutes.

Bake at 400 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake another 4 to 5 minutes until slightly brown, watching carefully. Cool and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Store in covered tin. Kolacky also freeze well. Makes 2½ to 3 dozen.

Canned soup makes sauce for simple manicotti dish

Manicotti is an interesting Italian dish consisting of pasta which is stuffed with meat or cheese, baked and served with either tomato or a rich cheese sauce. The word means sleeve and the manicotti pasta usually is made in tubular fashion about four inches long and an inch in diameter and can be purchased in Italian stores or some supermarkets. A shorter version is marketed as tuffoli.

Here is a simple recipe for a manicotti dish which eliminates long hours of sauce making such as Restaurateur Gene Leone used to do to satisfy the palate of famed sports cartoonist Willard Mullin. Mullin, now retired, makes this in his kitchen in Ft. Myers Beach, Fla.

When cooking pasta always use lots of water. Salt and bring to boil and cook 10 manicotti tubes until tender (about 10 minutes). Drain and allow pasta to cool. Meantime mix 1 pound ricotta (dry and unsalted cottage cheese), ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese, and 1 lightly beaten egg.

Use a pastry knife or small spoon and stuff each tube with the cheese mixture. Arrange manicotti in a 12-inch Pyrex or shallow baking dish. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan, add ½ teaspoon basil and ¼ cup chopped onion. Cook until onion is tender.

Now add 1 can cream of chicken soup, 1 can cream of mushroom soup (both undiluted), 1½ cups of boned chicken meat, a small can or jar of drained,

by Charles Flynn

sliced mushrooms, half a green pepper chopped fine, and ½ cup water. Stir well and heat thoroughly but do not boil. When sauce is ready, pour over the manicotti and bake 35 minutes at 350 degrees.

Now cover the dish with 4 or 5 slices of provolone cheese and continue to bake until cheese is melted. Serve from the casserole to 4.

A crisp green salad with real Italian dressing is a good combination for manicotti. To make the dressing mash 1 garlic clove in a bowl and stir well with 6 tablespoons virgin olive oil. Discard the bits of garlic. Add 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar, juice of half a lemon, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon ground black pepper. Beat well with a wire whisk or fork until thoroughly blended. If you like add some chopped chives or green scallions for more flavor. Makes about 1 cup.

Consumer notes

Maintain strict sanitation in preparing any food for the home freezer. Keep all food to be frozen — and everything that touches it — clean.

Losses of vitamins A and C occur when vegetable tissues are bruised. To prevent bruising use a sharp blade when trimming, cutting or shredding.

What does the term "egg meals" mean? It refers to the contents of an egg including the yolk or albumen, but excluding the shell membrane and the shell, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Did you know? Under U. S. Department of Agriculture standards, "Beans with franks in sauce" must contain at least 20 per cent franks.

A LIGHT SPRINKLE of confectioner's sugar and Pat Cimballo's kolacky will be ready for family breakfast, a coffee party or company dessert. The Des Plaines homemaker's family prefers an apricot filling.

Two do-ahead recipes for entertaining ease

Planning a brunch, a lunch, a one-dish supper? Then consider the following recipes for Chicken and Mushrooms in Popovers and Chicken, Mushroom and Ham Stew with Biscuits. Either would fill the bill and your guests.

In these maddening days it's every hostess for herself, but there is advance preparation which can be done. For the Chicken and Mushrooms, cook the chicken at your leisure hours before and dice. Beat up the popover batter and grease the 2½-inch muffin pans you'll need for 16 popovers.

When you're ready to finish the dish the sliced mushrooms are cooked in five minutes; allow an additional 10 minutes to heat the marinara sauce with the seasonings. This filling will be done just about the time the popovers are done.

Mushrooms and biscuits highlight Chicken, Mushroom and Ham Stew. You can make the stew ahead of time and refrigerate it, but remember to heat it through before the final stage of topping with biscuits and baking them nicely brown in a hot oven.

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOMS IN POPOVERS

- 1 package (1 lb.) fresh mushrooms
  - 3 tablespoons oil
  - 1 cup finely chopped onions
  - ½ cup diced green pepper
  - 1 teaspoon finely minced garlic
  - 2 jars (14 oz each) marinara sauce
  - 3 cups diced cooked chicken
  - 1 teaspoon marjoram leaves, crumbled
  - ½ teaspoon salt
- Popovers

Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms. In a large skillet heat oil. Add onions, green pepper and garlic; saute 3 minutes. Add mushrooms; saute 5 minutes. Stir in marinara sauce. Add chicken, marjoram and salt. Cook, covered 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

POPOVERS

In a medium bowl lightly beat 4 eggs. Add 2 cups milk, 2 cups all-purpose flour and 1 teaspoon salt; beat just until smooth. Do not overbeat. Pour into 16 greased 2½-inch muffin pan cups, ¾ full. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 40 minutes or until golden. Immediately remove from pan. Yield: 6 to 8 portions (16 popovers)

USDA proposed meat grade change could be beneficial to consumer

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently proposed changes in federal meat grading standards which could have both long and short range benefits for consumers, according to John C. Pierce, Director of the Livestock Division of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

The proposed changes are not drastic, he said, and the result would add both precision and efficiency to beef production and marketing.

The most significant effect Pierce cited would be a long range one: namely extensive reduction in the amount of excess fat on cattle — and on beef. Producing, shipping and trimming off excess fat on beef now costs more than $2 billion annually. Reducing this cost would ideally mean substantial savings to both producers and consumers.

Pierce explained that much of the current cost could be avoided through increased production of "meat type" cattle. These are cattle that have an inherent ability to produce high quality beef, are thickly muscled and yet have little excess fat when they reach market weights.

Genetically improving beef cattle along these lines takes time, said Pierce. But improvement could be hastened if superior meat-type cattle receive recognition and more favorable market prices.

Such recognition and pricing would be facilitated through one of the changes proposed in the beef grading system — the proposal to require that whenever beef is graded, it be graded for both quality and yield. (USDA yield grades run from 1 to 5 and measure the percent of trimmed retail cuts.) This change would give beef carcass buyers and sellers a more complete and accurate indication of the carcass's market value, said Pierce.

Short range effects of the proposed changes would be threefold, said Pierce. These would be slightly leaner beef in the top grades, a redesigned and more restrictive Good grade; and more uniform eating quality in the higher grades, Prime, Choice and Good.

SLIGHTLY LEANER beef in the top grades would be brought about by changing the marbling-maturity relationships for beef from young cattle under about 30 months of age, according to USDA. Current grade standards are based on the premise that marbling (flecks of fat within the lean) enhances beef eating quality, which an increase in the animal's age has the opposite effect. Present standards require increasing amounts of marbling in an increase in age.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

However, Pierce said, more recent research shows that for young animals advancing age does not have a significant effect on eating quality. So, USDA proposes marbling requirements be reduced within each grade, but only to the level now required for the youngest beef animals in the grade. Consumers would be getting slightly leaner beef in the Prime and Choice grades if this change is adopted.

The second short-range effect relates only to Good grade beef. The minimum marbling requirement for Good beef would be increased slightly, making the range of quality much narrower than it is now. The result, according to USDA, would be a special, uniform quality grade of beef that should appeal to consumers who want less internal and surface fat than they get in Choice grade beef.

Pierce also feels that the proposed changes would result in increased uniformity and consistency in the eating quality of Prime, Choice and Good grades of beef. This would be achieved, he said, by the proposal to eliminate conformation (the shape of the carcass) as a quality grade factor. Conformation has no effect on the eating quality of beef, but does relate to the yield of retail cuts in a carcass and to its value, he said.

USDA is soliciting public comments on the proposed changes. Comments should be sent in duplicate to the Office of the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Comments must be filed by Dec.

Think nutrition for easy snacks

Quick lunches for school children and for their busy mothers need not be short on nutrition. Savory Stuffed Egg Salad combines hard-cooked eggs and canned chicken spread spiced with a touch of curry. Kids will enjoy eating these with their fingers. Stuff several hard-cooked eggs, wrap them in plastic wrap or keep in plastic storage units in the refrigerator. These make good afterschool snacks and some will even enjoy them for breakfast. Mothers especially will find these give them more energy that lasts longer than the usual mid-morning snack of pastry and coffee.

SAVORY STUFFED EGG SALAD

4 hard-cooked eggs
1 4-oz. can chicken spread
1/4 cup minced celery
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1/4 teaspoon curry powder
Cut eggs lengthwise, remove yolks and combine with chicken spread, celery, mayonnaise and curry powder. Generously refill egg whites with this mixture. Sprinkle with paprika and serve on lettuce with carrot sticks for garnish. Makes 2 servings.

Healthful bread kids will enjoy

A one-bowl quick bread recipe always is welcome in this day of active mothers who are busy but want their children to eat healthfully... and have some memories, too. Few aromas kindle the thoughts of youth as much as that of homemade bread baking. A hearty and nutritious bread combines protein-rich peanut butter and bananas with a dollop of orange. This goes well in the school-lunch box when spread with cream cheese or as a breakfast bite with milk to start the day more nutritiously than most individuals do today.

PEANUT-BUTTER BANANA BREAD

1/3 cup peanut butter
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup mashed ripe bananas (2 medium)
1/2 cup milk
Grated rind of 1 orange
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
In a large bowl cream peanut butter and butter. Gradually stir in sugar. Beat in eggs until smooth. Stir in banana, milk and grated orange rind. Sift remaining ingredients and stir into bowl. Stir until smooth. Spoon dough into a greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2 loaf pan. Spread dough until top is smooth. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 80 to 70 minutes or until bread feels firm to the touch. Unmold loaf and cool on a rack thoroughly before cutting into thin slices. Serve spread with butter, honey, cream cheese or your favorite jam, jelly or preserves. Makes one 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch loaf. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Budget-wise chuck roast recipes

Clever shoppers get more meat for their money. A really great choice is chuck roast. Buy it in a thick slice with bone in, and cook it to a juicy, savory turn.

One hearty, flavorful dish made with this cut of beef is Mexican Chuck Roast. To prepare it, brown the chuck roast then simmer it with an imaginative mixture of onions, green chilies, kidney beans and tomatoes. Toward the end of the cooking time, whole kernel corn is added, and the dish is served with a bright topping of shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese.

Your family will suffer no skimp on meat in this time of high prices if you have these recipes in hand. Flemish cooks across the sea take the credit for another superb dish made with beef, Chuck Roast Carbonnade. It is traditionally served with new potatoes but small red ones can also be used.

MEXICAN CHUCK ROAST

- 1 3-pound chuck roast
- 1½ teaspoons Ac'cent
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons salad oil
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped canned green chilies
- 1 can (1 pound) red kidney beans
- 1 can (1 pound) tomato sauce
- 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen whole kernel corn

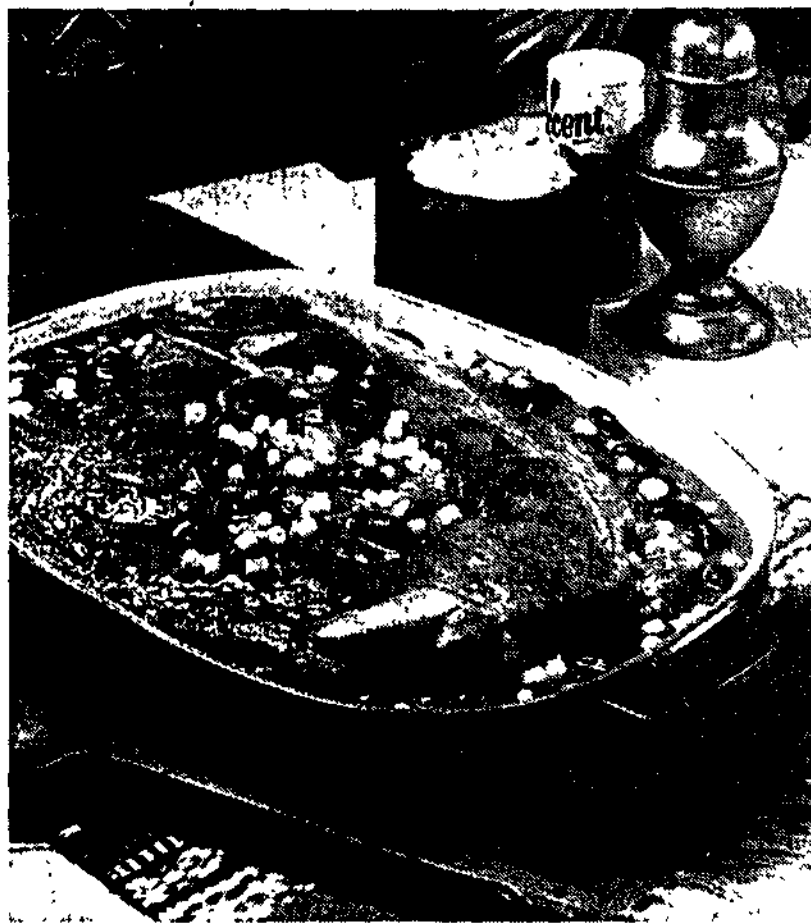

- 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese

Sprinkle chuck roast on both sides with Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Heat oil in Dutch oven; add roast and brown on both sides. Add onion, chilies, kidney beans, tomato sauce, tomatoes and vinegar. Cover and simmer 2½ hours. Add corn, cover and simmer 1½ to 1 hour longer, until meat is tender. Serve sprinkled with cheese. Yield: 6 servings.

CHUCK ROAST CARBONNADE

- 1 2-pound chuck roast
- 1 teaspoon Ac'cent
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- 2 carrots, pared and cut in half
- ½ clove garlic, minced
- 2 cans (12 ounces each) beer
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- ¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- 8 new potatoes, cut in half

Sprinkle chuck roast on both sides with Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Heat oil in Dutch oven; add roast and brown on both sides. Add remaining ingredients except potatoes. Cover and simmer 2 hours. Add potatoes, cover and simmer ½ hour longer, or until meat is tender. Yield: 4 servings.

Treat yourself to coffee cake

Treat yourself to a special breakfast menu with Coconut-Chocolate Swirl Coffeecake. Made with flaked coconut, semi-sweet chocolate, and biscuit mix; and served warm from the oven, this moist, marbled cake is bound to start a dull, dreary day on a bright note.

COCONUT-CHOCOLATE SWIRL COFFEECAKE

- 2/3 cup flaked coconut
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine melted
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 squares semi-sweet chocolate
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 2 cups biscuit mix
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons salad oil

Combine coconut, butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, and the cinnamon; set aside. Melt chocolate with 2 tablespoons milk in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly; cool. Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix, 3/4 cup milk, sugar, egg, and salad oil; beat vigorously about 30 seconds. Add half the dough to the melted chocolate; blend well. Alternately spoon chocolate mixture and remaining dough into greased 8-inch square pan. Cut through batter with spatula or knife in zigzag pattern to marble. Even sprinkle reserved coconut mixture over batter. Bake at 400 degrees for about 30 minutes or until light browned. Cool; cut into squares. Makes about 9 servings.

Household hints

When buying canned fruit, allow one-half cup or two fruit halves per person. You can get two servings from an 8 or 8½ ounce can; three to four servings from a 16 or 17 ounce can; and seven servings from a 29 ounce can.

Cheese spread and cheese foods need special storage. Store unopened jars at room temperatures; after opening, refrigerate tightly covered; store boxed or wrapped cheese food in refrigerator. All will keep for several weeks.

Don't throw away leftovers. Use egg yolks in baked custard, cookies, cakes, homemade noodles, mock hollandaise sauce, or scrambled eggs. Make cakes, meringues and souffles to use extra whites.

Some frozen vegetables, particularly cut green beans, beans, corn, peas, and corn, potatoes, and mixed vegetables are available in heavy polyethylene bags containing 16, 24 or 32 ounces. The advantage of this type of packaging is that the vegetables usually separate enough to pour needed amount for cooking and return the rest to the freezer for later.

Home baked potato breads

When there's time to bake

Homemade bread is always welcome

Baking bread is not difficult as anyone who has ever done it can tell you. But if you've never baked bread, you'll be amazed at how absolutely therapeutic just the mixing and kneading process can be. And what better way to greet the family at dinner time, than with the aroma of fresh baked bread.

Here are two new recipes for potato bread which learn old fashioned flavor with modern techniques.

Anadama bread is a traditional favorite that blends the flavors of molasses and corn meal for a slightly sweet, hearty bread. If the family doesn't devour it immediately, it makes breakfast something special with its nut sweet flavor toasted to a turn.

Years ago leftover mashed potatoes were added to bread dough, making the end result a moist loaf that stayed fresh longer. Anadama bread modernizes this technique with the use of instant mashed potato flakes.

Oatmeal Wheat Bread combines two favorite grains, rolled oats and whole wheat together in instant mashed potato granules. This loaf makes a taste treat out of sandwiches and is also the perfect toast.

ANADAMA BREAD

- 5 to 5½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup country style mashed potato flakes
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- ½ cup corn meal
- 2 cups boiling water
- ½ cup molasses
- 1/3 cup shortening
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 eggs

Combine three cups flour, potato flakes, and yeast. In large bowl, stir corn meal into boiling water; add molasses, shortening, and salt; cool to lukewarm. Add flour-yeast mixture and eggs. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for ½ minute, scraping bowl frequently. Beat 3 minutes at medium speed. Stir in enough flour to make a soft dough. Knead on floured surface until smooth and elastic, 7 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease all surfaces. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, 45 to 60 minutes. Punch down, divide in half, cover, and let rest 10 minutes. Roll out each half on floured surface to 12 x 7-inch rectangle. Roll up tightly, jelly roll fashion, starting with 7-inch side. Seal seams and ends. Place in two well-greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pans. Cover and let rise again until double, 45 to 60 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, until deep golden brown. Remove from pans; cool. Makes 2 loaves.

OATMEAL-WHEAT BREAD

- 2 cups whole wheat flour
  - ¾ cup (½ of 5 serving envelope) instant mashed potato granules
  - 3 packages active dry yeast
  - 1 tablespoon salt
  - 2 cups milk
  - 1/3 cup honey
  - ¼ cup shortening
  - ½ cup rolled oats
  - 2½ to 3 cups all-purpose flour
- Combine whole wheat flour, potato granules, yeast, and salt in large bowl. Heat milk, honey, and shortening until lukewarm; add to flour mixture. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for ½ minute, scraping bowl frequently. Beat 3 minutes at medium speed. Stir in oats and enough all-purpose flour to make a stiff dough. Knead on floured surface until smooth and elastic, 7 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease all surfaces. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, 1 to 1½ hours. Punch down, divide in half, cover, and let rest 10 minutes. Roll out each half on floured surface to a 12 x 7-inch rectangle. Roll up tightly, jelly roll fashion, starting with 7-inch side. Seal seam and ends. Place, seam side down, in two well-greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch pans. Cover; let rise again until double, 45 to 60 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, until deep golden brown. Remove from pan; cool. Makes two loaves.

Be glad the good old days of home cooking are gone

by JEANNE LESEM

People who long nostalgically for the good old days of home cooking don't know how lucky they are to have missed them.

Those were the days when vegetables were boiled for hours, until they had lost not only their flavor but also their nutrients. One 19th Century cookbook author wrote that half cooked vegetables were exceedingly indigestible and unwholesome.

Rare beef was a rarity because most cuts were so tough they had to be tenderized by long, slow cooking.

Cakes, pies and other sweets were deliciously rich. They used eggs by the dozen and butter by the pound. But they also demanded elbow grease, for hand beating that in some recipes took an hour or more. Cooking in general was a tiring, time consuming job.

Family soup should be on the fire at six in the morning if you dine at two, advised Eliza Leslie in 1848. Vegetables should be added after the first three hours and cooked for five, she said.

MISS LESLIE'S "Directions for Cooking" is among 27 cookbooks in a new 15 volume Cookery Americana series Arno Press. They are facsimile editions of out of print and rare cookbooks from the private library of Chicago restaurateur Louis Stathmary. The books cover more than a century of American home cooking, and the picture they give is, by contemporary standards, not exactly appetizing.

Puddings were popular, although it's hard to imagine why after you've read a few recipes. Take boiled Indian suet pudding, from Mrs. J. Chadwick's "Home Cookery" published in 1853. It was made from chopped suet, milk, meal (presumably corn meal) and salt and required three to four hours cooking: It was served with molasses "or sauce of any kind you prefer."

Mrs. Chadwick's Gloucester pudding might better have been named poison pudding. Its flavoring came from a dozen bitter almonds, which have a high cyanide content.

"THE NEW FAMILY Book, or Ladies' Indispensable Companion and Housekeepers' Guide," published about the same time, offered — among other things — cole slaw consisting solely of cabbage, vinegar and salt, and dyspepsia cake. Whether the cake cured indigestion or caused it is debatable. It was made from flour, sugar, milk, salt and saleratus baking soda.

Organic vegetables were all you could get in the 1870s when "Mrs. Porter's New Southern Cookery Book" was published. Her advice about soaking vegetables in a strong brine 20 to 30 minutes probably was sound. It was necessary, she wrote, to remove insects.

But her recipes in general sound less reliable. She made lemon gingerbread without leavening and flavored it with a quarter ounce of cayenne pepper as well as ground ginger. And her ancient maiden's cake came in two versions:

"If the A.M.'s matrimonial prospects are good, frost or ice with icing of proper flavor, otherwise serve plain."

Picnic before kickoff time

Tailgating, a picnicking term that came in with the advent of the station wagon, has touched down as a fun-filled activity closely associated with football games.

The idea of packing a lunch for parking-lot dining prior to the game began as a way to beat the traffic and evolved into a customary social event. Fans arrive in the stadium parking lot as far ahead as three hours before kickoff to meet their friends for a pre-game picnic while renewing old friendships among other "tailgaters" in the lot. The crowds become so large in some stadium lots that huge banners are hung to designate the respective party areas.

Although tailgating is a popular "sport" among many football fans across the nation, it is virtually unheard of in other areas. In the Southwest, where the football games are played at night due to the blistering hot fall days, football fans meet for Mexican fare at one of the local restaurants or plan an indoor buffet at a friend's home near the stadium. In one Northwest state, loyal alumni hop on the annual "football train" at various stops across the state, and the train takes them to the university while they picnic onboard.

Tailgate menus vary from region to region with most picnic baskets packed with foods indigenous to the area. Ask almost any North Carolinian what she packs for the parking lot get-together and the fare will undoubtedly be the same: fried chicken, potato salad, deviled eggs and pimiento cheese sandwiches.

A universal favorite is potato salad with variations depending on the predominant ethnic background of the area. The Germans, Irish and other nationalities have had a hand in creating their own versions of the over popular salad.

Wisconsin football fans bring their version of potato salad or serve a popular seven layer salad along with grilled bratwurst. Ham and cheese sandwiches on potato rolls smothered in mayonnaise and horseradish are another popular picnic basket item. In this predominantly German area, liver sausage, summer sausage and cheese are served with crackers as pregame appetizers.

In the Northeast, reports of tailgate picnic menus run the gamut from dinner rolls filled with roast beef, corned beef, or pastrami to pheasant under glass served on lace tablecloths.

From informal surveys come two regional menus — one from the Midwest and the other from the South. The next time you pack a football feast — borrow some of these ideas for different picnic fare.

PIMIENTO CHEESE SANDWICHES

1½ pounds Cheddar cheese, finely shredded
1 jar (7 oz.) pimientos, drained and finely chopped
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper (optional)
¾ to 1 cup mayonnaise
36 slices sandwich bread

In large bowl, toss cheese, pimientos and pepper. Stir in mayonnaise, mixing until well blended. (Amount of mayonnaise depends on personal taste and moistness desired. If mixture is refrigerated before making sandwiches, the higher level of mayonnaise makes sandwiches easier to spread.) Using about ¼ cup of the mixture for each sandwich, spread on half of the bread slices and cover with remaining bread slices. Stack sandwiches in plastic container with layers separated by waxed paper or wrap each sandwich individually. Cover and chill. For picnic travel, use an insulated container. Makes about 18 sandwiches.

HARDER'S SEVEN LAYER SALAD

1 medium head lettuce, shredded (about 6 cups)
1 cup coarsely chopped celery

1 cup coarsely chopped green pepper
1½ cups coarsely chopped Spanish onion
1 can (16 oz.) small green peas, drained
1 to 1½ cups mayonnaise
2 tablespoons sugar
2½ cups shredded mild Cheddar cheese
8 strips bacon, cooked, drained and crumbled
Arrange lettuce in bottom of deep bowl. In layers add celery, green pepper, onion and peas; do not toss. Spread mayonnaise evenly over layer of peas. Sprinkle with sugar and Cheddar cheese. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours. Sprinkle bacon over salad before serving. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

The thing about summer is that it just doesn't seem to last as long as we'd like it to. There are so many great things to do when the days are long and balmy. If only you could spend less of that precious time in the kitchen. The following new recipes will help you stretch your leisure time with easy salad meals.

Ham 'N' Potato Main Dish Salad uses packaged scalloped potatoes to save you the peeling, paring and pot watching usually involved in the preparation of an ordinary potato salad. The seasoning mix from the packaged scalloped potatoes makes a delicious dressing when combined with mayonnaise.

Cream Turkey Salad is a unique combination of turkey, rice and peas that gets a clever taste boost from the addition of an envelope of chicken gravy mix. Turned out of its mold and garnished with tomatoes, this salad meal is a delight to the eye as well as the palate.

HAM 'N' POTATO MAIN DISH SALAD
1 package (5-8 oz.) scalloped potatoes
½ cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup oil
¼ cup vinegar
2 cups diced ham
1 to 2 cups sliced fresh raw mushrooms
½ cup chopped green onions

Let'suce
Cover potato slices from package of scalloped potatoes with salted water in saucepan. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes or until tender; drain and chill. Combine mayonnaise, oil, vinegar, and seasoning mix from package of potatoes. Toss with cooked potato slices, ham, mushrooms, and green onions. Spoon into lettuce-lined serving bowl. Makes 6 servings.

CREAMY TURKEY SALAD

½ cup uncooked regular rice
2 cups diced cooked turkey or chicken
1 to 1½ cups fresh or frozen peas, partially cooked
1 cup diced celery
1 envelope (1½ oz.) chicken gravy mix
1 cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise
Lettuce and tomatoes
Cook rice as directed on package until tender; drain and chill.

Combine with turkey, peas, and celery. Stir together contents of gravy mix envelope, sour cream, and mayonnaise; add to turkey mixture and toss lightly. Pack into 1½-quart mold; chill 30 minutes. Turn out onto lettuce-lined serving plate. Garnish with tomatoes. Makes 6 servings.

Approval needed for Blue Cross funds

Special plan OK to stymie hospital branch project?

Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital will have to begin construction of its Wheeling-Buffalo Grove branch without the planning approval needed to obtain important Blue Cross-Blue Shield funds, a hospital spokesman said Wednesday.

Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said approval by Comprehensive Health Planning, Inc., a prerequisite to receiving a Blue Cross-Blue Shield contract, probably would take six months.

To delay start of construction that long, Davis said, would mean a sharp rise in construction costs.

"If we don't get started this year, I doubt if we'll ever do it," he said. "We simply can't wait for Comprehensive Health Planning to review it."

DAVIS SAID EVEN if hospital officials waited for the review, there is still the possibility the agency would not accept the hospital plans.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital legally can begin construction without the approval of Comprehensive Health Planning. Without that agency's approval, however, Blue Cross-Blue Shield will not sign a contract with the hospital.

This means that it would not be fully reimbursed by Blue Cross-Blue Shield for costs incurred by patients with that type of hospital insurance.

A spokesman for Blue Cross said Wednesday more than 30 per cent of the persons in the United States are insured by the company and would thus create a "severe financial hardship" on any hospital which was not a member. Officials could not break down membership in the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling area.

In addition, Davis said without a Blue Cross contract the hospital backers will have to look toward an alternate method of financing the branch hospital.

A STATE LAW allows the hospital to finance part of the construction with general obligation bonds that are purchased through the county or municipality in order to obtain lower interest rates. Davis said, however, that unless the hospital can show financing agencies that it has a contract with Blue Cross, they are unwilling to commit financial support.

Thus, if the project cannot be financed with general obligation bonds, the hospital would have to use private financing which carries higher interest rates, Davis said.

He said it may be financially beneficial for his clients to obtain private financing because the higher interest rates may cost less than if they wait several months and are faced with substantially higher construction costs.

Davis said he was dismayed to learn of the Blue Cross requirement because he thought the hospital had cleared its final hurdle two weeks ago when its final plans were approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

A SPOKESMAN FOR Comprehensive Health Planning said a recent report indicated there is no need for additional hospital facilities in Cook County. He said the new hospital will not be approved unless Franklin Boulevard officials can show the agency otherwise.

"The assumption that a hospital is not needed out here is pretty ridiculous," Davis said. "I don't know how they (Comprehensive Health Planning) can refuse to approve us after we already have state approval."

By obtaining approval by the state before Oct. 1, the hospital avoided the newly-enacted certificate of need law, which requires the backers to prove that a hospital is needed where it is being proposed.

Davis said it probably is illegal for Blue Cross to refuse to enter into a contract because a hospital has not been approved by Comprehensive Health Planning. He said, however, he doubts the hospital will challenge the matter in court.

Before any decisions are reached, Davis said, he plans to meet with Blue Cross officials. He said he met with them recently, but little progress was made.

THE BLUE CROSS spokesman said it has been the firm's policy since 1973 to require review of all hospital facilities by a local planning agency before entering into a contract.

Although there are serious problems facing the new hospital, Davis said the backers are not likely to abandon the project. "I don't think those people will do that," he said. "They've already done too much and worked too hard to scrap the plans now."

Davis said the hospital will solicit the support of local organizations to demonstrate the hospital has the backing of the community. "We want to show there is great interest in this hospital," he said.

The 228-bed satellite facility has been proposed for a tract on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling's corporate limits.

Correction

A $100 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of vandals who have damaged the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St., over the last 22 months.

A headline error in Wednesday's editions of The Herald stated the reward as $3,000 which is the amount of damage done to the library.

Margaret Lusk, library board president, is personally offering the reward. Persons with information on the vandalism should go to the library or call 259-3500.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Haddon, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell, but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

Dave Tonge

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

Village manager won't act on cop's grievance

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt has upheld the decision of the police chief and has refused to act on a grievance filed by Patrolman Larry Parks.

Parks filed the grievance after Patrolman Armando Pizzi was chosen by Police Chief Peter Guttilla to attend a course in accident investigation at Northwestern Traffic Institute. The grievance charges Pizzi was "wrongfully chosen" because he has less seniority than Parks.

Passolt could not be reached Wednesday to confirm his action. For several days he has refused to comment on the grievance, saying it is an internal matter and should not be aired publicly.

Parks told The Herald he received a letter from Passolt Wednesday concerning the grievance, but refused to divulge its contents. He did say, however, that he had not decided whether he would demand a public hearing before the village board, indicating that Passolt's response was unfavorable.

Parks has been a member of the police department about a year longer than Pizzi. The course in traffic investigation is scheduled to begin Monday.

Officials react to Meadow's mayor's actions

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuerch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

2 fires damage Orchard Trace

Two fires of suspicious origin have damaged storage areas in adjacent buildings in the Orchard Trace apartment complex in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

The fires, which occurred within 22 hours of each other, were in basement storage areas at each corner of a U-shaped series of connected buildings. Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen said the cause of the two fires has not been determined. The State Fire Marshal Office was called to investigate Wednesday night.

Wednesday's 3:30 p.m. fire was in the basement of 824 and 864 Winesap Ct. One resident of the buildings said he heard a sound like glass popping and within five minutes the hallway was filled with smoke. Damage in this fire has not been determined.

Tuesday's 6 p.m. fire caused an estimated $3,000 damage to the basement storage area at 872 Winesap Ct., Koepfen said.

Koepfen said Wednesday's fire probably caused more damage than the first. There were no injuries in either fire, both of which were confined to the storage areas.

Three school districts to meet on boundaries

Officials of three Lake County school districts will get together Monday night to consider boundary changes.

The 8 p.m. meeting at Kildeer Country School, Long Grove, was called after two Long Grove families asked to be switched from Dist. 95 to Dist. 96 and High School Dist. 125. The families live on a block where other residents are in Dist. 96.

The Dist. 96 Board of Education agreed to the switch if Dist. 95 and 125 concurred. However, Dist. 96 turned down the families' request, preferring to look at the entire boundary situation.

Dist. 95 is a unit district with a single administration and school board for both elementary and high schools.

Many Lake County voters unaware of fire vote

by JOHN MAES

While officials prepare for Buffalo Grove fire service referendum in late November, many residents in the Lake County section of the village are not aware a referendum is in the works.

A Herald mini-survey shows that 44 per cent, or 22 of 50 residents interviewed from Lake County, know nothing of the efforts to switch into the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District. The district employs the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., Inc. to service the Cook County section of the village.

The Long Grove Fire Protection District currently provides the 4,000 to 5,000 residents in Lake County with fire and emergency services.

OF THE RESIDENTS contacted, 28, or 56 per cent, said they are aware of the referendum and plan to vote. Nineteen of these residents, or 67 per cent, said they were undecided or had no comment as to how they would cast their ballots. Some said they could not take a position on the matter because they are unfamiliar with the fire transfer issue and wanted more time to analyze it.

Several said they plan to attend one of four meetings scheduled over the next four weeks where the referendum will be discussed and explained by officials of the village and the two fire districts.

The first of those sessions will be at 7:30 tonight at Kilmer School, 633 Golfview Terr. Other meetings have been scheduled for Oct. 10, 17 and 24.

Eight residents who indicated they would vote, or 27 per cent, said they favor the switch. Some gave as a reason the belief that the Buffalo Grove department has a better paramedic program than Long Grove.

"I would just feel safer," said Mrs. Michael J. Burke, 7 Amberst Ct.

ANOTHER RESIDENT, Mrs. Robert Large, 1083 Parker Ln., said she would like to see the transfer for "the paramedics and the facilities."

The sentiment was echoed by Arthur Henning, 680 Wyngate Ln., who said, "I'd just rather have them. They have better equipment."

The Long Grove department currently has four certified paramedics and officials of the district say their program will be in operation by early November.

Three of the residents surveyed said they would prefer to remain in the Long Grove fire district, saying the station is closer and emergency crews can respond to calls quicker.

Late November vote likely

Village Atty. Richard Raysa said Wednesday the fire-service referendum for Buffalo Grove probably will be delayed until late November.

Raysa said an Oct. 25 hearing has been set in Circuit Court on the petitions that have been circulating for permission to conduct the election and a period of 20 days must follow before the court announces a referendum date.

The period will allow objectors to the fire transfer to file notices with the court. Raysa said if the court sets a referendum date it will probably be near the end of November.

Buffalo Grove fire officials and members of a select village committee promoting the election had been considering Oct. 26 as a possible date for the vote.

The referendum affects 4,000 to 5,000 residents in the northern area of Buffalo Grove in Lake County that receive fire protection from the Long Grove Fire Protection District.

The referendum will decide whether the area will be transferred to the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District, which serves the rest of Buffalo Grove.

Twisted Oak Ln., cited an accident several months ago in which her son was injured. The Long Grove ambulance, she said, arrived "in a matter of minutes."

BUFFALO GROVE Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he is not surprised at the number of residents unaware of the referendum, or undecided as to how they will vote.

"It surprises me that so few people are undecided at this point," he said officials from both departments agreed that residents' unawareness is "one of the biggest problems we've got."

Winter said flyers explaining the issue will be sent to all the residents in the Lake County area the week preceding the vote. "They're purely informational so that everybody who doesn't make it to the open houses can be somewhat conversant when the referendum comes up," Winter said.

Officials react to actions of Meyer's sales practices

W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

Car crash injures Wheeling driver

A Wheeling man was injured early Wednesday when his car rolled over on River Road, north of Kensington Road in Mount Prospect.

John S. Willis, 24, of 1417 S. Wolf Rd., was treated at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines and then released. Police said the 2:43 a.m. accident occurred when Willis lost control of his car and it hit the shoulder of the road. Damage to the car was estimated at $2,500.

Police charged Willis with leaving the roadway and he is to appear Nov. 6 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Schools adopt new sex ed program for upper grades

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A new sex education curriculum for seventh and eighth graders in River Trails Dist. 26 has been adopted by the board of education.

The two-year program was designed during the summer by teachers Marianno Jezowski and Don Wickersham and was presented to the board at its Tuesday night meeting.

Alan Levin, curriculum director, said sex education was taught last year by a team of outside consultants. This year, he added, the curriculum will be taken over at the district level and taught by teachers.

The seventh-grade curriculum, which will be taught over a four-week period, will deal with the adolescent changes experienced by young people, and with reproduction.

LEVIN STRESSED that the curriculum "emphasizes the normal to alleviate any worries about fast or slow development."

Teachers will discuss not only the physical changes young people experience but the social and emotional changes. Discussions on reproduction will include information on the male and female reproduction systems, fertilization, prenatal development and birth.

Eighth-grade curriculum will review reproduction and delve into the areas of dating and social diseases.

The two teachers who mapped out the new program created a 54-page guide for use by sex education teachers. The guide includes pages of reference material, discussion topics, diagrams, suggested activities, and the district's objectives in teaching each of the subject areas.

FOR EXAMPLE, IN the area of emotional aspects of adolescent change, the guide lists as objectives: to identify feelings about bodily changes, and to examine the difference between the emotions that are real and those that are unsubstantiated.

The unit will deal with understanding how bodily changes affect the emotions, handling new sex drives, understanding feelings of independence, control of emotions and acknowledging the desire to make oneself attractive to the opposite sex.

The guide points out there are special topics which teachers should be prepared to consider whenever questions are asked in class.

"A question asked by a student in slang will be answered by the teachers by changing the words to the correct medical term," Levin told the board. He added that questions of sexual technique will not be included in the program.

During their research, the teachers sought advice from the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction's office on how to handle discussions of birth control.

The response from the state, Levin said, was that only a doctor can discuss birth control with a class and students must have written permission from their parents. Teachers should refer questions on the subject back to the parents — pointing out there are religious overtones, he said.

"NOT INCLUDING birth control information is like giving a child a book of matches and not telling him where the extinguisher is," said board member Leora Rosen.

Other board members tagged OSPI's answer as "archaic" and "outdated."

Wickersham, who may be teaching the sex education course, said both he and Jezowski had hoped the board would react in favor of including birth control in the curriculum. He said changes would be made in the guide as teachers work with it and it was possible this addition would be made.

The guide contains recommendations, also approved by the board:

- A sex education curriculum for kindergarten through eighth grade should be developed to emphasize self-understanding, family life, social responsibilities and physical development.

- The process of formulating a sex education curriculum should be an on-going process; deletions and additions should be made as necessary.

- The guide should be evaluated by parents and teachers and should be revised each year based on recommendations.

- Parent meetings should be held to show the specific materials that will be used and answer any questions.

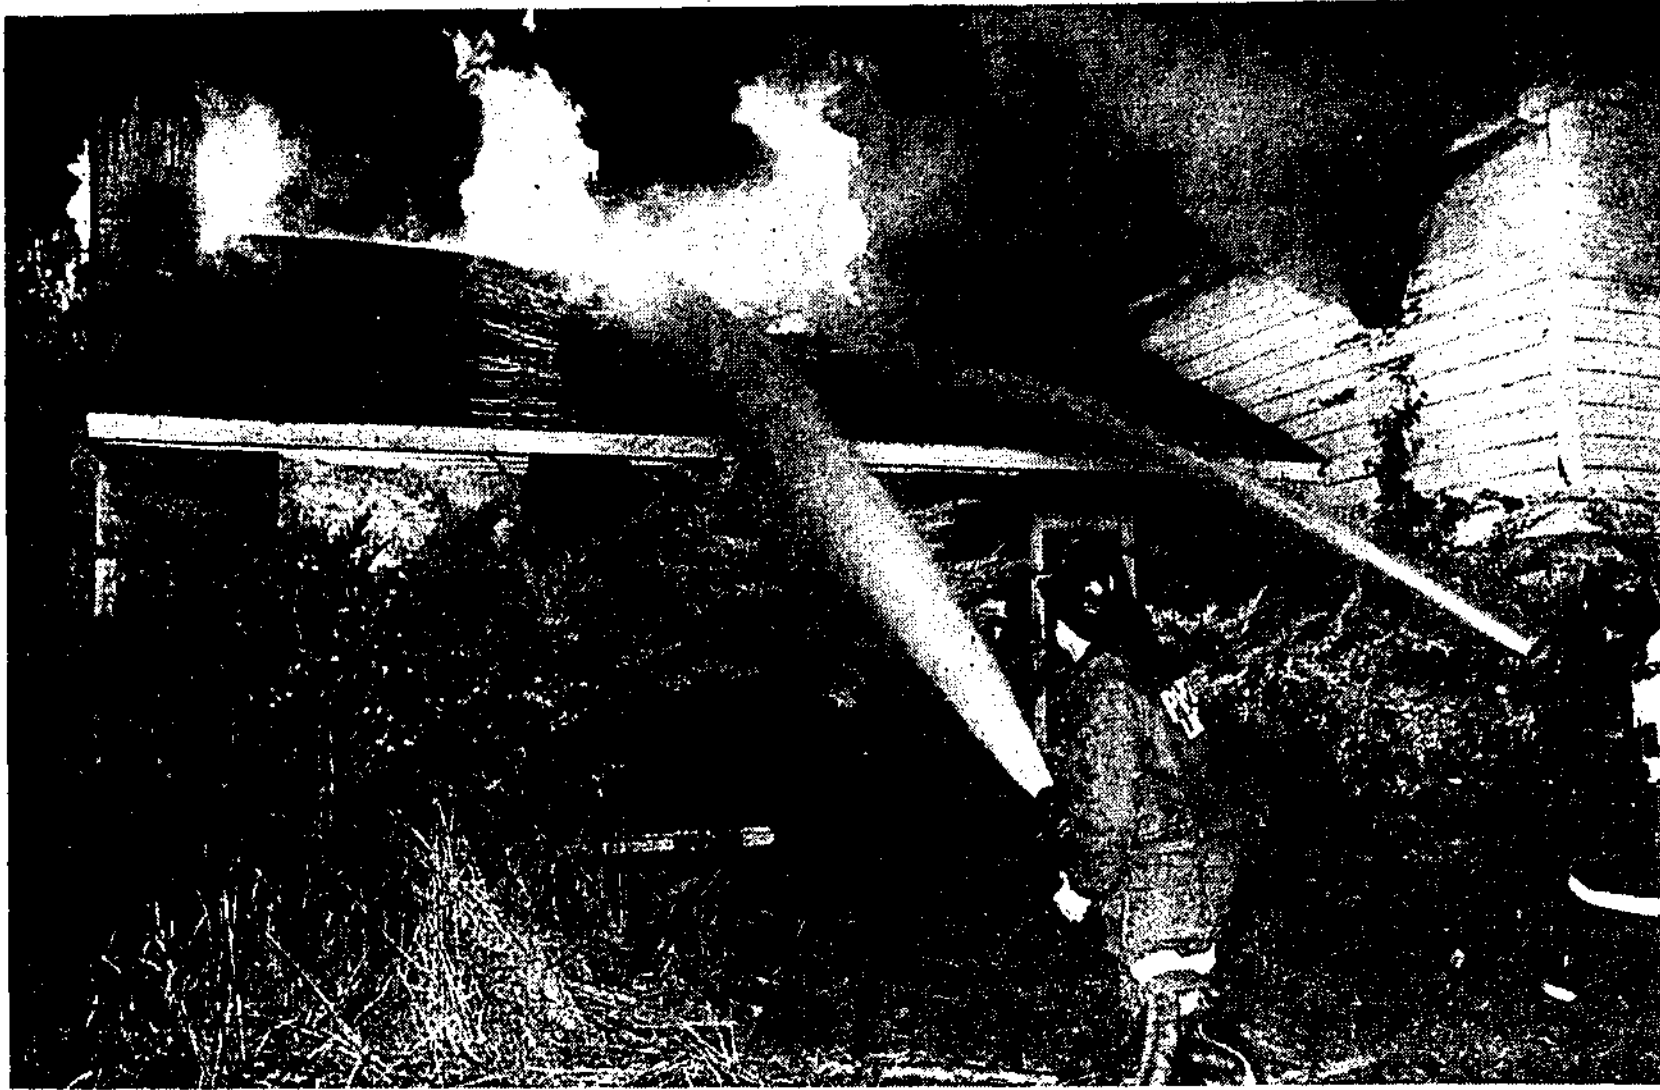

- A parent bookshelf should be established with reference materials for adults.

- Supplementary materials should be purchased.

- No teacher should be forced to teach the curriculum.

- Teachers will have in-service training to help them use the guide and become comfortable with the subject area.

The curriculum will be used this year after initial changes are made by Levin and training workshops are held for instructors.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS FIREMEN hose down a fire Monday night in an abandoned house near the intersection of Rand Road and Margaret Avenue.

Damage in the 10:45 p.m. fire was extensive. At about the same time, they fought a brush fire on the Rob Roy Golf course, east of Wheeling Road and south of Camp McDonald Road. A third fire was discovered about 3:20 a.m. Tuesday in an unoccupied storage building on E. Olive Avenue.

Firm hired to study costs

Prospect moves to buy water system

Mount Prospect has taken the first step toward purchase of Citizens Utilities Co.'s water and sewer system in the New Town section of the village.

The village board Tuesday voted to hire the firm of M & E/Alstot, March and Guillou Inc., Des Plaines, to conduct a study of the cost of purchasing the utility company's equipment in the north-east portion of the village.

Cost of the appraisal is not to exceed $27,600.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Wednesday the purpose of the appraisal is to determine whether it would be financially feasible for the village to make an offer to the company and assume the water supplying job in that area.

"The study will try to place a price on capital improvements and hopefully determine how the system can be integrated into the village water system," Teichert said. The study also will try to determine if the equipment serving Mount Prospect can be separated from company holdings in other areas, Teichert said.

ACCORDING TO the agreement proposed by George March of the engineering firm, the study will determine the value of the existing water supply and sewer system and figure what other costs, such as short-range capital improvements, financing of the system, purchase and annual maintenance and operation costs would be required. The study also will report on the total cost needed for the purchase, whether the present rate structure would provide the needed revenue and whether the purchase is considered feasible.

Teichert said that if purchase of the equipment is possible the cost would be financed through the sale of revenue bonds which would be retired through the payment of user fees.

Teichert speculated that the ultimate price of purchasing the equipment could be paid off according to the present rate structure charged by Citizens. Due to a recently approved rate increase, about 2,350 households in Mount Prospect that are served by Citizens pay a minimum monthly water rate of $5.36 and a flat sewer charge of $6 per month.

The charge to Citizens customers in Mount Prospect is considerably higher than the cost assessed to village residents who are tied into the village water system.

THE RATE differential is such that a family in the Citizens service area would pay $13.46 a month including a sewer charge for 6,000 gallons of water used compared to a charge of $7 per month to other village residents for the identical service.

"The rate difference is extreme and as it stands there is no relief for the people in the Citizens area," Teichert said. "They don't have a constant supply of water and they still pay a higher cost."

The mayor added that if the Citizens equipment was integrated into the village water system, residents in the New Town area would be assured a constant water supply with good pressure because the village wells could handle the added load.

Teichert said it is possible that if the village purchases the Citizens equipment, rates charged to residents in the New Town area eventually could go down once the revenue bonds are retired. "At least they couldn't be in a worse position than they are now," the mayor said.

NO TIMETABLE for completing the study has been determined but Teichert said he believes the matter is urgent and should receive prompt attention.

"This is way overdue, in my judgment. The people have approached us to consider this and they are the ones who will have to bear the cost," Teichert said.

Although Citizens has said it is not interested in selling any or all of its operation, Teichert said if the village made the company an offer, he expected it would be given serious consideration.

"The ultimate goal in this situation is to provide the people there with better service and lower rates," Geichert said.

TRUSTEE RICHARD N. Hendricks, the lone dissenter in the vote to proceed with the study, said Wednesday he is not opposed to possible purchase of the utility company.

"My question is whether we should spend $27,000 for a study when it may not be feasible to buy the company at all," Hendricks said.

Hendricks moved to have the matter tabled in favor of waiting for a legal opinion on whether the village has the right to condemn the company if Citizens refuses to sell. Teichert ruled the motion out-of-order contending that the village always has the right of condemnation as a last resort.

"I voted against the motion reluctantly because my concern was not answered," Hendricks said, "but I am in favor of obtaining the company in order to get those people on village water."

Des Plaines, which already has received a study, is considering alternatives to outright purchase of the system. About 500 homes in Waycinden Park, an unincorporated Elk Grove Township subdivision surrounded by Des Plaines, are served by Citizens Utilities Co.

$500,000 school tax warrants apparently lost

A total of $500,000 worth of negotiable tax anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said.

The loss does not affect the school district because the institutions are responsible for any loss if the warrants are cashed, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration. Both institutions will post bonds 1 1/2 times greater than the warrants to insure payment if the originals are cashed.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education authorized issuance of duplicate tax warrants to replace the originals earlier this week.

ACCORDING TO PERRY, the action will allow the district to pay the debt as planned and remove any possibility of tarnishing the district's credit rating with bonding companies.

The two institutions are Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis and Kinder, Peabody & Co., a New York-based brokerage firm, said Harold Erlandson, Elk Grove Township school treasurer.

William Schumway, attorney for the school treasurer, refused to supply any information from the warrant-sale documents in his possession, saying he didn't want to "embarrass" the two institutions involved. Schumway contended that the information is confidential.

Edward Gesme, an official in the bonds and investment department at Northwestern National, said he knows nothing about the lost warrants.

ANOTHER BANK OFFICER however said he was vaguely aware of the situation but didn't know any details.

Gesme did say it was possible Northwestern National was holding the bonds for "one of our clients — maybe a country bank."

The warrants are a means to borrow against anticipated tax revenue. They were issued against 1973 tax monies.

The warrants are to be paid off when the tax money is received and will expire in six months, Perry said. Tax money is now starting to come in.

The loss of three of the tax warrants was discovered in June, according to Erlandson. The district was expecting part of the tax levy to come in and the township treasurer issued a call for the three warrants to the Minnesota Bank. The bank was unable to locate the warrants, he said.

The second set of warrants was discovered missing Sept. 26 when the treasurer issued another call for the warrants from the East Coast firm. Erlandson said that apparently the brokerage firm holding the bonds merged with another firm and lost the warrants during the merger.

"WE'RE GLAD TO GET some of this cleared up," said Erlandson. "We paid off three of the warrants yesterday (Tuesday)."

The treasurer pointed out that the mix-up was going to be an additional expense to the township school trustees, a body which has control over local school district funds. "Someone has to take care of the paperwork," he said referring to the trustees, "and it's going to cost somebody somewhere along the line."

Erlandson said he had no idea what the cost involved would be.

JODI PALMER, left, and Gari Ily rehearse for a scene in "Charter Flight '74" a variety show to be presented Oct. 11 and Oct. 12 at 7 p.m. at St. Alphonsus Church, 411 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. Ethnic foods and beverages will be served. Tickets are available from Donna Leonard, 537-0908; Joan Zak, 253-8286; and Connie Reed, 255-7648. The show will include six make-believe trips around the world.

Mikva complaint fails

Young's 'abuse of mails' charge thrown out by panel

by STEVE BROWN

A charge by Abner J. Mikva that his Congressional opponent, U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-Ill., has misused his franking privileges was thrown out Wednesday by federal officials.

A spokesman for the Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards said the 10-count complaint, which had been filed in July and amended several times, was dismissed after being reviewed in Washington. The decision was unanimous by the six-member bipartisan panel.

Related story Page 5

"We found all of the mailings cited in the complaint to conform to the guidelines that have been approved by Congress," the spokesman said.

MIKVA WAS CRITICAL of the outcome and hinted he might seek legal action after reviewing the decision.

"A lot will turn on the specifics of the decision, but common sense indicates that it is astounding that the law would allow this," Mikva said.

He indicated that if the commission had no jurisdiction on several parts of the complaint, it would be possible to take the matter to court. "The problem remains that $200,000 of the taxpayers' money has been used to puff a candidate and this is not right."

YOUNG SAID he believed it was "appropriate for the complaint to be raised," adding, "I would have liked to see an earlier determination of this complaint, but Mikva amended his original complaint twice, which had the effect of delaying a resolution and keeping the matter alive for publicity purposes."

"The new franking law is not only for the benefit of the complainant, but also protects the defendants by providing for a speedy determination of complaints."

"Complaints that are politically motivated and are lodged for the purpose of generating newspaper headlines do not and should not succeed and should be quickly disposed," Young added.

Two counts of the complaint filed by Mikva involved newsletters that were mailed before the commission's standards went into effect this year.

Another six counts in the complaint alleged that Young had used too many pictures in his newsletters and that the pictures were larger than the size allowed by federal regulations.

THE COMMISSION ruled, however, that the congressman was within the guidelines which limit pictures to two per page, representing less than 20 per cent of the page.

Another aspect of Mikva's complaint dealt with a questionnaire sent by Young to all district residents which included questions on a variety of topics and also asked for the respondent's political affiliation.

"The commission could find nothing in the franking regulations which would prohibit this," the federal spokesman said.

The last count questioned Young's use of a cover letter and a picture of an index of consumer publications published by the government for citizens. The commission determined that the letter and the picture were permissible.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Hadlow, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) has asked Des Plaines and Park Ridge officials to decide by Nov. 1 whether they intend to provide subsidies to keep buses rolling.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN's executive director, said Wednesday he hopes Des Plaines officials reach a decision sooner, possibly at the city council meeting Monday evening which he plans to attend.

Des Plaines officials have held talks with both NORTAN and representatives of the Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) over the future of bus operations in the city.

The move was prompted by NORTAN's negotiations with United Motor

Coach to purchase the bus line. The district will probably take control of the bus company later this year.

Once this occurs, the future of 11 bus routes in the city becomes uncertain.

CITY OFFICIALS have been told they would have to pay NORTAN about $65,000 a year to keep the routes in operation. While the CTA also has presented a proposal for providing service, no firm costs estimates are available.

DiJohn said "There are no deadlines as such, but we would certainly like to have some indication as to their intention as soon as possible."

He also said that while the CTA was eliminated from consideration last week as a possible management agent for the district's bus operations, NORTAN officials are still holding informal talks to determine the costs of purchasing service from the CTA for all of the district's bus routes.

"The numbers are being worked up now," DiJohn said. The first proposal submitted by the CTA would have provided only a management agent for the district's bus operations. Any long-range transit studies would have to be contracted for separately.

DiJohn also said the CTA would not have been able to act as the employer for the personnel who would operate and maintain the buses. The district is still considering two management firms to operate the bus and provide planning services.

A final recommendation on hiring the management firm could be made later this month.

Fire department sets schools tour

The North Maine Fire Dept. will tour schools in the North Maine Fire Protection District next week as part of its schedule of activities for Fire Prevention Week.

A demonstration of department operations and a discussion of fire-fighting techniques will be given during the school tours.

"Things that burn" is the slogan for Fire Prevention Week which runs from Oct. 6 to Oct. 12. Firemen from the North Maine Department also will discuss with students the importance of having pre-arranged fire escape procedures for homes as well as schools.

9-story senior-citizens housing project topped out

Construction crews topped out the new senior-citizens' housing development in Des Plaines Tuesday.

City officials and representatives from the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA) participated in brief ceremonies at the site of the nine-story building, Lee Street and Ashland Avenue.

Interviews with more than 300 persons who have applied to live in the structure will begin this month.

City officials and CCHA Management Aide Connie Manika will conduct the interviews to determine eligibility.

Persons who are 62 years of age and older and have an income of $1,000 per year or married couples of the same age having an income of $3,600 per year are eligible to apply for an apartment in the 120-unit building.

City officials also have decided to give first preference to persons who have lived in Des Plaines for a minimum of two years.

CCHA officials anticipate the building should be completed in May or June of next year.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel, City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, CCHA Director Victor Walchick, Mrs. Manika and Joyce Dantzer, the management aide for the Niles and Skokie senior citizen buildings, also participated in the topping out ceremony.

Mikva, Young pouring big money, big names into head-to-head race for 10th District seat

ABNER MIKVA

by STEVE BROWN

A news analysis

The clock is beginning to tick down again for Abner J. Mikva and U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young in their race to represent the 10th Congressional District in Washington.

About a month remains before the voters are asked to decide if the past two years of campaigning will end up in Young returning to Congress or being ousted by Mikva.

Neither man has become a clear-cut favorite and it appears the race will finish almost even once again, a rerun of the 1972 contest which saw Mikva losing by about 7,000 votes to Young, who had the aid of a big Nixon vote.

Now it is a new ballgame. Nixon isn't on the ticket, but neither is the former president the major liability he was expected to be for most GOP candidates before his resignation.

With Nixon and the Watergate scandal behind them, both candidates have chosen to turn their guns on the economy and make it the major issue of the race.

BOTH APPEAR hopeful of taking the other to task for approving wasteful federal spending measures. Mikva chose rising food prices for the thrust of his attack and has developed a published food-price survey to highlight this effort. Young also has come out against increased government spending in general and hit specifically at social-service programs. The issue could thus be a draw for both candidates.

It also appears that as in 1972, national political firepower will be coming into the district as backup for both camps.

U.S. Rep. John Rhodes, the House minority leader, will be in the district tonight to boost Young. Sen. Edmund Muskie, former Democratic vice presidential candidate, will appear at a Mikva fete Friday.

Like a red flare signaling the start of battle, those dinners and a stepped-up schedule of appearances for both candidates are indicators that the two-year race is nearing an end.

Because of 1972, neither side is overconfident. Mikva's people are thumbs up all the way, but the leaders of the campaign are also talking like they hope their candidate does not peak too soon.

YOUNG'S STAFF is also cautiously optimistic. Staffers say the campaign is going well. The candidate himself is still looking for more time to campaign, while noting publicly that Congressional duties make heavy demands on his time.

Young also notes that Mikva spent much of his time before the 1972 election campaigning in the district and not sitting in Congress representing the South Side Chicago district that had sent him to Capitol Hill in 1968 and 1970.

Both sides feel they are further along in performing tedious canvassing and voter registration tasks than they were at this time in 1972.

The polling and canvassing efforts conducted by each side show their respective candidates in the lead at this time. However, campaign insiders are saying that there are still large blocks of undecided voters showing up in both polls.

Young has apparently bent at least one campaign statement by bringing in Rhodes for the dinner fundraiser. It could be a small point, but he did state he would not involve outsiders in his reelection bid.

MIKVA HAS BEEN way ahead of his opponent on this count all along. While most appearances by national political figures have been limited to rallies for campaign volunteers, the appearances have attracted media attention. The names of those who have come in to hype the Mikva campaign read like a U.S. Senate roll call. Henry (Scoop) Jackson, Fritz Mondale, William Proxmire, Dick Clark, and Muskie, Ohio Gov. John Gilligan and U.S. Rep. Don Edwards have all slipped in to help Mikva.

Both candidates state publicly, that the big names usually do not change the voters' mind, but frequently help boost the morale of campaign volunteers. They also impress contributors, perhaps increasing their willingness to give more.

The campaign coffers also are worth a note. It appears both candidates will come close to equalling the 1972 spending derby, in which Young and Mikva put on the most expensive Congressional campaign in Illinois and the fifth most expensive in the nation.

A FINAL PUSH for money could drive the final total over the 1972 limit, despite statements by both candidates to hold down spending this time.

As in 1972, Mikva is getting money from big labor while Young is receiving funds from many North Shore businessmen. Each side views the other's money sources as worthy of criticism.

In many respects the race shapes like 1972, except Mikva has U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson ahead of him on the ticket instead of George McGovern, and Young doesn't have the Nixon tidal wave to ride.

Press and political observers alike are still rating the Mikva-Young race a toss-up. That fact alone is something for the voters to ponder, at least for another month and who knows, maybe longer. If Mikva wins, it could be that Young will try to make it a "best two out of three" affair by running in 1976.

In any case the next 30 days will not be dull.

REP. SAM YOUNG

Women voters conducting poll on city government changes

The Des Plaines chapter of the League of Women Voters has started a city-wide poll on possible changes in the operation of city government.

The league already has surveyed officials of several suburbs to gather information on what type of governmental system is being used.

The local poll asks citizens whether the city should hire a full-time administrator to assist the mayor and aldermen.

The city council has already rejected a proposal to create the position of city manager. A number of aldermen and Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said they prefer retaining the full mayor system even after Behrel retires from office in 1977.

Behrel has suggested hiring an administrative assistant to the mayor, but added that the city does not have office space at this time for additional personnel. He indicated after offices are moved to the new city hall such a position may be created.

The LWV's questionnaire also asks if Des Plaines residents are "concerned or satisfied with the planning for the future of our city."

Officials of the league have said they will present the results of the survey and other research to the city council later this year.

Two financial firms responsible

$500,000 in school tax warrants lost

A total of $500,000 worth of negotiable tax anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said.

The loss does not affect the school district because the institutions are responsible for any loss if the warrants are cashed, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration. Both institutions will post bonds 1½ times greater than the warrants to insure payment if the originals are cashed.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education authorized issuance of duplicate tax warrants to replace the originals earlier this week.

ACCORDING TO PERRY, the action will allow the district to pay the debt as planned and remove any possibility of tarnishing the district's credit rating with bonding companies.

The two institutions are Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis and Kidder, Peabody & Co., a New York-based brokerage firm, said Harold Erlandson, Elk Grove Township school treasurer.

William Schumway, attorney for the school treasurer, refused to supply any information from the warrant-sale documents in his possession, saying he didn't want to "embarrass" the two institutions involved. Schumway contended that the information is confidential.

Edward Gesme, an official in the bonds and investment department at Northwestern National, said he knows nothing about the lost warrants.

ANOTHER BANK OFFICER however said he was vaguely aware of the situation but didn't know any details.

Gesme did say it was possible Northwestern National was holding the bonds for "one of our clients — maybe a country bank."

The warrants are a means to borrow against anticipated tax revenue. They were issued against 1973 tax monies.

The warrants are to be paid off when the tax money is received and will expire in six months, Perry said. Tax money is now starting to come in.

The loss of three of the tax warrants was discovered in June, according to Erlandson. The district was expecting part of the tax levy to come in and the township treasurer issued a call for the three warrants to the Minnesota Bank. The bank was unable to locate the warrants, he said.

Schools OK sex education plan for 7th, 8th grades

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A new sex education curriculum for seventh and eighth graders in River Trails Dist. 36 has been adopted by the board of education.

The two-year program was designed during the summer by teachers Marianne Jezowski and Don Wickersham and was presented to the board at its Tuesday night meeting.

Alan Levin, curriculum director, said sex education was taught last year by a team of outside consultants. This year, he added, the curriculum will be taken over at the district level and taught by teachers.

The seventh-grade curriculum, which will be taught over a four-week period, will deal with the adolescent changes experienced by young people, and with reproduction.

LEVIN STRESSED that the curriculum "emphasizes the normal to alleviate any worries about fast or slow development."

Teachers will discuss not only the physical changes young people experience but the social and emotional changes. Discussions on reproduction will include information on the male and female reproduction systems, fertilization, prenatal development and birth.

Eighth-grade curriculum will review reproduction and delve into the areas of dating and social diseases.

The two teachers who mapped out the new program created a 54-page guide for use by sex education teachers. The guide includes pages of reference material, discussion topics, diagrams, suggested activities, and the district's objectives in teaching each of the subject areas.

FOR EXAMPLE, IN the area of emotional aspects of adolescent change, the guide lists as objectives: to identify feelings about bodily changes, and to examine the difference between the emotions that are real and those that are unsubstantiated.

The unit will deal with understanding how bodily changes affect the emotions, handling new sex drives, understanding feelings of independence, control of emotions and acknowledging the desire to make oneself attractive to the opposite sex.

The guide points out there are special topics which teachers should be prepared to consider whenever questions are asked in class.

"A question asked by a student in slang will be answered by the teachers by changing the words to the correct medical term," Levin told the board. He added that questions of sexual technique will not be included in the program.

During their research, the teachers sought advice from the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction's office on how to handle discussions of birth control.

The response from the state, Levin said, was that only a doctor can discuss birth control with a class and students must have written permission from their parents. Teachers should refer questions on the subject back to the parents — pointing out there are religious overtones, he said.

"NOT INCLUDING birth control information is like giving a child a book of matches and not telling him where the extinguisher is," said board member Leora Rosen.

Other board members tagged OSPI's answer as "archaic" and "outdated."

Wickersham, who may be teaching the sex education course, said both he and Jezowski had hoped the board would react in favor of including birth control in the curriculum. He said changes would be made in the guide as teachers work with it and it was possible this addition would be made.

The guide contains recommendations, also approved by the board:

- A sex education curriculum for kindergarten through eighth grade should be developed to emphasize self-understanding, family life, social responsibilities and physical development.

- The process of formulating a sex education curriculum should be an on-going process; deletions and additions should be made as necessary.

- The guide should be evaluated by parents and teachers and should be revised each year based on recommendations.

- Parent meetings should be held to show the specific materials that will be used and answer any questions.

- A parent bookshelf should be established with reference materials for adults.

- Supplementary materials should be purchased.

- No teacher should be forced to teach the curriculum.

- Teachers will have in-service training to help them use the guide and become comfortable with the subject area.

The curriculum will be used this year after initial changes are made by Levin and training workshops are held for instructors.

Mount Prospect moves to buy water system

Mount Prospect has taken the first step toward purchase of Citizens Utilities Co.'s water and sewer system in the New Town section of the village.

The village board Tuesday voted to hire the firm of M & E/Alstot, March and Guillou Inc., Des Plaines, to conduct a study of the cost of purchasing the utility company's equipment in the north-east portion of the village.

Cost of the appraisal is not to exceed $27,000.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Wednesday the purpose of the appraisal is to determine whether it would be financially feasible for the village to make an offer to the company and assume the water supplying job in that area.

"The study will try to place a price on capital improvements and hopefully determine how the system can be integrated into the village water system," Teichert said. The study also will try to determine if the equipment serving Mount Prospect can be separated from company holdings in other areas, Teichert said.

ACCORDING TO the agreement proposed by George March of the engineering firm, the study will determine the value of the existing water supply and sewer system and figure what other costs, such as short-range capital improvements, financing of the system, purchase and annual maintenance and operation costs would be required. The study also will report on the total cost needed for the purchase, whether the present rate structure would provide the needed revenue and whether the purchase is considered feasible.

Teichert said that if purchase of the equipment is possible the cost would be financed through the sale of revenue bonds which would be retired through the payment of user fees.

Teichert speculated that the ultimate price of purchasing the equipment could be paid off according to the present rate structure charged by Citizens. Due to a recently approved rate increase, about 2,350 households in Mount Prospect that are served by Citizens pay a minimum monthly water rate of $5.36 and a flat sewer charge of $6 per month.

The charge to Citizens customers in Mount Prospect is considerably higher than the cost assessed to village residents who are tied into the village water system.

THE RATE differential is such that a family in the Citizens service area would pay $13.46 a month including a sewer charge for 8,000 gallons of water used compared to a charge of $7 per month to other village residents for the identical service.

"The rate difference is extreme and as it stands there is no relief for the people in the Citizens area," Teichert said. "They don't have a constant supply of water and they still pay a higher cost."

The mayor added that if the Citizens equipment was integrated into the village water system, residents in the New Town area would be assured a constant water supply with good pressure because the village wells could handle the added load.

Teichert said it is possible that if the village purchases the Citizens equipment, rates charged to residents in the New Town area eventually could go down once the revenue bonds are retired. "At least they couldn't be in a worse position than they are now," the mayor said.

NO TIMETABLE for completing the study has been determined but Teichert said he believes the matter is urgent and should receive prompt attention.

"This is way overdue, in my judgment. The people have approached us to consider this and they are the ones who will have to bear the cost," Teichert said.

Although Citizens has said it is not interested in selling any or all of its operation, Teichert said if the village made the company an offer, he expected it would be given serious consideration.

"The ultimate goal in this situation is to provide the people there with better service and lower rates," Teichert said.

TRUSTEE RICHARD N. Hendricks, the lone dissenter in the vote to proceed with the study, said Wednesday he is not opposed to possible purchase of the utility company.

"My question is whether we should spend $27,000 for a study when it may not be feasible to buy the company at all," Hendricks said.

Hendricks moved to have the matter tabled in favor of waiting for a legal opinion on whether the village has the right to condemn the company if Citizens refuses to sell. Teichert ruled the motion out-of-order contending that the village always has the right of condemnation as a last resort.

"I voted against the motion reluctantly because my concern was not answered," Hendricks said, "but I am in favor of obtaining the company in order to get those people on village water."

Des Plaines, which already has received a study, is considering alternatives to outright purchase of the system. About 500 homes in Waycinden Park, an unincorporated Elk Grove Township subdivision surrounded by Des Plaines, are served by Citizens Utilities Co.

Day-care center enrollment grows

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has increased its enrollment from 17 to 27 students within the last month, director Dora Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler told the township board Tuesday night that a second classroom will be opened this week to accommodate the increase. She said all equipment for the center located at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., has arrived and funds from tuition also are coming in.

Enrollment includes 17 students paying full tuition of $30 per week and 10 students on either a partial or full subsidy. Mrs. Fowler said two of the students were referred to the center from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

NOT ALL STUDENTS attend on a five-day per week basis, Mrs. Fowler said, with enrollments being accepted for part-timers.

The center is licensed by the state for 30 students but Mrs. Fowler said licensing for 40 students, which is the center's capacity, will be sought soon.

She said the center is not attracting as many people as it was designed to serve, including lower-income families. "We need to get mothers here to see the center for themselves but transportation seems to be a problem," Mrs. Fowler said.

She suggested the board consider providing transportation for the center. Auditor Bernard F. Lee said the bus now serving senior citizens may be the answer.

"It might be possible to use the bus during the early morning hours and late evening hours when it is not in use by senior citizens," he said. He added that the bus should only be used if it does not interfere with senior citizen service.

IN OTHER ACTION, road and bridge supervisor Alfred C. Stell told the board four bids were received by salt suppliers Tuesday. Stell made no recommendation because he said he wants to determine which company can insure the best delivery schedule.

Low bidder was the Diamond Salt Co., Chicago, at $13.27 per ton. Other bidders were Morton Salt Co., Chicago, at $14.65 per ton; International Salt Co., Rosemont, at $15 per ton; and Cargill Inc., Chicago, at $15 per ton.

Stell said the township paid Morton Salt Co. $12 per ton for salt last year. The township orders an average of 400 tons of salt per season.

Inspections, repairs will follow

Centex seeks 'foolproof' tests for faulty furnaces

Centex Homes Corp. has asked furnace authorities to devise a "foolproof test" to determine which of the estimated 1,700 furnaces in Centex-built homes in Elk Grove Village are defective.

William Liebow, Centex vice president, said that "as soon as a test is devised, block-by-block inspection and immediate corrections should start, hopefully sometime this month."

Centex Homes Corp. agreed Tuesday with village officials' demands that the company share with homeowners an estimated $85 installation cost to repair defective furnaces.

CENTEX ALSO AGREED to replace defective heat exchangers, the most common cause of furnace failure. In addition, the builder will correct exhaust systems, vents and chimney terminations and furnace closet or door air intake grills, wherever these code violations are a contributing cause to furnace failure.

"Centex is as anxious as homeowners to get this repair program started," said Liebow.

Liebow said the company is negotiating with the American Gas Assn., Northern Illinois Gas Co., the Illinois Institute of Technology and several agencies to devise "a foolproof furnace test."

He said a village-conducted testing program "showed us the present mode of inspection of a heat exchanger, which is by touch and sight, is not foolproof."

"More than half of the almost 900 inspections the village made were termed doubtful, because inspectors would have to tear apart the complete heating unit to test it properly," said Liebow.

"When the experts we've gone to devise a test for us we will hire an outside firm with no self-serving interest in this issue and cover the village house by house if need be."

Liebow said as soon as the firm is ready to make inspections and repairs it will ask village officials to help notify residents.

School warrants totaling $500,000 reported lost

A total of $500,000 worth of negotiable tax anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said.

The loss does not affect the school district because the institutions are responsible for any loss if the warrants are cashed, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration. Both institutions will post bonds 1 1/2 times greater than the warrants to insure payment if the originals are cashed.

The Dist. 39 Board of Education authorized issuance of duplicate tax warrants to replace the originals earlier this week.

ACCORDING TO PERRY, the action will allow the district to pay the debt as planned and remove any possibility of tarnishing the district's credit rating with bonding companies.

The two institutions are Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis and Kldder, Peabody & Co., a New York-based brokerage firm, said Harold Erlandson, Elk Grove Township school treasurer.

William Schumway, attorney for the school treasurer, refused to supply any information from the warrant-sale documents in his possession, saying he didn't want to "embarrass" the two institutions involved. Schumway contended that the information is confidential.

Edward Gesme, an official in the bonds and investment department at Northwestern National, said he knows nothing about the lost warrants.

ANOTHER BANK OFFICER however said he was vaguely aware of the situation but didn't know any details.

Gesme did say it was possible Northwestern National was holding the bonds for "one of our clients — maybe a country bank."

The warrants are a means to borrow against anticipated tax revenue. They were issued against 1973 tax monies.

The warrants are to be paid off when the tax money is received and will expire in six months, Perry said. Tax money is now starting to come in.

The loss of three of the tax warrants was discovered in June, according to Erlandson. The district was expecting part of the tax levy to come in and the township treasurer issued a call for the three warrants to the Minnesota Bank. The bank was unable to locate the warrants, he said.

The second set of warrants was discovered missing Sept. 26 when the treasurer issued another call for the warrants from the East Coast firm. Erlandson said that apparently the brokerage firm holding the bonds merged with another firm and lost the warrants during the merger.

"WE'RE GLAD TO GET some of this cleared up," said Erlandson. "We paid off three of the warrants yesterday (Tuesday)."

The treasurer pointed out that the mix-up was going to be an additional expense to the township school trustees, a body which has control over local school district funds. "Someone has to take care of the paperwork," he said referring to the trustees, "and it's going to cost somebody somewhere along the line."

Erlandson said he had no idea what the cost involved would be.

Rotary hears Rep. Macdonald

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Mount Prospect, was guest speaker at the recent Elk Grove Village Rotarian meeting.

Mrs. Macdonald told the Rotarians she feels there is a reasonable good chance for the RTA to succeed. Two subjects of special interest were discussed. Care for children in trouble, a need she is actively working on and the decentralizing of the juvenile court.

Rotarians from surrounding communities attending the session were: C. C. Whistler, Mount Prospect; Ted Koerner, Park Ridge; and Tony Bartolini, Rolling Meadows.

Appointments made by village president

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek Tuesday made several appointments to various village boards and commissions.

They are:

- Board of Health: Alan Antonik.
- Community Services and Mental Health Board: Marilyn Quinn, Edward Melkel, Robert Lindahl, and Robert Paschal.

- Fire and Police Commission: Gayle Bantner.

- Police Pension Board: Grant Watson and David Farley.

- Zoning Board of Appeals: Robert Fleming and Carl Pullman.

- Plan Commission: Leah Cummins, Edward Hauser and Alvin Krasnow.

Day-care center enrollment grows

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has increased its enrollment from 17 to 27 students within the last month, director Dora Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler told the township board Tuesday night that a second classroom will be opened this week to accommodate the increase. She said all equipment for the center located at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd. has arrived and funds from tuition also are coming in.

Enrollment includes 17 students paying full tuition of $30 per week and 10 students on either a partial or full subsidy. Mrs. Fowler said two of the students were referred to the center from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

NOT ALL STUDENTS attend on a five-day per week basis, Mrs. Fowler said, with enrollments being accepted for part-timers.

The center is licensed by the state for 30 students but Mrs. Fowler said licensing for 40 students, which is the center's capacity, will be sought soon.

She said the center is not attracting as many people as it was designed to serve, including lower-income families. "We need to get mothers here to see the center for themselves but transportation seems to be a problem," Mrs. Fowler said.

She suggested the board consider providing transportation for the center. Auditor Bernard F. Leo said the bus now serving senior citizens may be the answer.

"It might be possible to use the bus during the early morning hours and late evening hours when it is not in use by senior citizens," he said. He added that the bus should only be used if it does not interfere with senior citizen service.

IN OTHER ACTION, road and bridge supervisor Alfred C. Stell told the board four bids were received by salt suppliers Tuesday. Stell made no recommendation because he said he wants to determine which company can insure the best delivery schedule.

Low bidder was the Diamond Salt Co., Chicago, at $13.27 per ton. Other bidders were Morton Salt Co., Chicago, at $14.85 per ton; International Salt Co., Rosemont, at $15 per ton; and Cargill Inc., Chicago, at $15 per ton.

Stell said the township paid Morton Salt Co. $12 per ton for salt last year. The township orders an average of 400 tons of salt per season.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Haddow, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

High school teachers OK pact for 7.8% pay raise

High School Dist. 211 teachers Wednesday accepted a salary contract providing 7.8 per cent raises by a vote of 283 to 102.

The vote ends more than seven months of salary negotiations with the board of education. The board is expected to ratify the contract Monday night.

The contract raises the base salary of teachers from $9,530 to $10,280 this year, plus a $50 one-time bonus for each teacher. Teachers also receive a 5 per cent increase in salary for an additional year of experience. The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1974, the date last year's contract expired.

Teachers rejected Aug. 30 a contract containing the 7.8 per cent raise by a two-vote margin. They reacted with anger to the new offer, containing the $50 bonus, which they described as "an insult." Roughly half of more than 200 teachers who met to discuss the contract last week said they were ready to strike.

BUT SEVERAL leaders of Dist. 211's teachers' association urged teachers to accept the contract, saying it was the best they could get from the school board. They urged teachers to work to elect new board members more favorable to teachers next spring.

"Our biggest goal is to work towards revamping the school board," said teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien after the vote

School board meeting Monday

The regular meeting of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education has been changed from Oct. 10 to Monday.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Wednesday. He said teachers are "very serious about being an influence" in April school board elections. "It's the first time since I've been in the district that people have said it's time to do something about the school board."

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek Wednesday said he has "no comment" on the teachers' plans to change the makeup of the board. Creek said he was pleased by the teachers' vote and expects the board to ratify the contract.

O'Brien, one of three teacher negotiators who voted against the contract last month, said he does not consider the vote a defeat. There are "still a large number of teachers who are still dissatisfied," he said. "It doesn't mean we are not united in trying to better our lot in Dist. 211."

O'BRIEN SAID THE dispute over salary has "affected the morale of the staff. It's time now that teachers put negotiations behind them and put all their effort behind what their job is and that is education. There have been too many distractions to start the school year."

"I'm relieved that we don't have to go to extreme measures," said Carl Flaks, president of the teachers' association. "The results could have been disastrous to us in future years."

Many teachers voted to accept the contract on the recommendation of some of the association leaders, said Lowell Johnson, one teacher negotiator who was against the contract. Wednesday's vote "still shows there are 192 teachers who say they don't think this is the best thing," he said.

"I feel somewhat disappointed. I think we deserve a better contract than what they gave us," said Johnson. "We've got to plan ahead in different ways. We've got to get the people together to work now for a better contract, rather than call a crisis meeting when the going gets tough."

IN ADDITION TO the bonus and raise in base salary the contract includes a 7 per cent increase in coaching salaries and extracurricular pay for teacher and 10 per cent raise for department chairmen. It raises summer school pay from $170 to $185 per week.

Fringe benefits include a life insurance policy that would insure a teacher for the amount of his base salary or a minimum of $10,000, an insurance plan for retired teachers through which the teacher will pay for life insurance at the group rate, and an extension of sick leave for a teacher with a serious illness or injury.

Robert Franz, assistant village manager, said the village may face a 45 per cent increase in hauling costs for operating the glass recycling part of the center.

Recycling limited to Saturday

Elk Grove Village residents' dwindling use of the glass recycling center on evenings and the approaching cold weather have prompted the village to limit the center's operation to Saturdays.

Evening service has been discontinued. However, the glass recycling center will be open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays instead of the former 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. hours of operation.

The Elk Grove Village Jaycees as a community improvement project pay the expense of providing two attendants who supervise glass deposits.

Residents who bring paper to the center for recycling may still deposit it anytime inside the container at the 901 Wellington Ave., parking lot.

PERSONS WHO BRING glass for recycling are asked to come on Saturdays only. They are also asked to separate the glass by color and remove all metal

Village board wrapup

Night bus service comes to an end

Elk Grove Village's evening dial-a-ride bus service has been discontinued and the day time service hours extended because of a drop in night ridership.

The village began a commuter and local bus service subsidized by the village in March, the present contract has five months to run.

The charge for commuter service is $20 per month on a monthly subscription basis. Tickets may be purchased at the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave. For further information call 439-3900.

Residents who wish to use the local in-town dial-a-ride service available from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily except Sunday may call 437-3769.

Resident appeals decision

Village officials Tuesday made it plain they don't want construction in utility easements.

A resident who appealed to the village board Tuesday to change its no vote and overrule a zoning board of appeals recommendation to deny a variation to build a room addition in a utility easement, was sent back to the zoning board.

Village Pres. Charles Zettko told petitioner Henry Werch to return to the zoning board and convince its members his planned room addition would not cause a hardship.

Zettko said this is the first time a petitioner has sought a change in the zoning board's decision. The zoning board held a public hearing on the matter June 27, recommended the variation be denied and the board concurred with the recommendation Sept. 10.

Werch and builder Alan Foss Tuesday attempted to recreate the public hearing and convince board members to allow a corner of the room addition to jut out three feet into a utility easement.

Werch pointed out that his home already encroaches onto the easement and was built that way before he purchased it.

As trustees began to argue the issue, Zoning Board Chairman Robert Fleming said that the matter rightly should be heard by the board of appeals unless the village wished to change its policy.

Zettko agreed and told Werch he should provide engineering data to support his claim the room addition would not disturb storm water drainage or hinder a utility company's use of the easement.

Special weeks proclaimed

Village Pres. Charles Zettko proclaimed various dates in October as weeks of observance. These are Oct. 7-13, Lions Week; Oct. 7-14, Respect Life Week; Oct. 6-12, Fire Prevention Week; Oct. 20-26, Law Enforcement Week.

$2,101 for street markings

Ingstrup Pavement Striping Inc., Villa Park, will paint various pavement markings on some village streets this fall.

The firm was awarded a $2,101 contract by village officials Tuesday on the recommendation of the public works and village engineering departments.

$29,700 tractor purchased

A $29,700 tractor-loader was purchased by the street department. Village board members Tuesday approved the expenditure and contracted with the Howell Tractor and Equipment Co. of Elk Grove Village for the purchase.

Personnel panel to meet

Members of the personnel committee chaired by Trustee Nanci Vanderweel will meet at 7:30 a.m. Monday in the municipal building to review hiring a village planner.

Officials react to Meadow's mayor's actions

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuerch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Fredrick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFoggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

"The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," said Jacobson, and "until I can ask some questions and get some answers, I don't think any additional things can be done."

Jacobson said his first reaction was to wonder "why it was never brought to our attention by the director of public works."

Jacobson said he was concerned that city employees might have been used in sales demonstrations, and added "I would prefer nobody was demonstrating" with city equipment. "Why should the taxpayers be involved in private enterprise?"

Although Scanlan said "I know Roland too well to think he would do anything dishonest," he added he thought the mayor had not used good judgment.

Parents urged to turn in drugs found in home

Old and unused drugs are being turned in to local pharmacies by parents in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 this week in an effort to curb drug abuse among students.

The "Clean Out the Medicine Cabinet" campaign, sponsored by local PTAs, began Tuesday and will continue through Monday in conjunction with National Pharmaceutical Week. PTA chapters have placed boxes in nine pharmacies in the area to collect bottles of medicine.

In presenting the campaign to the Dist. 54 school board, Jan Millett from Dooley School PTA said the family medicine cabinet is one of the most common sources of drugs. By urging parents to dispose of drugs, the PTAs hope to cut off this source.

The pharmacies will dispose of the medicine and pay the local PTAs two cents a bottle.

EACH SCHOOL HAS been assigned a drug store as a drop off point. The stores are: Town Square Pharmacy, 311 Town Square Shopping Center, Schaumburg, for Aldrin and Dirksen schools; Medco Drug, 1000 Grand Canyon Pkwy., Hoffman Estates, for Fairview School and Keller Junior High School; Tradewinds Walgreens, 1444 W. ### 7 months of negotiations end

High school teachers OK pact for 7.8% pay raise

High School Dist. 211 teachers Wednesday accepted a salary contract providing 7.8 per cent raises by a vote of 283 to 192.

The vote ends more than seven months of salary negotiations with the board of education. The board is expected to ratify the contract Monday night.

The contract raises the base salary of teachers from $8,850 to $9,550 this year, plus a $50 one-time bonus for each teacher. Teachers also receive a 5 per cent increase in salary for an additional year of experience. The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1974, the date last year's contract expired.

Teachers rejected Aug. 30 a contract containing the 7.8 per cent raise by a two-vote margin. They reacted with anger to the new offer, containing the $50 bonus, which they described as "an insult." Roughly half of more than 200 teachers who met to discuss the contract last week said they were ready to strike.

BUT SEVERAL leaders of Dist. 211's teachers' association urged teachers to accept the contract, saying it was the best they could get from the school board. They urged teachers to work to elect new board members more favorable to teachers next spring.

"Our biggest goal is to work towards revamping the school board," said teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien after the vote

Wednesday. He said teachers are "very serious about being an influence" in April school board elections. "It's the first time since I've been in the district that people have said it's time to do something about the school board."

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek Wednesday said he has "no comment" on the teachers' plans to change the makeup of the board. Creek said he was pleased by the teachers' vote and expects the board to ratify the contract.

O'Brien, one of three teacher negotiators who voted against the contract last month, said he does not consider the vote a defeat. There are "still a large number of teachers who are still dissatisfied," he said. "It doesn't mean we are not united in trying to better our lot in Dist. 211."

O'BRIEN SAID THE dispute over salary has "affected the morale of the staff." It's time now that teachers put negotiations behind them and put all their effort behind what their job is and that is education. There have been too many distractions to start the school year.

"I'm relieved that we don't have to go to extreme measures," said Carl Flaks, president of the teachers' association. "The results could have been disastrous to us in future years."

Many teachers voted to accept the contract on the recommendation of some of the association leaders, said Lowell Johnson, one teacher negotiator who was against the contract. Wednesday's vote "still shows there are 192 teachers who say they don't think this is the best thing," he said.

"I feel somewhat disappointed. I think we deserve a better contract than what they gave us," said Johnson. "We've got to plan ahead in different ways. We've got to get the people together to work now for a better contract, rather than call a crisis meeting when the going gets tough."

IN ADDITION TO the bonus and raise in base salary the contract includes a 7 per cent increase in coaching salaries and extracurricular pay for teacher and 10 per cent raise for department chairmen. It raises summer school pay from $170 to $185 per week.

Fringe benefits include a life insurance policy that would insure a teacher for the amount of his base salary or a minimum of $10,000, an insurance plan for retired teachers through which the teacher will pay for life insurance at the group rate, and an extension of sick leave for a teacher with a serious illness or injury.

Follow zoning board lead

'Awed' trustees going easy on Woodfield 76 annexation

by PAT GERLACH

Schaumburg trustees appear to be tiptoeing through the annexation agreement for Woodfield 76 that, if approved, would bring the proposed $250 million "metro center."

After two annexation hearing sessions, trustees seem to be following the recent lead of the zoning board in their apparent awe of the center's development team.

It is proposed by Bennett and Kahnweiler, the Pritzker family, owners of the Hyatt hotel chain, and Union Oil Co. of California. Union Oil's Midwest headquarters is located at the center of the site.

Zoning board members were frank following their endorsement of a Planned Metro District zoning ordinance prepared by attorneys for the developers. They said they voted for the new district in

A news analysis

Schaumburg because of the caliber of its "proposers."

DURING THE zoning hearings, it was repeatedly stated by board members and Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel that only the PMD ordinance could legally be discussed. PMD zoning is limited to tracts of a minimum of 100 acres with at least five principal buildings. The role the village is being asked to take in the project would be fully examined during annexation hearings, they said.

But now, after two annexation hearings, an "in-depth" talk has not yet taken place concerning improvements the village is being asked to provide through revenue-bond financing and special assessment programs.

The question of the village furnishing a "people mover," transportation system and parking garage financed by revenue bonds came up. However, reasons for the developers requesting these improvements were not explored. Trustees appear satisfied with the developers' contention that "community participation" is mandatory to the project's success.

The merit of a closed-circuit communications system in the development also was raised and village officials again seemed satisfied that they are not being asked to forfeit their right to the eventual control of communications and energy systems. Developers say they plan to limit the communications system to security and emergency medical care systems and even possibly grocery orders from points within the center. They maintain they are not planning a cable television system catering to programming from "outside of the sphere" of the development.

TRUSTEES HAVE noted their belief in the Woodfield 76 concept and say they are confident the "impressive" development team already has made a substantial investment in planning a project they are not likely to abandon.

Trustees say they plan to reexamine Nov. 5 a part of the annexation ordinance, prepared by developers' attorney.

Schaumburg 'key' in plan for area airport system

Schaumburg has been identified as a key factor in planning a regional airport system over the next 20 years, village transportation committee members were told Wednesday night.

Schaumburg was singled out as one of several Illinois communities vital to an airport system plan by David Newmeyer, an airport planner with Chicago Area Transportation System (CATS).

Newmeyer said any airport within a 30-mile radius of Chicago is important in current airport system planning.

NEWMEYER SAID CATS will "do all it can" to cooperate with a Schaumburg airport feasibility study being conducted. He pledged the use of CATS data in the federally-funded plan to determine the advisability of an expanded village-owned airport in Schaumburg.

General aviation needs of 15 communities in the Schaumburg area are being studied by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago engineering consultant.

The initial phase of the $36,000 study is devoted to an inventory of buildings and facilities contained in the privately owned Schaumburg Airport. However, George Gross, project manager with the engineering firm, stressed that the examination is not limited to the local airport. The study, also will examine other sites within a five-mile radius of Schaumburg that could be annexed to the village, Gross said.

IN ADDITION, an industrial survey of aviation needs is being sent to 700 businesses in the Schaumburg area, Gross said.

Two-thirds of the cost of the study is being paid by a Federal Aviation Administration grant. Additional costs are being provided by the Illinois Department of Transportation and the Village of Schaumburg, as sponsor of the study.

Completion of the project, including an environmental impact study and public hearings, is scheduled for June 1976. At that time, Gross said, the village will qualify for additional federal funding for airport construction if results of the study are positive.

Gross said CATS supplied counters to pinpoint the number of airport operations at Schaumburg Airport during the three-month inventory period.

The next airport study progress report is due about Dec. 1, Gross said.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Had-dow, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivers, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tschai-kovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

'Shindig' swings to sounds of 4 groups Saturday

Four musical groups will perform at the Schaumburg Shindig Saturday at Weatherway Plaza, Weathersfield Way and Roselle Road.

Providing entertainment will be the Jimmy James Band, Skadarlie, Yugoslavian Band, Weaver Hammond Organ, and Segments of Sound. The event, which includes games, prize drawings and carnival rides, will run from noon until midnight.

A parade to open the shindig will begin at noon at Schaumburg and Springinsguth roads and proceed south on Springinsguth Road and east on Weathersfield Way to the shopping center.

The parade will feature Jaycees and the Schaumburg Fire Dept.

Proceeds from the Jaycee-sponsored event will go to paying for a fully equipped paramedic ambulance for the fire department. Jaycee officials hope the festival will push collections past the halfway mark of the $30,000 goal.

Proceeds from the mini festival to be held at the Weatherway Plaza, Weathersfield Way and Roselle Road, will go to funding the paramedic emergency ambulance, shown in the background.

Zoners ask more details on project

The Schaumburg Zoning Board requested more information Wednesday night from the backers of a 20-acre proposed planned unit development on Bode Road just outside the village limits.

Officials of Kimball-Dempster Corp., a division of Admiral Builders, Inc., were requested to return to the board hearing at a future hearing with more comprehensive and revised plans for the site.

The hearing was conducted on the builder's request for annexation and planned unit zoning for the property, north of Bode and Springinsguth roads.

The Morton Grove firm has plans for 200 units — 88 attached townhouses and 120 quadrominiums on the property.

Joseph Zgonina, village engineer, said total open space for the project does not meet village planned-unit standards of 50 per cent. He added that the private streets in the development should be 27 rather than the now-planned 24 feet wide.

ZONING BOARD members asked for revisions in setbacks and number of three-bedroom units as well as new comprehensive engineering, landscaping and site plans.

Zgonina said a cross-section drawing of the property would be needed to prove adequacy of a retention pond plans. Board members questioned drainage on the northwest portion of the site, adding that it appears that stormwater drainage would be dumped onto nearby vacant property.

Wayne Silva, zoning board member, said he was against the proposed density of 10.4 units per acre because it does not match the 10-unit per acre density of nearby Sheffield Towne, a Levitt Corp. townhouse development.

Michael Rootberg of Kimball-Dempster told the board that the company is willing to contribute $10,000 to the village's general fund for the fire and police departments. He added that officials will be donating $100 per unit for the hospital and cultural center funds each.

ROOTBERG SAID the developer would meet with Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 officials to determine contributions to the school district. It was estimated that the development will house about 620 residents, among them 78 elementary-school children and 38 high-school-age children.

Admiral Builders has owned the property for about 10 years. Irving Rootberg, head of the company, told the board the company had attempted to buy other property in the area during the 10 years but the attempts were unsuccessful.

Board to discuss developer's lawsuit

A closed executive session of the Hoffman Estates Village Board will be held Monday to discuss a pending lawsuit against the village by Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said Wednesday the session has been requested by Village Atty. Edward Hofert. Hofert could not be reached Wednesday. Mrs. Hayter said she did not know what specifics might be taken up.

The suit, which stems from a village board decision June 3 stopping the issuance of building permits for further development in K&B's Barrington Square complex, is scheduled to come before Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl Friday.

Hofert's request for the session Monday could mean a continuance in the case will be sought Friday. However K&B attorney Thomas Foran could not be reached Wednesday to comment on another possible delay.

The suit has already been continued several times in pretrial proceedings.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said Wednesday he believed the case had been continued past the Friday date, but a court spokesman said the date still was scheduled.

OFFICIALS COULD not say whether Monday's meeting may include discussion of a countersuit to be filed by the village against the developer. The countersuit has been authorized by the board but has not been filed.

An expenditure of up to $15,000 for the village action was approved at the time the board agreed to the countersuit.

The meeting also may involve discussion of an out-of-court settlement, which has been considered since the suit was filed June 24. Terms of a settlement have reportedly included payment of $350,000 in cash and improvements and a donation of 12½ acres of open land for the village park district.

The litigation stems from the bribery case last year in which six former Hoffman Estates officials and former State Rep. Bernard Peskin, K&B's attorney, were convicted of funneling and accepting bribes from K&B in exchange for speedy, favorable zoning for the Barrington Square development.

K&B also pleaded no contest to federal charges for its role in the bribery scheme and was fined $50,000.

Park district wrapup

Fire station to be community center?

Hoffman Estates park commissioners have proposed that Fire Station No. 2 be converted to a community center.

Schaumburg Township Library officials are interested in turning the fire station into a branch library. Village officials have proposed that the station be closed when the village officially assumes firefighting services from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District.

The bond indebtedness of the station and cost of operation have been given as reasons for closing the facility. The station, at 469 Hassell Rd., is near the soon-to-be-opened Fire Station No. 3 at Governors Lane and Higgins Road.

Park district officials have proposed that the facility be used for recreation and community organization meetings.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, in a letter to the park board, said village officials would meet with organizations interested in the station. Nothing can be decided until the village officially is deemed properties and equipment from the fire protection district. The transfer of fire services is anticipated by Dec. 1.

Mrs. Hayter added that considering the park district's financial situation and the bond indebtedness of the facility, "I fall to see how you could finance the project."

Pool warms up for winter

Community Pool in Hoffman Estates is expected to have heated water when the weather turns chilly during the 1975 swim season.

Park commissioners Tuesday night awarded a $8,500 contract to Today Plumbing Co., Franklin Park, for installation of a heater at the pool on Grand Canyon Boulevard south of Higgins Road.

The propane-gas heater should be installed by the end of fall, said Howard Kessler, park district architect.

Official raps developer

A Hoffman Estates park commissioner said she was upset when Westbury's developer failed to appear Tuesday at a board meeting to state which of two park districts he wants to serve the development.

The 497-acre tract is north of the Northwest Tollway in the Village of Hoffman Estates, but in the Palatine Rural Park District. For about a year, Hoffman Estates Park District officials have been discussing annexation of the tract to the park district.

Commr. Shirley Gibbons had invited Richard Adashek, of Meridian Development Co. to tell the board which district the developer considered best for the development.

Mrs. Gibbons, who is the district's liaison to the village plan commission, expressed frustration because she could not actively negotiate for "usable" land for park district future use.

Don Rose, park district attorney, said he would draw up a petition for disconnection of the land from PRPD and ask the developer to present it to the Palatine Rural Park District board.

Rose is working on legal descriptions before completing paperwork for a referendum to annex the area.

Officials react to Meadow's mayor's actions

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuerch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Frederick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

Only a few points have been subject of an understanding to date.

Both parties have agreed that a transportation system, the "people mover," 800-car garage and other items need not be started until a "reasonable" time after the village is informed of their need by developers.

Knightsbridge to get streets

Street and lighting installation at the Knightsbridge subdivision in Schaumburg are scheduled for completion next spring now that the village has redeemed performance bonds posted by the builder.

"We said we would do it and we did," Village Administrator John Coste said this week. He added Joe Castor, village finance director, now "has the money in the till."

With builder Nick Herman in apparent default on completion of the improvements, Coste said last month that the village planned to "call in" performance bonds Oct. 1. A $67,500 bond was posted by Herman at the Bank of Antioch. The builder also placed $7,500 in a cash escrow account with the village to insure installation of streets and lighting in the 47-home area north of Higgins Road and west of Jones Road.

Herman reportedly has experienced financial problems over the last few years resulting in his failure to complete several houses in the first two units at Knightsbridge.

Attempts to reach Herman, an Inverness resident, have been futile. It was learned Wednesday that his telephone is temporarily disconnected.

Knightsbridge homeowners disclosed last month that IRS investigators have asked them for copies of records of their home purchases.

The IRS investigation of Herman does not appear linked with a probe of the village undertaken by U.S. Atty. James Thompson's office, federal authorities said this week.

In June, complete Schaumburg records dating to 1969 were subpoenaed by a federal grand jury. The subpoena called for all contracts, personnel records, names of village officials, building permits, zoning records and minutes of official meetings.

'A mountain out of a molehill': Ald. Wuerch

Mayor's sales practices draw variety of opinions

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuerch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Fredrick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled

Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

"The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," said Jacobson, and "until I can ask some questions and get some answers, I don't think any additional things can be done."

Jacobson said his first reaction was to wonder "why it was never brought to our attention by the director of public works."

Jacobson said he was concerned that city employees might have been used in sales demonstrations, and added "I would prefer nobody was demonstrating" with city equipment. "Why should the taxpayers be involved in private enterprise?"

Although Scanlan said "I know Roland too well to think he would do anything dishonest," he added he thought the mayor had not used good judgment.

"IF HE WOULD HAVE consulted with me on something like that I would have said 'No, Roland, I wouldn't do it. It just doesn't look good,'" said Scanlan. The alderman said he feels Meyer is "one of the best things that happened to this city," and felt the mayor might be able to justify his firm's sales technique by pointing to other businessmen who demonstrate their product line with satisfied customers. But "I would have said 'no.' I just don't think it's good judgment," said Scanlan.

Huddleston said: "I don't know just what to think about the situation at this point. I'd just like to think about the matter." Waldron agreed, although he noted McFeggan proposed the city buy the specialized garbage trucks. "It was his idea for these Kuka Shark trucks and the whole system," noted Waldron.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Haddon, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tschalkovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

Day-care center enrollment grows to 27 students

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has increased its enrollment from 17 to 27 students within the last month, director Dora Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler told the township board Tuesday night that a second classroom will be opened this week to accommodate the increase. She said all equipment for the center located at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., has arrived and funds from tuition also are coming in.

Enrollment includes 17 students paying full tuition of $30 per week and 10 students on either a partial or full subsidy. Mrs. Fowler said two of the students were referred to the center from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

NOT ALL STUDENTS attend on a five-day per week basis, Mrs. Fowler said, with enrollments being accepted for part-timers.

The center is licensed by the state for 30 students but Mrs. Fowler said licensing for 40 students, which is the center's capacity, will be sought soon.

She said the center is not attracting as many people as it was designed to serve, including lower-income families. "We need to get mothers here to see the center for themselves but transportation seems to be a problem," Mrs. Fowler said.

She suggested the board consider providing transportation for the center. Auditor Bernard F. Lee said the bus now serving senior citizens may be the answer.

"It might be possible to use the bus during the early morning hours and late evening hours when it is not in use by senior citizens," he said. He added that the bus should only be used if it does not interfere with senior citizen service.

IN OTHER ACTION, road and bridge supervisor Alfred C. Stell told the board four bids were received by salt suppliers Tuesday. Stell made no recommendation because he said he wants to determine which company can insure the best delivery schedule.

Low bidder was the Diamond Salt Co., Chicago, at $13.27 per ton. Other bidders were Morton Salt Co., Chicago, at $14.65 per ton; International Salt Co., Rosemont, at $15 per ton; and Cargill Inc., Chicago, at $15 per ton.

Stell said the township paid Morton Salt Co. $12 per ton for salt last year. The township orders an average of 400 tons of salt per season.

3 groups meet today on sports unit

Salt Creek Park District board members will meet today at 8 p.m. with representatives of the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District to discuss final site considerations for the park district's proposed pool and tennis complex.

Park Supt. James DeVos predicted the board would be able to reach a decision on a building site within the next two weeks. "To be honest, the pool is going to go somewhere near the lake area," DeVos said, referring to two Palatine lake sites, Lake Irene and Lake Rossiter, just north of the Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway interchange.

The board concluded interviews with five different architects. DeVos said the board would probably choose one of them for the pool and tennis project at Tuesday night's board meeting. Those architects or firms interviewed since mid-August are Rolane Schepanski, Arlington Heights; Recreation Planners and Associates, Skokie; McFadden and Everly, Winnetka; Paddock Pools, Wheeling; and Kessler, Mercel and Lochner Inc., Chicago.

DeVos said the average architect's fee presented would be seven per cent of the total pool and tennis project.

DeVos said the park board still hopes to have a referendum on the proposed pool project ready for the voters by December.

Library to get new furniture

Painting at the Rolling Meadows Public Library has been completed and new furnishings on the main floor should be installed before Oct. 20, said Judith Drescher, head librarian.

The library will be closed for two days when the furniture is delivered and installed, but the dates have not yet been determined. Notice will be given to the public when the two days are chosen, she said.

Retilling of floors and walls in the library's rest room is going to be postponed because of high cost, she said.

The board had set a $1,500 limit on the repair work, and the estimate exceeded that amount. Mrs. Drescher said the rest room would probably be painted rather than tiled in the future.

The library board also has directed the city to repair pot holes in the library's parking lot.

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

High school teachers OK 7.8% raise

High School Dist. 211 teachers Wednesday accepted a salary contract providing 7.8 per cent raises by a vote of 283 to 192. The vote ends more than seven months of salary negotiations with the board of education. The board is expected to ratify the contract Monday night.

The contract raises the base salary of teachers from $9,950 to $10,650 this year, plus a $70 one-time bonus for each teacher. Teachers also receive a 5 per cent increase in salary for an additional year of experience. The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1974, the date last year's contract expired.

Teachers rejected Aug. 30 a contract containing the 7.8 per cent raise by a two-vote margin. They reacted with anger to the new offer, containing the $50 bonus, which they described as "an insult." Roughly half of more than 200 teachers who met to discuss the contract last week said they were ready to strike.

BUT SEVERAL leaders of Dist. 211's teachers' association urged teachers to accept the contract, saying it was the best they could get from the school board. They urged teachers to work to elect new board members more favorable to teachers next spring.

"Our biggest goal is to work towards revamping the school board," said teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien after the vote Wednesday. He said teachers are "very serious about being an influence" in April school board elections. "It's the first time since I've been in the district that people have said it's time to do something about the school board."

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek Wednesday said he has "no comment" on the teachers' plans to change the makeup of the board. Creek said he was pleased by the teachers' vote and expects the board to ratify the contract.

O'Brien, one of three teacher negotiators who voted against the contract last month, said he does not consider the vote a defeat. There are "still a large number of teachers who are still dissatisfied," he said. "It doesn't mean we are not united in trying to better our lot in Dist. 211."

O'BRIEN SAID THE dispute over salary has "affected the morale of the staff. It's time now that teachers put negotiations behind them and put all their effort behind what their job is and that is education. There have been too many distractions to start the school year."

"I'm relieved that we don't have to go to extreme measures," said Carl Flaks, president of the teachers' association. "The results could have been disastrous to us in future years."

Many teachers voted to accept the contract on the recommendation of some of the association leaders, said Lowell Johnson, one teacher negotiator who was against the contract. Wednesday's vote "still shows there are 192 teachers who say they don't think this is the best thing," he said.

"I feel somewhat disappointed. I think we deserve a better contract than what they gave us," said Johnson. "We've got to plan ahead in different ways. We've got to get the people together to work now for a better contract, rather than call a crisis meeting when the going gets tough."

IN ADDITION TO the bonus and raise in base salary the contract includes a 7 per cent increase in coaching salaries and extracurricular pay for teacher and 10 per cent raise for department chairmen. It raises summer school pay from $170 to $185 per week.

Fringe benefits include a life insurance policy that would insure a teacher for the amount of his base salary or a minimum of $10,000, an insurance plan for retired teachers through which the teacher will pay for life insurance at the group rate, and an extension of sick leave for a teacher with a serious illness or injury.

Officials react to mayor's actions

might boost company sales, suggested Waldron. "I think a mayor might have more weight in impressing a prospective buyer than any other salesman might," he said suggesting there may be "unfair competition."

ALTHOUGH WEBER said he intends to question Meyer, he added he considers the mayor "the last guy who would put himself in a position where there's any conflict of interest at all or where there's any public disgrace." He said he sees no particular concern if the demonstrations are not interfering with city work schedules or costing taxpayer money.

Eberhard said there is an "indirect" difference between the mayor and other salesmen, but he wants to check the facts further. "I don't go for this kind of stuff. This concerns me quite a bit," he said.

Palatine incident last week

Rape prompts solicitor law review

by DIANE MEHIGAS

Palatine Police Chief Jerry Bratcher plans to reevaluate village solicitation ordinances following the alleged rape of an elderly woman in her home last week by a magazine salesman.

"We will determine if the solicitation ordinances can be revised to be more stringent for the community's safety without infringing upon the constitutional rights of the solicitor," Bratcher said.

Village ordinances require solicitors to register with the police department, giving their name, personal information and identification and giving the name of the company they represent.

Palatine ordinances prohibit solicitors from operating in the village without police permission. Solicitors are limited to operate from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

DOOR-TO-DOOR solicitors have been arrested by police when they have persisted even though a sign indicating "no solicitation" has been posted at the resident's front door, or when a resident has asked a solicitor to leave the premises, Bratcher said.

"Police officers respond immediately when a resident calls to complain about a solicitor if the solicitor is still at the door or in the area," Bratcher said.

Bratcher's comments, warning residents against opening their front doors to strangers, followed a reported rape last Wednesday of an elderly woman by a magazine solicitor. Police report that the victim told police the magazine solicitor stepped into the house without being asked, and walked into her kitchen to get a drink of water because he was tired and thirsty.

The woman was assaulted in the kitchen of her home, police said. James L. Houston, 18, of 9615 S. Woodlawn, Chicago, was arrested by Palatine police in a motel in Hazelcrest, Illinois, charged with rape and released on $20,000 bond pending an appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Friday.

Lt. ROBERT CENTNER of the Palatine police recalled other instances where door-to-door solicitors have "just walked into a resident's home without being asked." A mentally retarded teenage girl was raped in her Palatine home three years ago after answering a solicitor's knock at the front door.

"The magazine solicitor just walked into the home when the girl was alone. It can happen that fast," Centner said.

Centner said the village is frequented by groups of 15 to 20 solicitors every other week throughout the spring, summer and fall. They usually sign up for two weeks of soliciting in the village. Most of the solicitors are transient and live out of the state, he said.

The police department continually receives complaints from residents on the "abusive language" and the "persistent sales pitch" the solicitors give them when the resident refuses a sale, Centner said.

"The situation last week is a tragic one. My personal advise to residents would be not to allow anyone into your home if you don't know them or their background," Bratcher said.

"If A RESIDENT does not refuse a solicitor entry into his home, he is obviously taking a calculated risk. But, if at any time, a resident is having difficulty with a solicitor, he should lock his door and call the police immediately," Bratcher said.

Area suburbs have solicitation ordinances similar to Palatine's restricting solicitation to certain hours of each day, prohibiting solicitation without a permit from the police or from the village manager and prohibiting solicitation without the consent of the resident.

Capt. Ralph Evans of Rolling Meadows police said the police "check the references, identity, and employer of the person applying for a solicitation permit before he is issued a permit."

"Not many arrests for the violation of the city ordinances in Rolling Meadows have been made because the restrictions on solicitation are 'made very clear to the applicant when he registers,'" Evans said.

Most of the arrests of solicitors in surrounding suburbs are made because the solicitors are operating door-to-door after dark, after the hours that are designated in the local solicitation ordinances.

Park district to add 14 new programs

The Rolling Meadows Park District will add 14 new programs to its recreational offerings beginning in late October.

Full information and fee schedules will be released in mid-October, said Mary Simonis, recreation supervisor. The classes and fees were given tentative approval by the park board's recreation committee this week.

Programs in boys' basketball, men's basketball league, girls' basketball, candlemaking, kiddie Christmas crafts, holiday crafts, gymnastics, weightlifting, wrestling, magic for adults, beginning acrylic painting, model making, horseback riding and slim and trim will begin after Oct. 29.

Fees range from $1 to $12 for simple recreation programs. Men's basketball, organized on a team basis, costs $170 per team. Horseback riding charges $35 per person.

A series of mini-sessions in men's basketball, floor hockey, women's volleyball and co-rec volleyball will be offered. Fees range from $2 to $4.50 for an average of four sessions in each class.

Final approval of the programs is expected at the regular park board meeting Oct. 15.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported Tuesday that the Palatine Township Community Child Care Center uses federal revenue-sharing funds to pay for staff salaries, supplies, and rent.

The revenue-sharing funds are used only to pay for the enrollment of children from low-income families.

Salaries, rent and supplies are paid for with fees collected by the center from parents who pay the top fee of $25 per week per child for services.

High school teachers OK pact for 7.8% pay raise

High School Dist. 211 teachers Wednesday accepted a salary contract providing 7.8 per cent raises by a vote of 203 to 192.

Rape prompts reevaluation of solicitation ordinance

by DIANE MEHRIGAS

Palatine Police Chief Jerry Bratcher plans to reevaluate village solicitation ordinances following the alleged rape of an elderly woman in her home last week by a magazine salesman.

"We will determine if the solicitation ordinances can be revised to be more stringent for the community's safety without infringing upon the constitutional rights of the solicitor," Bratcher said.

Village ordinances require solicitors to register with the police department, giving their name, personal information and identification and giving the name of the company they represent.

Palatine ordinances prohibit solicitors from operating in the village without police permission. Solicitors are limited to operate from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

DOOR-TO-DOOR solicitors have been arrested by police when they have persisted even though a sign indicating "no solicitation has been posted at the resident's front door, or when a resident has asked a solicitor to leave the premises," Bratcher said.

"Police officers respond immediately when a resident calls to complain about a solicitor if the solicitor is still at the door or in the area," Bratcher said.

Bratcher's comments, warning residents against opening their front doors to strangers, followed a reported rape last Wednesday of an elderly woman, by a magazine solicitor. Police report that the victim told police the magazine solicitor stepped into the house without being asked, and walked into her kitchen to get a drink of water because he was tired and thirsty.

Area suburbs have solicitation ordinances similar to Palatine's restricting solicitation to certain hours of each day, prohibiting solicitation without a permit from the police or from the village manager and prohibiting solicitation without the consent of the resident.

The Palatine Lions Club also will collect money from Palatine residents in public places and on street corners on its annual Candy Day for the Blind Oct. 12.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Had-dow, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tschai-kovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

Dave Tonge

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

Mayor's sales practices draw variety of opinions

by NANCY COWGEN

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuerch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Fredrick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

"The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," said Jacobson, and "until I can ask some questions and get some answers, I don't think any additional things can be done."

Jacobson said his first reaction was to wonder "why it was never brought to my attention by the director of public works."

Jacobson said he was concerned that city employees might have been used in sales demonstrations, and added "I would prefer nobody was demonstrating" with city equipment. "Why should the taxpayers be involved in private enterprise?"

Although Scanlan said "I know Roland too well to think he would do anything dishonest," he added he thought the mayor had not used good judgment.

"IF HE WOULD HAVE consulted with me on something like that I would have said 'No, Roland, I wouldn't do it. It just doesn't look good,'" said Scanlan. The alderman said he feels Meyer is "one of the best things that happened to this city," and felt the mayor might be able to justify his firm's sales technique by pointing to other businessmen who demonstrate their product line with satisfied customers. But "I would have said 'no.' I just don't think it's good judgment," said Scanlan.

Huddleston said: "I don't know just what to think about the situation at this point. I'd just like to think about the matter." Waldron agreed, although he noted McFeggan proposed the city buy the specialized garbage trucks. "It was his idea for these Kuka Shark trucks and the whole system," noted Waldron.

The fact that the mayor owns Midwest might boost company sales, suggested

Waldron. "I think a mayor might have more weight in impressing a prospective buyer than any other salesman might," he said suggesting there may be "unfair competition."

ALTHOUGH WEBER said he intends to question Meyer, he added he considers the mayor "the last guy who would put himself in a position where there's any conflict of interest at all or where there's any public disgrace." He said he sees no particular concern if the demonstrations are not interfering with city work schedules or costing taxpayer money.

Eberhard said there is an "indirect" difference between the mayor and other salesmen, but he wants to check the facts further. "I don't go for this kind of stuff. This concerns me quite a bit," he said.

Wuerch saw the details as "good reading," but his only reaction was to say "I don't think the mayor is any different than any other salesman. What does being a mayor of a city have to do with it?" he asked.

Unsightly areas to be identified

A prettier Palatine goal of board

by DIANE MERMIGAS
The Palatine Advisory Board is planning a village-wide beautification project in which homeowners associations will help cleanup and landscape areas of the village.

The advisory board has begun to identify locations that need upgrading based on suggestions offered by residents in a recent survey.

And last Saturday afternoon while members of the advisory and village board were touring the village to identify unsightly areas, a group of 50 Plum Grove Manor residents were working on a beautification project of their own.

"It was a marvelous sight to see homeowners working in their neighborhood especially when we are trying to identify the spots in the village that could use some beautification, and are trying to get residents excited about making the village more attractive," said Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig.

HARWIG SAID THE village donated $300 worth of gravel and a maple tree to the Plum Grove Manor residents' effort, after he was approached by three homeowners association's officials two weeks ago.

The Palatine Advisory Board recently formed a beautification subcommittee to study the possibility of making public parking lots, rights-of-way, meeting places and entrance ways to the village and to the subdivisions more attractive.

Palatine residents who responded to the advisory board's recent survey suggested specific locations that could use "some cleaning up and landscaping," Harwig said.

The task committee will meet again Saturday at the village hall, 54 S. Bruckway, at 9 a.m. to list the main public locations that need beautification and rank them in the order of importance. The committee will then consider what kind of work should be done, what materials are needed and what groups or individuals can be expected to help. Members of the Plum Grove Manor subdivision in the southern part of Palatine already have volunteered their services. Plum Grove Manor is not the first Palatine subdivision to take on its own beautification project.

SERVICE GROUPS LIKE the Palatine Jaycees and the Garden Club are paying for the beautification of several sites in the village.

Homeowners association representatives contacted by The Herald said many residents in their subdivisions would enthusiastically participate in a village-wide beautification project.

Kenneth Bochat, president of the Kenilwick subdivision in the northeast corner of Palatine, said residents there "would be most interested in participating in a village cleanup program."

LOCAL OFFICIALS inspect weeds growing around a light pole in the McDada and Co. Inc. parking lot, 1300 E. Northwest Hwy. Many shopping center parking lots and rights-of-way along Northwest Highway have been cited by officials as eyesores in need of cleanup and beautification.

Ninety homeowners in the subdivision of 110 homes, cleaned up the debris-filled entrance way to Kenilwick two years ago at their own expense. The residents in Kenilwick are planning to beautify the entrance way after the Hicks Road construction, south of Dundee Road, is completed with funds that have already been collected, Bochat said.

William Yaman, a resident of the northern subdivision of Pebble Creek, said homeowners there also are waiting for the Hicks Road construction to be completed before they begin beautification of their own entrance way.

MAISA ARMATYS, secretary of the Orchard Hills Homeowners Assn., said homeowners recently planted trees in the neighborhood Cedar Park on Palatine Road. She said homeowners in Orchard Hills "are concerned enough about the way their area looks" to want to help in a village-wide beautification project.

John Jirgenson, president of the Virginia Lake-Spinnaker Cove Homeowners Assn., said that while the subdivision is still under construction, little beautification of public land has been done.

Homeowners living along the subdivision's Grissom Drive recently landscaped the cul de sac at the end of the drive with their own money and time.

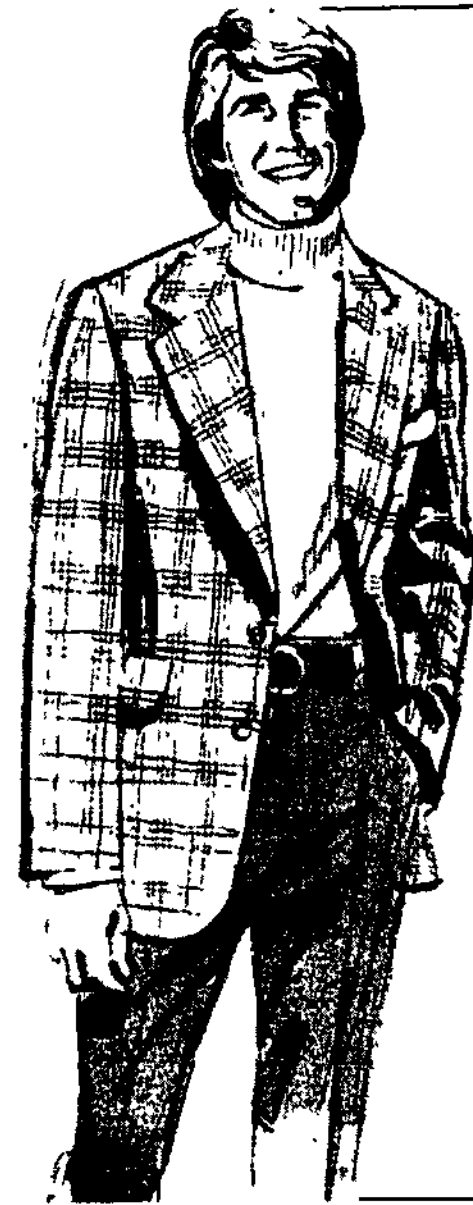

"I don't see any reason to think that residents wouldn't want to at least work on improving the appearance of public areas in their own subdivision, if not within the more public areas of the village itself," Jirgenson said.

The village committee already has identified rights-of-way and parking lots along Northwest Highway, the Chicago and North Western train station, and the large shopping center areas in the village as "opportunities for beautification by the village and its residents," said Philip Stern, village trustee and representative to the committee.

Stern said the beautification campaign probably would extend well into next year and especially the spring when most of the planting and landscaping can be done.

3 groups meet today on sports unit

Salt Creek Park District board members will meet today at 8 p.m. with representatives of the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District to discuss final site considerations for the park district's proposed pool and tennis complex.

Park Supt. James DeVos predicted the board would be able to reach a decision on a building site within the next two weeks. "To be honest, the pool is going to go somewhere near the lake area," DeVos said, referring to two Palatine lake sites, Lake Irene and Lake Rossiter, just north of the Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway interchange.

The board concluded interviews with five different architects. DeVos said the board would probably choose one of them for the pool and tennis project at Tuesday night's board meeting. Those architects or firms interviewed since mid-August are Rolone Schepanski, Arlington Heights; Recreation Planners and Associates, Skokie; McFadden and Everly, Winnetka; Paddock Pools, Wheeling; and Kessler, Mercl and Lochner Inc., Chicago.

DeVos said the average architect's fee presented would be seven per cent of the total pool and tennis project.

DeVos said the park board still hopes to have a referendum on the proposed pool project ready for the voters by December.

New Town area

Village takes first step for buying water system

Mount Prospect has taken the first step toward purchase of Citizens Utilities Co.'s water and sewer system in the New Town section of the village.

The village board Tuesday voted to hire the firm of M & E/Aistot, March and Gullion Inc., Des Plaines, to conduct a study of the cost of purchasing the utility company's equipment in the north-east portion of the village.

Cost of the appraisal is not to exceed $27,600.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Wednesday the purpose of the appraisal is to determine whether it would be financially feasible for the village to make an offer to the company and assume the water supplying job in that area.

"The study will try to place a price on capital improvements and hopefully determine how the system can be integrated into the village water system," Teichert said. The study also will try to determine if the equipment serving Mount Prospect can be separated from company holdings in other areas, Teichert said.

ACCORDING TO the agreement proposed by George March of the engineering firm, the study will determine the value of the existing water supply and sewer system and figure what other costs, such as short-range capital improvements, financing of the system, purchase and annual maintenance and operation costs would be required. The study also will report on the total cost needed for the purchase, whether the present rate structure would provide the needed revenue and whether the purchase is considered feasible.

Teichert said that if purchase of the equipment is possible the cost would be financed through the sale of revenue bonds which would be retired through the payment of user fees.

Teichert speculated that the ultimate price of purchasing the equipment could be paid off according to the present rate structure charged by Citizens. Due to a recently approved rate increase, about 2,350 households in Mount Prospect that are served by Citizens pay a minimum monthly water rate of $5.36 and a flat sewer charge of $6 per month.

The charge to Citizens customers in Mount Prospect is considerably higher than the cost assessed to village residents who are tied into the village water system.

THE RATE differential is such that a family in the Citizens service area would pay $13.46 a month including a sewer charge for 6,000 gallons of water used compared to a charge of $7 per month to other village residents for the identical service.

"The rate difference is extreme and as it stands there is no relief for the people in the Citizens area," Teichert said. "They don't have a constant supply of water and they still pay a higher cost."

The mayor added that if the Citizens equipment was integrated into the village water system, residents in the New Town area would be assured a constant water supply with good pressure because the village wells could handle the added load.

Teichert said it is possible that if the village purchases the Citizens equipment, rates charged to residents in the New Town area eventually could go down once the revenue bonds are retired. "At least they couldn't be in a worse position than they are now," the mayor said.

NO TIMETABLE for completing the study has been determined but Teichert said he believes the matter is urgent and should receive prompt attention.

"This is way overdue, in my judgment. The people have approached us to consider this and they are the ones who will have to bear the cost," Teichert said.

Although Citizens has said it is not interested in selling any or all of its operation, Teichert said if the village made the company an offer, he expected it would be given serious consideration.

"The ultimate goal in this situation is to provide the people there with better service and lower rates," Teichert said.

TRUSTEE RICHARD N. Hendricks, the lone dissenter in the vote to proceed with the study, said Wednesday he is not opposed to possible purchase of the utility company.

"My question is whether we should spend $27,000 for a study when it may not be feasible to buy the company at all," Hendricks said.

Hendricks moved to have the matter tabled in favor of waiting for a legal opinion on whether the village has the right to condemn the company if Citizens refuses to sell. Teichert ruled the motion out-of-order contending that the village always has the right of condemnation as a last resort.

"I voted against the motion reluctantly because my concern was not answered," Hendricks said, "but I am in favor of obtaining the company in order to get those people on village water."

Des Plaines, which already has received a study, is considering alternatives to outright purchase of the system. About 500 homes in Waycinden Park, an unincorporated Elk Grove Township subdivision surrounded by Des Plaines, are served by Citizens Utilities Co.

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Had-dow, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tschai-kovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

$500,000 in negotiable school tax warrants lost

A total of $500,000 worth of negotiable tax anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said.

The loss does not affect the school district because the institutions are responsible for any loss if the warrants are cashed, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration. Both institutions will post bonds 1½ times greater than the warrants to insure payment if the originals are cashed.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education authorized issuance of duplicate tax warrants to replace the originals earlier this week.

ACCORDING TO PERRY, the action will allow the district to pay the debt as planned and remove any possibility of tarnishing the district's credit rating with bonding companies.

The two institutions are Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis and Kinder, Peabody & Co., a New York-based brokerage firm, said Harold Erlandson, Elk Grove Township school treasurer.

William Schumway, attorney for the school treasurer, refused to supply any information from the warrant-sale documents in his possession, saying he didn't want to "embarrass" the two institutions involved. Schumway contended that the information is confidential.

Edward Gesme, an official in the bonds and investment department at Northwestern National, said he knows nothing about the lost warrants.

ANOTHER BANK OFFICER however said he was vaguely aware of the situation but didn't know any details.

Gesme did say it was possible Northwestern National was holding the bonds for "one of our clients — maybe a country bank."

The warrants are a means to borrow against anticipated tax revenue. They were issued against 1973 tax monies.

The warrants are to be paid off when the tax money is received and will expire in six months, Perry said. Tax money is now starting to come in.

The loss of three of the tax warrants was discovered in June, according to Erlandson. The district was expecting part of the tax levy to come in and the township treasurer issued a call for the three warrants to the Minnesota Bank. The bank was unable to locate the warrants, he said.

The second set of warrants was discovered missing Sept. 26 when the treasurer issued another call for the warrants from the East Coast firm. Erlandson said that apparently the brokerage firm holding the bonds merged with another firm and lost the warrants during the merger.

"WE'RE GLAD TO GET some of this cleared up," said Erlandson. "We paid off three of the warrants yesterday (Tuesday)."

The treasurer pointed out that the mix-up was going to be an additional expense to the township school trustees, a body which has control over local school district funds. "Someone has to take care of the paperwork," he said referring to the trustees, "and it's going to cost somebody somewhere along the line."

Erlandson said he had no idea what the cost involved would be.

Restaurant fire blamed on arson

Mount Prospect fire officials said arson was responsible for Wednesday's early-morning fire at Danny's Barn restaurant, 303 E. Kensington Rd.

Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz said evidence was found of four separate fires near a stage area. He said a flammable liquid was used to help start the fires which caused an estimated $5,000 damage.

Pairitz said the building's automatic sprinkler system had the fires under control when the fire department arrived. The fire was discovered at 4:12 a.m.

Correction

A $100 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of vandals who have damaged the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St., over the last 22 months.

A headline error in Wednesday's editions of The Herald stated the reward as $3,000 which is the amount of damage done to the library.

Margaret Lusk, library board president, is personally offering the reward. Persons with information on the vandalism should go to the library or call 259-3500.

Damage in the 10:45 p.m. fire was extensive. At about the same time, they fought a brush fire on the Rob Roy Golf course, east of Wheeling Road

Schools adopt sex education plan

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A new sex education curriculum for seventh and eighth graders in River Trails Dist. 26 has been adopted by the board of education.

The two-year program was designed during the summer by teachers Marianne Jezowski and Don Wickersham and was presented to the board at its Tuesday night meeting.

Alan Levin, curriculum director, said sex education was taught last year by a team of outside consultants. This year, he added, the curriculum will be taken over at the district level and taught by teachers.

The seventh-grade curriculum, which will be taught over a four-week period, will deal with the adolescent changes experienced by young people, and with reproduction.

LEVIN STRESSED that the curriculum "emphasizes the normal to alleviate any worries about fast or slow development."

Teachers will discuss not only the physical changes young people experience but the social and emotional changes. Discussions on reproduction will include information on the male and female reproduction systems, fertilization, prenatal development and birth.

Eighth-grade curriculum will review reproduction and delve into the areas of dating and social diseases.

The two teachers who mapped out the new program created a 54-page guide for use by sex education teachers. The guide includes pages of reference material, discussion topics, diagrams, suggested activities, and the district's objectives in teaching each of the subject areas.

FOR EXAMPLE, in the area of emotional aspects of adolescent change, the guide lists as objectives: to identify feelings about bodily changes, and to examine the difference between the emotions that are real and those that are unsubstantiated.

The unit will deal with understanding how bodily changes affect the emotions, handling new sex drives, understanding feelings of independence, control of emotions and acknowledging the desire to make oneself attractive to the opposite sex.

The guide points out there are special topics which teachers should be prepared to consider whenever questions are asked in class.

"A question asked by a student in slang will be answered by the teachers by changing the words to the correct medical term," Levin told the board. He added that questions of sexual technique will not be included in the program.

During their research, the teachers sought advice from the Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction's office on how to handle discussions of birth control.

The response from the state, Levin said, was that only a doctor can discuss birth control with a class and students must have written permission from their parents. Teachers should refer questions on the subject back to the parents — pointing out there are religious overtones, he said.

"NOT INCLUDING birth control information is like giving a child a book of matches and not telling him where the extinguisher is," said board member Leora Rosen.

Other board members tagged OSPI's answer as "archaic" and "outdated."

Wickersham, who may be teaching the sex education course, said both he and Jezowski had hoped the board would react in favor of including birth control in the curriculum. He said changes would be made in the guide as teachers work with it and it was possible this addition would be made.

The guide contains recommendations, also approved by the board:

- A sex education curriculum for kindergarten through eighth grade should be developed to emphasize self-understanding, family life, social responsibilities and physical development.

- The process of formulating a sex education curriculum should be an on-going process; deletions and additions should be made as necessary.

- The guide should be evaluated by parents and teachers and should be revised each year based on recommendations.

- Parent meetings should be held to show the specific materials that will be used and answer any questions.

- A parent bookshelf should be established with reference materials for adults.

- Supplementary materials should be purchased.

- No teacher should be forced to teach the curriculum.

Day-care center enrollment grows

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has increased its enrollment from 17 to 27 students within the last month, director Dora Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler told the township board Tuesday night that a second classroom will be opened this week to accommodate the increase. She said all equipment for the center located at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd. has arrived and funds from tuition also are coming in.

Enrollment includes 17 students paying full tuition of $30 per week and 10 students on either a partial or full subsidy. Mrs. Fowler said two of the students were referred to the center from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

NOT ALL STUDENTS attend on a five-day per week basis, Mrs. Fowler said, with enrollments being accepted for part-timers.

The center is licensed by the state for 30 students but Mrs. Fowler said licensing for 40 students, which is the center's capacity, will be sought soon.

She said the center is not attracting as many people as it was designed to serve, including lower-income families. "We need to get mothers here to see the center for themselves but transportation seems to be a problem," Mrs. Fowler said.

She suggested the board consider providing transportation for the center. Auditor Bernard F. Lee said the bus now serving senior citizens may be the answer.

"It might be possible to use the bus during the early morning hours and late evening hours when it is not in use by senior citizens," he said. He added that the bus should only be used if it does not interfere with senior citizen service.

IN OTHER ACTION, road and bridge supervisor Alfred C. Stell told the board four bids were received by salt suppliers Tuesday. Stell made no recommendation because he said he wants to determine which company can insure the best delivery schedule.

Low bidder was the Diamond Salt Co., Chicago, at $13.27 per ton. Other bidders were Morton Salt Co., Chicago, at $14.65 per ton; International Salt Co., Rosemont, at $15 per ton; and Cargill Inc., Chicago, at $15 per ton.

Stell said the township paid Morton Salt Co. $12 per ton for salt last year. The township orders an average of 400 tons of salt per season.

6 firemen finish first four days

Six new Mount Prospect firemen, including the youngest fireman in the state, have been on the job four days.

The new men are Michael A. Lipnisky of Chicago, Mark S. Coisel of Arlington Heights, Randy S. Cherwin of Mount Prospect, Matthew J. Canning of Chicago, Kurt F. Straub of Mount Prospect and Robert S. Penzo of Mount Prospect.

Cherwin, 18, is the youngest fireman in the state. He became eligible under the fire cadet program, which was pioneered by Mount Prospect Firefighter Leonard Kaiser and became law last year. The two-year cadet program is part of High School Dist. 214's diversified education program.

Cherwin also had to successfully pass the firefighter examination, which he did. He is a 1974 graduate of Prospect High School.

Prior to the cadet program and the state law changes, a man had to be 21 before becoming a fireman.

Cherwin and the other five probationary firemen will undergo training with Deputy Fire Chief James Hilliger. They will learn the use of ladders, laying water hose for use in fighting fires, some first aid and the general equipment, rescue and escape methods of the department.

EACH MAN WILL be assigned to a regular shift after the four weeks and then they will receive on-the-job training from their respective shift commanders. The new men also will be assigned classroom work at Harper College, where they must take and pass the Emergency Medical Technicians course and be certified nationally.

The six men were sworn in during a ceremony at Tuesday's village board meeting. Also at the meeting several firemen received commendations for their part in the Aug. 9 rescue of Richard Mancuso, 5, of 506 Crestwood Ln., from the water retention basin at Clearwater Park. The boy had stopped breathing by the time firemen found him.

The honored firemen were Lt. Raymond Kordecki and Firefighters Virgil Strzelecki, Dennis Amber, Richard Fronczak, Charles Forton and Paul Watkins. Richard Mancuso and his parents were present to thank the firemen.

All 5 sergeants seen testing for lieutenant

All five Mount Prospect police sergeants are expected to take the Oct. 18 promotion examination for lieutenants.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney has plans to promote one sergeant to a lieutenant. He also wants to promote five patrolmen to sergeants, including the four already on a sergeants' eligibility list.

Doney has said an imbalance exists in the police department's organizational structure. Currently several patrolmen have duty as acting sergeants when they command a shift (an eight-hour tour of duty for policemen).

Doney said he would like to have by next May a sergeant in command of each of the three daily shifts and a lieutenant to command both the patrol and administrative sections. Currently, there is a lieutenant in charge of the patrol division only.

Car crash injures Wheeling driver

A Wheeling man was injured early Wednesday when his car rolled over on River Road, north of Kensington Road in Mount Prospect.

John S. Willis, 24, of 1417 S. Wolf Rd., was treated at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines and then released. Police said the 2:43 a.m. accident occurred when Willis lost control of his car and it hit the shoulder of the road. Damage to the car was estimated at $2,500.

Police charged Willis with leaving the roadway and he is to appear Nov. 6 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

'Trick-or-treat' day set Oct. 31

This year Mount Prospect residents will be celebrating Halloween on Oct. 31, the traditional date for trick-or-treating.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the village's official trick-or-treat day will not be moved to the Sunday before Halloween as it has been for the past two years.

Noting that Halloween falls on a Thursday this year, Telchert said this would create a big time gap between the Sunday before Halloween and the official holiday.

In addition, Telchert said some PTA groups and residents have complained about moving the official trick-or-treat day to Sunday. He said some residents have said that youngsters should trick-or-treat on Halloween since they are already dressed in their costumes for school celebrations.

Officials react to actions of Meyer's sales practices

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuorch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuorch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Fredrick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware of the city exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

"The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," said Jacobson, and "until I can ask some questions and get some answers, I don't think any additional things can be done."

Jacobson said his first reaction was to wonder "why it was never brought to our attention by the director of public works."

Jacobson said he was concerned that city employees might have been used in sales demonstrations, and added "I would prefer nobody was demonstrating" with city equipment. "Why should the taxpayers be involved in private enterprise?"

Although Scanlan said "I know Roland too well to think he would do anything dishonest," he added he thought the mayor had not used good judgment.

"IF HE WOULD HAVE consulted with me on something like that I would have said 'No, Roland, I wouldn't do it. It just doesn't look good,'" said Scanlan. The alderman said he feels Meyer is "one of the best things that happened to this city," and felt the mayor might be able to justify his firm's sales technique by pointing to other businessmen who demonstrate their product line with satisfied customers. But "I would have said 'no' I just don't think it's good judgment," said Scanlan.

Huddleston said: "I don't know just what to think about the situation at this point. I'd just like to think about the matter." Waldron agreed, although he noted McFeggan proposed the city buy the specialized garbage trucks. "It was his idea for these Kuka Shark trucks and the whole system," noted Waldron.

The fact that the mayor owns Midwest might boost company sales, suggested Waldron. "I think a mayor might have more weight in impressing a prospective buyer than any other salesman might," he said suggesting there may be "unfair competition."

ALTHOUGH WEBER said he intends to question Meyer, he added he considers the mayor "the last guy who would put himself in a position where there's any conflict of interest at all or where there's any public disgrace." He said he sees no particular concern if the demonstrations are not interfering with city work schedules or costing taxpayer money.

Eberhard said there is an "indirect" difference between the mayor and other salesmen, but he wants to check the facts further. "I don't go for this kind of stuff. This concerns me quite a bit," he said.

Office ransacked at Scanda House

Burglars broke into the Scanda House Restaurant, 1018 Mount Prospect Plaza, Wednesday and ransacked an office.

Police said it is not known what was stolen in the burglary, which was discovered at 3:15 a.m. by a maintenance man. They added they have a description of a car seen in the area which they are attempting to track down.

Scanda House also was the target of two bomb threats, one Monday night and one Tuesday night. In neither instance was any evidence of a bomb found.

A money-maker facility one option

Remedies to ease parks financial woes suggested

by KURT BAER

Three broad courses of action are emerging as possible remedies to the money ills of the Arlington Heights Park District, said John G. Woods, chairman of a blue ribbon committee appointed to study the district's financial future.

The alternatives include:

- Construction of a major revenue-producing facility, coupled with a park district tax rate increase and long-term assistance from the state legislature.

- A merger with the village government, which would assume the park district's tax effort and other money management responsibilities.

- Preservation of the park district as an autonomous unit of government, but dependent on the village for financial assistance in land acquisition and bonding power.

These three and other possible options are to be discussed at the committee's fourth meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at Olympic Park, 650 N. Ridge Ave.

"I HOPE WE CAN start to narrow down our options very shortly now," Woods said, adding that the committee's work may be completed in several more weeks, and certainly should be finished by the end of the year.

Woods said that figures supplied this week by Arlington Heights Park District Treasurer Roger Burke project a mounting deficit over the next five years. In 1978-79, Burke estimates income of $1.5 million against expenses of $2.1 million.

"We obviously have a serious problem at this point. Our dependency on taxes for the major share of our revenue, and the lack of growth in our activity fees to a substantial degree, simply will not support the expenses we will incur with our present set up," Burke reports.

He estimates that the park district's assessed valuation will rise at an annual rate of only two per cent, compared with a 12 per cent yearly increase in the cost of goods and services and 8 per cent payroll increases. Revenue from program fees will grow by 5 per cent, according to Burke.

"THESE ARE THE figures we've been needing and, assuming they're sound, they really point up the problem," Woods said.

Raising the park district's tax rate to the maximum allowed by law offers no long-term solution to the problem, he said. A recreation facility that would produce more money from fees than it costs to build and operate might help the situation, Woods said.

But he expressed doubt whether an indoor ice rink, which has been proposed in the Arlington Heights Park District in the past, would be a successful revenue producer.

An indoor ice skating rink operated by the Rolling Meadows Park District has had financial problems, and city residents have complained that too much of its operating time is taken up by hockey games, which bring in more money than general skating.

Woods said the financial plan committee probably will want to meet with state representatives from Arlington Heights to explore the possibility of changes in Illinois law that would benefit financially-strapped park districts. One such change might be raising the ceiling on park district tax rates, he said.

As for the possibility of a merger of the village and park district, Woods said it has been suggested that an elected park board continue to set park and recreation policy, using funds raised by the village.

He likened the possible set up to the operation of the village library board.

A REFERENDUM would be one way to merge the two governmental units. But Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel also has said a mutual agreement to combine the village and park district may be possible under Arlington Heights' home rule powers.

Before making its recommendations to the village and park board, the committee probably will take a tour of Arlington Heights Park District facilities, as well as some other suburban park district, Woods said.

"I think we should see whether what we've been doing has really been first class, or whether we've been living too luxuriously," he said.

Kay Muller, park district vice president, who was instrumental in the formation of the blue ribbon financial planning committee, said that, though the money problems of the park district were real, there was no immediate danger of it going bankrupt.

"If nothing else, we could survive three more years on tax anticipation warrants," Mrs. Muller said, referring to the district's ability to borrow money against future taxes.

"But once we start this we're committed to a deadend street so naturally we're reluctant to go that way," she added.

School warrants totaling $500,000 reported lost

A total of $300,000 worth of negotiable tax anticipation warrants issued by Elk Grove Township Dist. 39 have apparently been lost by two financial institutions, school officials said.

The loss does not affect the school district because the institutions are responsible for any loss if the warrants are cashed, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration. Both institutions will post bonds 1½ times greater than the warrants to insure payment if the originals are cashed.

The Dist. 39 Board of Education authorized issuance of duplicate tax warrants to replace the originals earlier this week.

ACCORDING TO PERRY, the action will allow the district to pay the debt as planned and remove any possibility of tarnishing the district's credit rating with bonding companies.

The two institutions are Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis and Kilder, Peabody & Co., a New York-based brokerage firm, said Harold Erlandson, Elk Grove Township school treasurer.

William Schumway, attorney for the school treasurer, refused to supply any information from the warrant-sale documents in his possession, saying he didn't want to "embarrass" the two institutions involved. Schumway contended that the information is confidential.

Edward Gesme, an official in the bonds and investment department at Northwestern National, said he knows nothing about the lost warrants.

ANOTHER BANK OFFICER however said he was vaguely aware of the situation but didn't know any details.

Gesme did say it was possible Northwestern National was holding the bonds for "one of our clients — maybe a country bank."

The warrants are a means to borrow against anticipated tax revenue. They were issued against 1973 tax monies.

The warrants are to be paid off when the tax money is received and will expire in six months, Perry said. Tax money is now starting to come in.

The loss of three of the tax warrants was discovered in June, according to Erlandson. The district was expecting part of the tax levy to come in and the township treasurer issued a call for the three warrants to the Minnesota Bank. The bank was unable to locate the warrants, he said.

The second set of warrants was discovered missing Sept. 26 when the treasurer issued another call for the warrants from the East Coast firm. Erlandson said that apparently the brokerage firm holding the bonds merged with another firm and lost the warrants during the merger.

"WE'RE GLAD TO GET some of this cleared up," said Erlandson. "We paid off three of the warrants yesterday (Tuesday)."

Symphony thrills suburb audience

by STEVE NOVICK

The grand court of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg was filled Wednesday night as it has never been filled before, as an attentive audience estimated at 30,000 heard the Chicago Symphony Orchestra play its welcome home concert.

The event, sponsored by the Woodfield Merchants Assn., recognized the orchestra's recent return from a European tour.

Traffic in the vicinity of the shopping center was backed up for miles before the presentation and the Woodfield parking lot was filled to overflowing. The crowd was the largest audience to hear the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a single concert.

People began gathering across the ramps and in the aisles around the mall's interior as early as 6 p.m. to find an advantageous place to hear the concert.

John Lightner, 50, of 810 N. Haddon, Arlington Heights, joined his wife and friends while sitting on chairs they had carried into the mall. Late arrivals, they were "pretty much out of luck" in terms of seeing the orchestra because people were already standing three deep in front of them.

But Lightner was happy to see the free concert. "This is absolutely an excellent program," he said of the mixture of Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Strauss and other greats whose music was performed by the orchestra.

Many others echoed Lightner's delight at the opportunity to see the world-renowned Chicago Symphony Orchestra perform.

The 80-minute concert began with the noise of shoppers drawing from the performance at first. But shortly into the program the power of the orchestra washed out any distractions, and stores were quickly emptied of customers.

The concert was recognized as an opportunity for many who otherwise would never see a symphony orchestra perform. Conductor Henry Mazer said of the audience: "It was hard to tell but I thought they were with us." He said the audience might be the largest he ever performed for. "I felt like I was in the coliseum, but there were no lions," he said.

Wally Kujala, who plays piccolo with the orchestra, echoed the maestro's comments, saying he had never seen such a huge audience at a performance.

"They were tremendous," he said in an obvious reference to the audience.

The audience numbered 30,000, jamming the huge mall.

Residents oppose streetlight plan

by MARILYN McDONALD

A proposal to install streetlights along Northwest Highway between Chestnut Avenue and Wilke Road has a group of Arlington Heights residents upset.

Homeowners and businessmen along that stretch of Northwest Highway will have to share the cost of the proposed $174,000 lighting project with the village through a court-determined special assessment, said David Patterson, Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements president.

Although the streetlights are a village project, the special assessment is made on the "general concept that you pay for improvements in front of your house," Patterson said.

Patterson said the lights will provide controlled illumination on the street, which is a state highway and a major thoroughfare in the village. He said streetlights will make the area safer for homeowners and pedestrians.

RESIDENTS ARE protesting the proposal because they feel the lights will shine into their homes and that the project will benefit the village more than themselves.

Many street improvements are funded through state motor fuel tax. The funds can't be used to relieve individual Northwest Highway homeowners or businessmen of their special-assessment burden, however, because "there just isn't enough (motor fuel) tax to handle this project and also handle other improvements," said BOLI secretary August Beitman.

Motor fuel tax is spent on streets and street maintenance such as snow and ice removal, salting, and repairs, said Gene Willroth, public works director.

Another group of homeowners on the village's northeast side is protesting the Board of Local Improvements' plan to force sidewalk installation in front of 100 homes in the area. The board wants to bring the homes into compliance with the village's 1968 sidewalk ordinance, which calls for walks in front of areas one-half mile from schools and parks and where more than 50 per cent of a neighborhood already has sidewalks.

Although the board is giving homeowners a chance to save money on the installation by posting a letter of credit to cover the cost of the project, residents still contend that the $1,000 to $2,000 cost per home is too high during an era of inflation. Several homeowners also say that there is not enough pedestrian traffic to justify additional sidewalks and that the walks may jeopardize valuable trees or esthetic surroundings.

Mayor's sales practices draw variety of opinions

by NANCY COWGER

Reaction of Rolling Meadows aldermen ranged from outrage to unconcern Wednesday at the disclosure that Mayor Roland J. Meyer is using city equipment and facilities to sell products for his own company.

"Possibly there is no conflict of interest, but it is just a hair away," said Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd.

Only one alderman, Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, dismissed the disclosure as "making a mountain out of a molehill." Wuerch said he sees no difference between the mayor's demonstrating wares with city-owned property and any other salesman who has a product to sell.

HOWEVER, THREE other aldermen — Frederick E. Jacobson, 5th; Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st; and Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd — joined Ahrens in raising questions about the morality of the setup, wondering whether Meyer is "using his clout" as mayor for personal financial gain.

Day-care center rolls up by 27

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has increased its enrollment from 17 to 27 students within the last month, director Dora Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler told the township board Tuesday night that a second classroom will be opened this week to accommodate the increase. She said all equipment for the center located at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., has arrived and funds from tuition also are coming in.

Enrollment includes 17 students paying full tuition of $30 per week and 10 students on either a partial or full subsidy. Mrs. Fowler said two of the students were referred to the center from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

NOT ALL STUDENTS attend on a five-day per week basis, Mrs. Fowler said, with enrollments being accepted for part-timers.

The center is licensed by the state for 30 students but Mrs. Fowler said licensing for 40 students, which is the center's capacity, will be sought soon.

She said the center is not attracting as many people as it was designed to serve, including lower-income families. "We need to get mothers here to see the center for themselves but transportation seems to be a problem," Mrs. Fowler said.

She suggested the board consider providing transportation for the center. Auditor Bernard F. Lee said the bus now serving senior citizens may be the answer.

"It might be possible to use the bus during the early morning hours and late evening hours when it is not in use by senior citizens," he said. He added that the bus should only be used if it does not interfere with senior citizen service.

IN OTHER ACTION, road and bridge supervisor Alfred C. Steil told the board four bids were received by salt suppliers Tuesday. Steil made no recommendation because he said he wants to determine which company can insure the best delivery schedule.

Low bidder was the Diamond Salt Co., Chicago, at $13.27 per ton. Other bidders were Morton Salt Co., Chicago, at $14.65 per ton; International Salt Co., Rosemont, at $15 per ton; and Cargill Inc., Chicago, at $15 per ton.

Steil said the township paid Morton Salt Co. $12 per ton for salt last year. The township orders an average of 400 tons of salt per season.

Police cadet gets his goat

The Mounties may always get their man, but Arlington Heights police cadet Phillip Lorenz got his goat Wednesday night.

Lorenz, responding to a call at the Thomas Bruno home, 2046 Cherry Hill, discovered a billy goat trapped in the backyard.

The billy goat, from the William Parks farm, 1114 E. Palatine Rd., was new to the area and apparently got lost and wandered into the fenced-in backyard, Lorenz said.

Lorenz described the goat as being about three feet high, having a full set of horns and a "rambunctious" disposition.

The animal was quickly subdued with the aid of Parks' employees summoned to the scene by Lorenz. "They just went right in there and grabbed that goat by the horns," the cadet said of the capture.

Mrs. Bruno called police after overcoming her surprise in seeing a goat grazing in her yard, police said. The Cherry Hill address is about three blocks from the farm and the goat enjoyed only a brief taste of freedom.

Meanwhile, three aldermen — Thomas W. Waldron, 2nd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Daniel E. Weber, 4th — appeared less concerned, though they said they wanted additional time to study the matter.

Most of the eight aldermen polled Wednesday said they intended to question the mayor on his private corporation, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., and its relationship with the city. All of them said they were unaware the firm exists and the mayor is its owner until they were contacted by The Herald.

WEDNESDAY'S EDITION of The Herald revealed Meyer's firm, incorporated last December, has become a sales representative for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., a Washington-based firm distributing garbage trucks identical to those owned by the city.

Midwest employs James McFeggan, a former Rolling Meadows public works superintendent, who demonstrates the capacity and speed of the trucks by taking prospective buyers to the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., to examine the vehicles. The customers also follow city trucks on their routes, and are taken to the trash compactor and transfer station to view the entire city refuse system.

Meyer confirmed the information, and said it is perfectly legal. He said he has sought no special treatment or favors and has received none, but is treated in the same fashion as any other salesman handling a product the city uses.

Ahrens agreed the business activity is legal. But he said he still is "disappointed." Meyer has "gotten all over past city officials for a lot less than this — he's had their heads," Ahrens said. He said he "certainly will talk to the mayor" about the matter.

AN EQUALLY NEGATIVE reaction was registered by Jacobson, who said "it certainly isn't illegal but there is a morality issue here in the mayor possibly using his clout" to advance sales for his own private firm.

"The aldermen are going to have some questions, a lot of questions," said Jacobson, and "until I can ask some questions and get some answers, I don't think any additional things can be done."

Jacobson said his first reaction was to wonder "why it was never brought to our attention by the director of public works."

Jacobson said he was concerned that city employees might have been used in sales demonstrations, and added "I would prefer nobody was demonstrating" with city equipment. "Why should the taxpayers be involved in private enterprise?"

Although Scanlan said "I know Roland too well to think he would do anything dishonest," he added he thought the mayor had not used good judgment.

"IF HE WOULD HAVE consulted with me on something like that I would have said 'No, Roland, I wouldn't do it. It just doesn't look good,'" said Scanlan. The alderman said he feels Meyer is "one of the best things that happened to this city," and felt the mayor might be able to justify his firm's sales technique by pointing to other businessmen who demonstrate their product line with satisfied customers. But "I would have said 'no.' I just don't think it's good judgment," said Scanlan.

Huddleston said: "I don't know just what to think about the situation at this point. I'd just like to think about the matter." Waldron agreed, although he noted McFeggan proposed the city buy the specialized garbage trucks. "It was his idea for these Kuka Shark trucks and the whole system," noted Waldron.

The fact that the mayor owns Midwest might boost company sales, suggested Waldron. "I think a mayor might have more weight in impressing a prospect than any other salesman might," he said suggesting there may be "unfair competition."

ALTHOUGH WEBER said he intends to question Meyer, he added he considers the mayor "the last guy who would put himself in a position where there's any conflict of interest at all or where there's any public disgrace." He said he sees no particular concern if the demonstrations are not interfering with city work schedules or costing taxpayer money.

Eberhard said there is an "indirect" difference between the mayor and other salesmen, but he wants to check the facts further. "I don't go for this kind of stuff. This concerns me quite a bit," he said.

Wuerch saw the details as "good reading," but his only reaction was to say "I don't think the mayor is any different than any other salesman. What does being a mayor of a city have to do with it?" he asked.

Plan OK to stymie hospital branch?

Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital will have to begin construction of its Wheeling-Blue Cross branch without the planning approval needed to obtain important Blue Cross-Blue Shield funds, a hospital spokesman said Wednesday.

Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said approval by Comprehensive Health Planning, Inc., a prerequisite to receiving a Blue Cross-Blue Shield contract, probably would take six months.

To delay start of construction that long, Davis said, would mean a sharp rise in construction costs.

"If we don't get started this year, I doubt if we'll ever do it," he said. "We simply can't wait for Comprehensive Health Planning to review it."

DAVIS SAID EVEN if hospital officials waited for the review, there is still the possibility the agency would not accept the hospital plans.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital legally can begin construction without the approval of Comprehensive Health Planning. Without that agency's approval, however, Blue Cross-Blue Shield will not sign a contract with the hospital.

This means that it would not be fully reimbursed by Blue Cross-Blue Shield for costs incurred by patients with that type of hospital insurance.

A spokesman for Blue Cross said Wednesday more than 30 per cent of the persons in the United States are insured by the company and would thus create a "severe financial hardship" on any hospital which was not a member. Officials could not break down membership in the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling area.

In addition, Davis said without a Blue Cross contract the hospital backers will have to look toward an alternate method of financing the branch hospital.

A STATE LAW allows the hospital to finance part of the construction with general obligation bonds that are purchased through the county or municipality in order to obtain lower interest rates. Davis said, however, that unless the hospital can show financing agencies that it has a contract with Blue Cross, they are unwilling to commit financial support.

Thus, if the project cannot be financed with general obligation bonds, the hospital would have to use private financing which carries higher interest rates, Davis said.

He said it may be financially beneficial for his clients to obtain private financing because the higher interest rates may cost less than if they wait several months and are faced with substantially higher construction costs.

Davis said he was dismayed to learn of the Blue Cross requirement because he thought the hospital had cleared its final hurdle two weeks ago when its final plans were approved by the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

A SPOKESMAN FOR Comprehensive Health Planning said a recent report indicated there is no need for additional hospital facilities in Cook County. He said the new hospital will not be approved unless Franklin Boulevard officials can show the agency otherwise.

"The assumption that a hospital is not needed out here is pretty ridiculous," Davis said. "I don't know how they (Comprehensive Health Planning) can refuse to approve us after we already have state approval."

By obtaining approval by the state before Oct. 1, the hospital avoided the newly-enacted certificate of need law, which requires the backers to prove that a hospital is needed where it is being proposed.

Davis said it probably is illegal for Blue Cross to refuse to enter into a contract because a hospital has not been approved by Comprehensive Health Planning. He said, however, he doubts the hospital will challenge the matter in court.

Before any decisions are reached, Davis said, he plans to meet with Blue Cross officials. He said he met with them recently, but little progress was made.

THE BLUE CROSS spokesman said it has been the firm's policy since 1973 to require review of all hospital facilities by a local planning agency before entering into a contract.
